THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

CINCINNATI.

The first large flower show that Cincinnatians have had an opportunity to see at home formally opened auspiciously on Monday evening, November 13, when the vice-mayor of Cincinnati, Hon. John Galvin, gave an address on behalf of the citizens, welcoming the affair and wishing it every success. In his talk he told of the appeal of flowers to the higher and finer senses of the people and of the language they speak. Finally, he commented on the growth of the trade from a business to an industry.

The severe cold wave marred the opening and first day's display in numbers of entries, for what was apparently the largest and best lot of chrysanthemums, that of Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was frozen stiff while in the local warehouse of an express company. The few he managed to save showed the possibilities open to him had he been able to stage them all properly. R. Witterstaetter, too, suffered a setback that would have discouraged ordinary mortals. He had been retarding his show plants in a coldframe to have them in the best possible shape for this week. The high winds of Saturday night lifted some of the sashes from them and the drop from 60 degrees to 20 degrees in a few hours' time did the rest. With, however, other plants in the greenhouses that he called his seconds, he came within the money a number of times.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill.; Theodore Bock, Hamilton, O.; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Thomas Meehan & Sons, Germantown, Pa., who exhibited hardy varieties, not for competition; Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis; South Park Floral Co., New Castle, Ind., and J. A. Peterson, R. Witterstaetter, Ed. Fries, John Fries, Chas. Pfeiffer, Ed. Dellar and Henry Schwarz, all from the vicinity of Cincinnati, were among the large exhibitors.

The crowd on the opening day, while not overly large, was all that the committee anticipated. The public, judging from reports of members, was waiting for the Wednesday and Thursday exhibits. Those there expressed their satisfaction and many volunteered statements that they would be back.

Horticultural hall was laid out as a garden. Groups of palms and decorative plants were in the center, while the mum plants and some vases of large mums filled the beds around the edge. The display tables were stretched along the north side and near the front on the east. While the number of entries did not, perhaps, come up to the most sanguine expectations, the show was a distinct advance over what Cincinnati has known before.

The judges were Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit; Otto Koenig, of St. Louis, and Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis.

The following were the awards on cut blooms of chrysanthemums:

Twelve blooms crimson—E. G. Hill Co., first, with Perfect Tilliere.

Twelve blooms bronze—R. Witterstaetter, first, with O. H. Kahn; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Marian Pockett.

Twelve blooms, any other color—E. G. Hill Co., first, with C 189; Theodore Bock, second, with Antonine Marmontel.

In the classes for seedlings the E. G. Hill Co. secured a certificate for Wodenethe, R. Witterstaetter one for Valentine, Chicago Carnation Co. one for No. 186, Baur & Steinkamp one for St. Nicholas and Murphy & Skidelsky one for Delhi. The sweepstakes was awarded to the variety Valentine exhibited by R. Witterstaetter.

The roses were staged Wednesday, November 15, and the quality of the stock shown was notably high. The judges had the time of their lives deciding between Sunburst and Killarney Queen for the silver cup. A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, acted in the place of Philip Breitmeyer, and after an hour's deliberation the cup was awarded to Sunburst exhibited by the E. G. Hill Co.

The other awards in the rose classes were as follows:

Twenty-five Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; P. J. Olinger, second; South Park Floral Co., third.
Twenty-five Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first.
Twenty-five Bride—P. J. Olinger, second.

Six Lorraine begonias—J. A. Peterson, first.
Six begonias, other than Lorraine type—J. A. Peterson, first.
Hanging basket—Ed Dellar, first; R. Witterstaetter, second.

The following special awards were made:

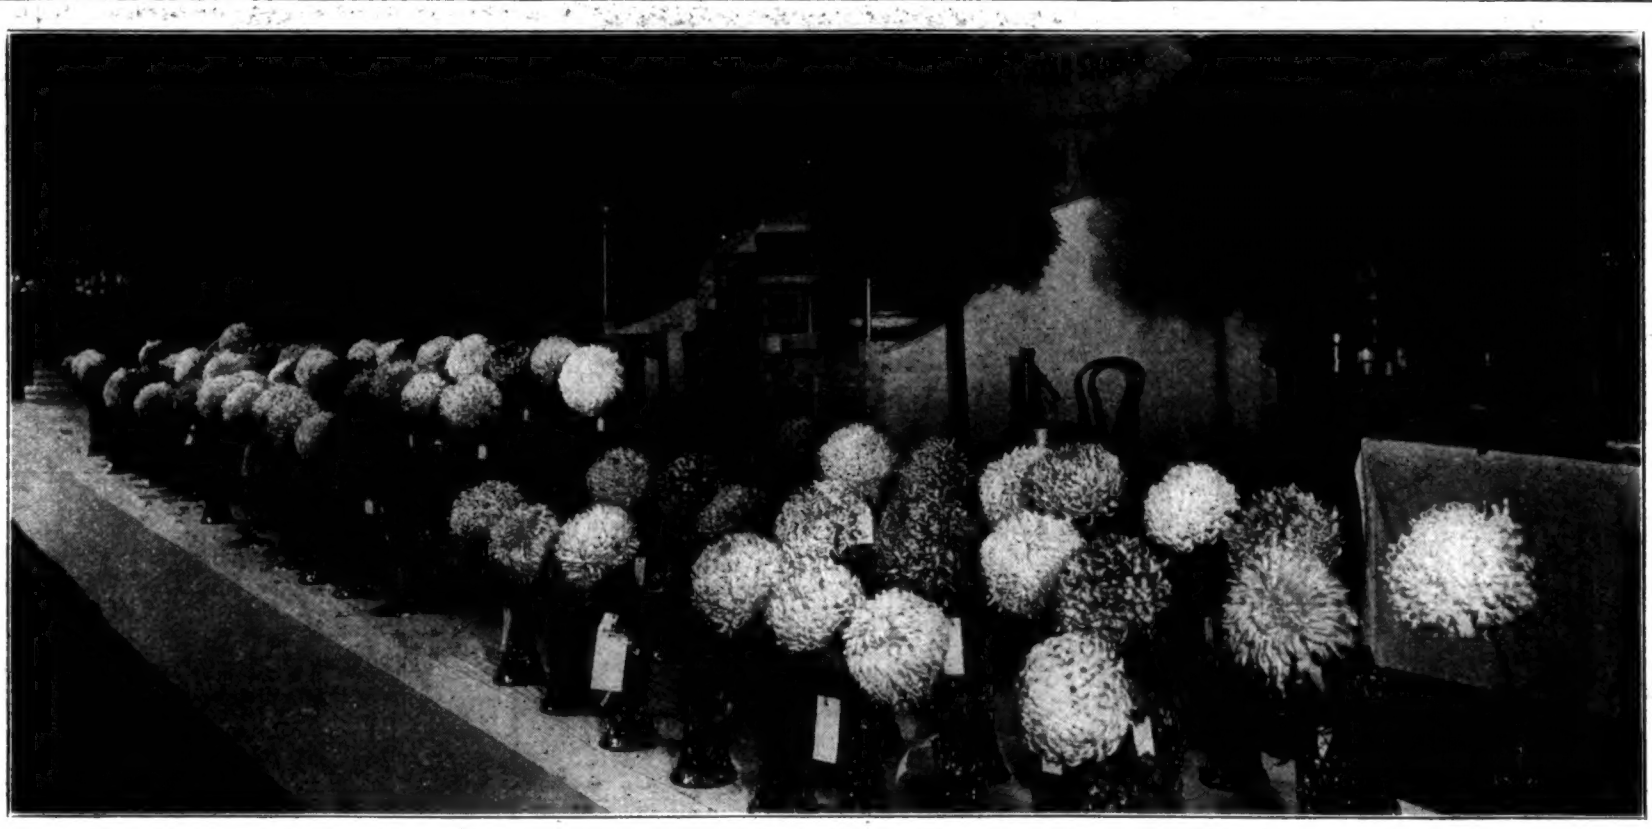
S. A. F. silver medal to J. A. Peterson, for Begonia Westwood.
Certificate of merit to A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., for Rose Killarney Queen.
Certificate of merit to A. N. Pierson, for Rose Double White Killarney.

This was distinctly a trade show, given by florists, for the purpose of interesting the public in flowers. To help along the work President Adrian, of the Florists' Society, appointed a committee of information for each day, the duty being to mix with the visitors and explain the exhibits to them. The committees were:

Monday—Jas. Allen, chairman; Frank Dellar, Herbert Greensmith, J. A. Peterson, Alex. Ostendarp.
Tuesday—Chas. H. Hoffmeister, chairman; D. Rusconi, A. C. Hickman, Jr., J. Chas. Murphy, Ben George.
Wednesday—C. E. Critchell, chairman; Otto Hoffmeister, R. C. Witterstaetter, Dan Carmichael.
Thursday—J. A. Peterson, chairman; George Tromey, Al. Sunderbruch, Ed. Fries, Gus Adrian.
Friday—Henry Schwarz, chairman; J. Chas. McCullough, Chas. Brunner, Ed. Schumann, Jas. Allen.
Saturday—C. J. Jones, chairman; Chas. Witterstaetter, Ernst Mack, Fred Backmeier, Willis Kennedy.

Tuesday was carnation day and the consensus of opinion was that the stock exhibited was the best collection ever gathered for a single show this early in the season. The stems and blooms would do credit to February rather than November. R. C. Witterstaetter won the silver cup for the best seedling carnation with Valentine, while H. W. Rieman, of Indianapolis, took the silver cup for the best seedling chrysanthemum with White Ball.

There were many trade visitors from out of town the early part of the week. Some will leave in time to take in part of the Milwaukee show, while others will remain.



The attendance for the first two days was small and unless the close brings more people there promises to be a large call on the guarantors.

DETROIT.

The Detroit Florists' Club gave an exhibition, opening Tuesday, November 14, that was so large, attractive and so well liked by the public that it was at once decided to hold it open until Thursday night, one day longer than had been planned. It was a florists' show from beginning to end, there being only a few exhibits from the private gardeners who are members of the club. The retailers took advantage of the opportunity to reach the flower buyers in a new way and their displays were among the most attractive features of the show. Those exhibiting, not for competition, were: E. A. Fetters, J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Gust. Taepke, Hufford & Maebius, McHugh Floral Co., W. B. Brown, Bemb Floral Co. and the Scribner Floral Co. Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., sent a fine lot of big cut blooms, including some forty-five varieties, for which they were awarded a certificate of merit.

The judges were Frank Holznagle, George Rackham and Robert Flowerday. The following were the awards for cut blooms of chrysanthemums:

Fifty, any one kind—Thomas Browne, first; Gust. Taepke, second.
Fifty, not less than five varieties—Thos. Browne, first; Fred Pautke, second.
Twenty-five, not less than five varieties—Fred Pautke, first; Thos. Browne, second.

Orchids—B. Schroeter, first.
Chrysanthemum plants—Fred Pautke, first.

ST. LOUIS.

The attendance Wednesday, November 8, the second day of the flower show given by the St. Louis Horticultural Society, was much larger than on the opening day and the competition was keener in all the classes, the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America being an added attraction.

In the Retail Florists' Association booth F. H. Weber exhibited a fine basket of Killarney roses, while Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, staged a vase of their fine new carnation, St. Nicholas, which scored 90 points.

The awards of the judges Wednesday were:

Twenty-five blooms white mums, one variety—E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., first with Naomah; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, second with Chadwick; W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Ft. Wayne, Ind., third with Lynnwood Hall.

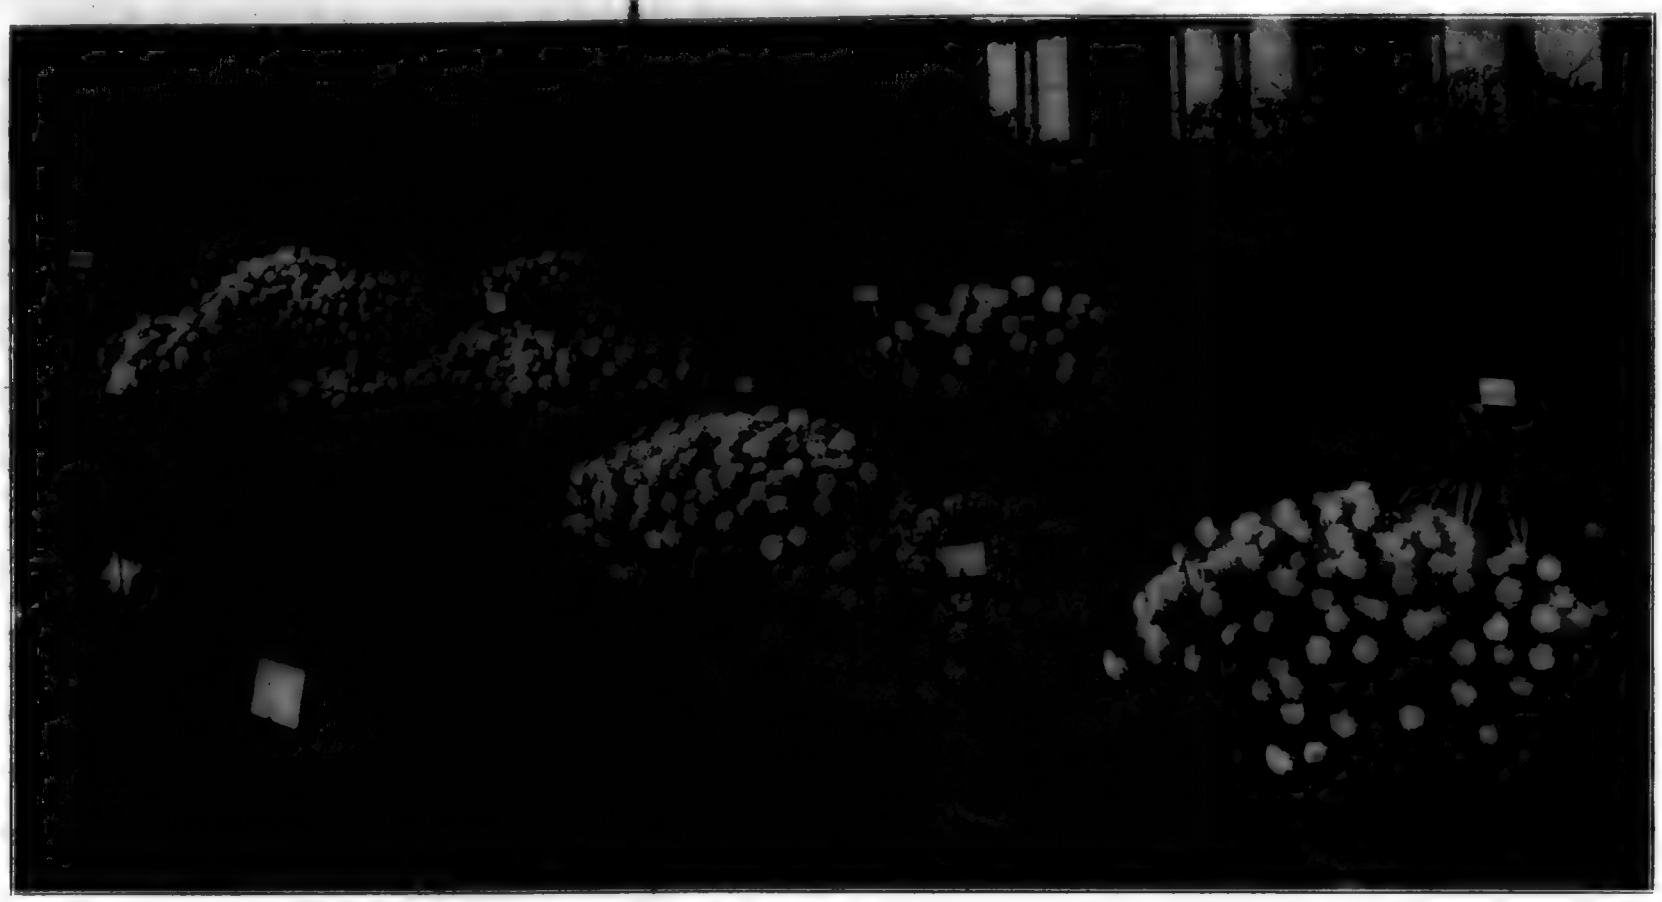
MILWAUKEE.

Encouraged by the success of the exhibitions of the past, the Milwaukee Florists' Club opened, Wednesday, November 15, the most pretentious exhibition in the west this season. The decision to omit the usual show at Chicago had encouraged H. V. Hunkel, president of the club, to put forth his best efforts in the belief that a notable record could be made. His chief lieutenant, Mr. Kellner, and First Sergeant Oestreicher, also worked to make the show not only the best Milwaukee has ever had, but to give the trade visitors, of whom there will be many before the week is over, an exhibition that is worth the trip. The decorations are more elaborate than before, and on the whole the Milwaukee club congratulates itself on the number of exhibits, for this seems to be a year when entries are not so numerous, the country over, as they have been in some other seasons. Milwaukee has probably the largest show of the year, and it is a show made entirely by the trade. The local retailers are doing their part.

Since the show did not open until Wednesday afternoon, the awards were not ready for this edition, but will appear next week.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS.

The seventh annual chrysanthemum exhibition, given by the Lake Geneva Gardeners' and Foremen's Association, was held at St. Francis' hall November 7 and 8. The exhibition was one of the best the association has ever put up. The plants and cut flowers were better than at any time heretofore, and the competition keener than ever before; so keen, in fact, that the judge, Wm. Currie, of Milwaukee, was sorely puzzled in many of the classes as to a decision, but when he was through everybody was satisfied with his work.



The new horticultural hall, now under construction, will give a great deal more room for the exhibitions, and the gardeners will be more able to show to advantage in the future than in the past.

The principal exhibitors and prize winners were: Edward Sandgren, gardener to N. K. Fairbank; Frank R. Kuehn, gardener to F. D. Countiss; Axel Johnson, gardener to R. T. Crane; J. J. Krupa, gardener to N. W. Harris; Robert Blackwood, gardener to S. W. Allerton; A. J. Smith, gardener to J. J. Mitchell; M. Barrett, gardener to M. A. Ryerson; H. Larson, gardener to C. H. Wacker; R. J. Sampson, gardener to E. F. Swift; Wm. Wahlstedt, gardener to George Sturges, and Wm. Longland.

HARTFORD.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society's annual exhibition of chrysanthemums, held in Putnam Phalanx hall, November 8 and 9, was pronounced by different authorities the best mum show ever given by the society. The blooms were of higher quality than ever before and the floor space was arranged to better advantage for the favorable display of the exhibits.

A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., sent a fine assortment of plants and cut flowers, not for competition. Among the most prominent and successful exhibitors was J. F. Huss, president of the society and gardener for James J.

Some of the Chrysanthemum Plants at the Philadelphia Exhibition, November 7 to 10, 1911.

Goodwin. Other prize winners were: J. A. Weber, gardener for Walter L. Goodwin; N. Nelson, horticulturist of Hartford Retreat; Thomas Stentiford, gardener for W. L. Cushing, Simsbury; Walter Angus, Chapinville; Alfred Cebelius, gardener for Prof. M. W. Jacobus; Warren S. Mason, gardener for A. A. Pope, Farmington; Carl Peterson, manager of the Whiting Greenhouse.

Certificates of merit were awarded as follows: Four certificates to A. N. Pierson, for Killarney Queen, Double White Killarney, pompon chrysanthemums and cut chrysanthemums; two certificates to the Hartford department of parks, for Lorraine begonia and single chrysanthemums, exhibited by A. Cumming, Jr., head gardener; a certificate to E. Porta, for wax flower baskets; to John Coombs, for group of palms, and to J. F. Huss, for specimen plant of single chrysanthemum.

PHILADELPHIA.

The opening of the Philadelphia show, on the evening of November 7, was reported in last week's issue. The roses were the feature of the second day. The display was exceedingly interesting, attracting and holding the attention and admiration of professionals as well as of amateurs. The star was Mme. Charles Russell, a magnificent hybrid tea, with flowers as large and stems as long and heavy as American Beauties; color, a deep pink, with plenty of life; in foliage and habit hardly so good as Beauty, yet a grand rose, that was awarded the society's silver medal. Mme. Charles Russell is from the Waban Conservatories, Natick, Mass., brought by Alexander Montgomery in person. With him came his son. Two rival Double White Killarneys were seen side by side. Both were fine, with flowers of great size, stems heavy, foliage good. The pointed bud, so strong a feature of Killarney, is slightly lost by the extra petals. The flowers are flatter, like Kaiserin. One of these vases was from S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., brought by Louis J. Reuter, who won his spurs here. This vase received honorable mention. The other vase, from the Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, R. I., was staged by S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., receiving a certificate of merit. Killarney Queen, also from the Budlong place, was fine; the color a deep, rich pink. The flowers are no more double than Killarney, but the growth is stronger. The center of this great group was occupied by a carnation, Miss Dimple Widener, from William Kleinheinz, of Ogontz, a debutante of last season, worthy of such select company.

Chas H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., sent a fine vase of Sunburst, and John Gaynor, gardener to John Wanamaker, a vase of choice Beauties that ornamented opposite corners of the stairway. There were other good roses and carnations that added to the interest of the display.

Among other notable exhibits were the orchids of Alphonse Pericat, of Collingdale, awarded a silver medal. A fine lot of cut blooms of orchids came from Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, and orchids from Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener to P. A. B. Widener, also were excellent. Adolph Muller, Norristown, exhibited a miniature garden surrounded by fruit and shade trees with a hedge outside, admirably executed. Frank Bernbrauer, of Oak Lane, staged a bunch of pink snapdragon of pleasing shade. W. F. Lacroix, Buena, N. J., exhibited Lilac Rouge de Marley in fine form.

The pompon, single and anemone-flowered chrysanthemums were better and more varied than in the past, some striking varieties being shown.

Thursday brought the vegetables, a goodly collection in all the standard sorts and many more.

The efforts made to attract flower lovers were successful. The attendance was larger and more enthusiastic than for many a year. Great credit is due to the committees, to the secretary, to the judges and to the workers for the splendid exhibition of 1911. The exhibitors deserve special praise for the skillful cultural work that made the success possible.

Special prizes to trade exhibitors were awarded as follows:

Certificates of merit to Henry A. Dreer for culture of group of Cocos Weddelliana; for display of new and rare plants; for culture of Phoenix Roebelenii; for group of Ananas sativus variegatus and Adiantum accumulum; for group of Araucaria robusta compacta and Araucaria excelsa glauca; for group of Cibotium Schiedei.

To Robert Craig & Co., the following special awards: Certificate of merit for Ficus pandurata and Dracæna Massangeana; special mention for collection of crotons.

Certificate of merit to Henry F. Michell Co. for collection of hardy chrysanthemums, arranged in garden effect.

Special mention of Ammon Heights Nurseries for collection of hardy chrysanthemums.

Certificate to Lord & Burnham Co. for a new greenhouse, showing all the latest improvements in construction.

Special mention to Adolph Muller for collection of evergreens and miniature garden.

Certificate of merit to Charles F. Krueger for collection of window boxes.

Special mention to William Moon Co. for collection of white pine trees.

Silver medal to the Overbrook Gardens for fine collection of single chrysanthemums.

Silver medal to Louis Burk for collection of orchids.

Silver medal to Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., for new rose, Mme. Charles Russell.

Certificate of merit to Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, R. I., for the new rose, Killarney Queen.

Certificate of merit to the same firm for a new rose, Double White Killarney.

Special mention to S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., for new rose, Double Improved White Killarney.

BOSTON.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held November 9 to 12. It was favored with pleasant weather throughout and was well attended. In so far as chrysanthemums themselves are concerned, the show recorded the extreme low water mark for Boston, for never were fewer blooms and plants shown. Chrysanthemums are, temporarily at least, under a cloud in and around the Hub. People seem to be tired of both big blooms and specimen plants, and the fall show, instead of being, as it once was, the most important of the year, plays second fiddle to those held during winter and spring.

The only exhibitor of specimen plants, which used to be such a feature in Boston, was James Marlborough, gardener to Thomas E. Proctor. He had superb specimens of Mayor Weaver, Garza, Enguehard, Emmy Lou, etc. The last named, one of Mr. Marlborough's seedlings in the way of Garza, received a silver medal for the best plant in the show. D. F. Roy, gardener to H. E. Converse, had the best specimen singles and Eric Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland, had capital plants carrying six specimen blooms. W. H. Elliott captured first and second for twenty-five commercial plants, none of these having stakes.

There were three excellent orchid groups: Wheeler & Co., Paul de Nave and J. T. Butterworth, winning in the order named.

In the 300 square feet group of foliage and flower plants, Edward MacMulkin led with a fine lot of plants, W. W. Edgar Co. being an excellent second. George Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer, and M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman, were first in the classes for palms.

There was practically no competition in the cut bloom classes, several having no entries at all in spite of the good money prizes. For the large vase of seventy-five blooms, Alex McKay, gardener to E. A. Clark, was in the lead with a splendid mixed assortment; W. W. Edgar Co. second and third with fine vases of Eaton and Bonnaffon. James Nicol captured the H. A. Gane special for a vase of Mrs. Jerome Jones with a magnificent vase. He was also awarded a silver cultural medal. None of the newer mums can touch this variety as grown by Mr. Nicol. He took second prize with the yellow sport of Mrs. Jones and was also first for ten pink chrysanthemums with grand Miriam Hankey. Alexander McKay took first for ten white, ten yellow and ten any other color. George Page, W. A. Riggs and H. E. Converse had the best singles.

For dinner table decoration of chrysanthemums, MacMulkin won, using Garza and yellow pompons. Hoffman, who was second, had a pleasing combination of brown and yellow pompons, but used too much material. Mrs. E. M. Gill was third. MacMulkin was first for the best decorated fruit table.

Wm. Downs, gardener to E. S. Webster, received a silver medal for begonias, Winter Cheer and Elatior, raised by Veitch & Sons, of London, beautiful plants, finely flowered and with wonderful commercial possibilities for Thanksgiving and Christmas trade. E. A. Wetterlow had an interesting hybrid begonia, incarnata crossed with a tuberous variety. The foliage resembled incarnata, but the flowers, which were scarlet and carried in bunches, were similar to the tuberous varieties. He was awarded a first-class certificate. W. W. Edgar Co. showed a group of cyclamens and Lorraine begonias, all showing the high culture characteristic of this growing firm. Thomas Roland showed a large table of acacias, dracænas, Otaheite oranges, Lorraines and other decorative plants. George Melvin received a certificate of merit for Capsicum capsicastrum Melvini with pointed berries, and Thomas E. Proctor secured the same award for his new chrysanthemum, Emmy Lou.

H. H. Barrows & Son received honorable mention for Nephrolepis Whitmani compacta, of a neat, compact habit. C. H. Totty showed a collection of new single mums and the new rose, Sunburst, which secured a first-class certificate. A similar award went to S. J. Reuter & Son for their sport of White Killarney rose. A. N. Pierson showed Killarney Queen and Double White Killarney, each receiving a first-class certificate and showing up well.

There were no classes allotted to carnations, but C. S. Strout had a fine collection, including splendid White Wonder, Gloriosa, Pink Delight, Beacon, Enchantress, Winsor, Melody, White Perfection and White Enchantress. A promising flesh pink seedling, Beacon x Victory, received honorable mention. A. A. Pembroke had excellent Gloriosa, White Wonder and other varieties and two good seedlings. One named Beverly, similar in color to Pink Delight, received honorable mention.

E. S. Webster received honorable mention for Celosia Thompsoni pyramidalis. William Sim had a superb table of some 600 pansies. He was awarded a bronze medal. No finer pansies were ever exhibited in Boston. Mrs. Francis Peabody had a group of Lorraine begonias and Wm. T. Walke an artistic pyramidal arrangement of the same begonia; also Garza, Anna and other mums and ferns. James Wheeler had three vases of antirrhinums which for the season were grand and kept him busy booking orders for cuttings. W. A. Riggs had a huge vase of Bonnaffons on the lecture hall stage, finely arranged. Mrs. E. M. Gill had an interesting general collection of mums. There was a fine fruit display and the Boston park department in connection with it had numerous vases of berry-bearing shrubs which proved of great interest.

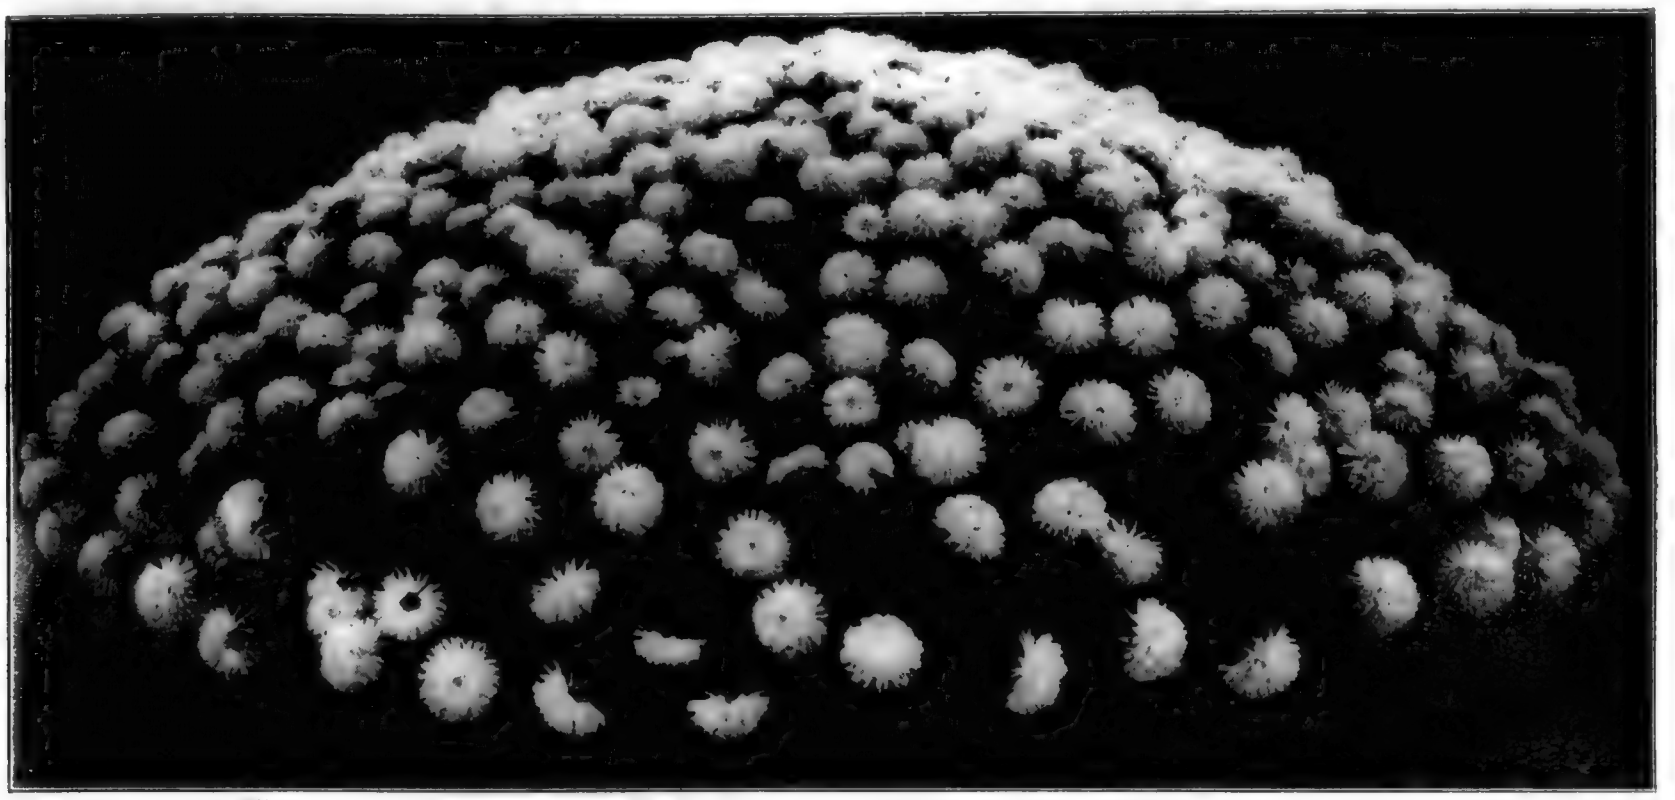
FLOWER SHOW ADMISSIONS.

It will be recalled that the advancing of the price of admission to the first national flower show, at Chicago, to 75 cents occasioned some slight criticism at the time and that for the second national show, at Boston, the fee was 50 cents. In view of this the gate charges for next spring's international show at London will be of interest.



The prices originally fixed for the eight days of the exhibition are as follows:

	Sterling.	Dollars.
1st day	2 2 0	10.38
2nd day	1 1 0	5.20
3rd day	10 0	2.40
4th day	5 0	1.20
5th day	2 6	.60
All subsequent days	1 0	.24

Because this scale of charges met with criticism, the directors decided to reduce the fee after 5 p. m. to one-half, this to apply only on the first four days. Professional gardeners will pay the regular fee the first day, but on the second day will be admitted for $1.20, on the third day for 60 cents and on all later days for a shilling, 24 cents. But what would an American gardener or florist say if he were asked to pay $10.38 to get into a flower show at its opening!

In explaining the scale of charges the directors say: "The directors have retained the original prices for admission during the greater part of each day, chiefly on account of the limited space at their disposal. The actual size of the ground is twenty-one acres; but at least seven acres are occupied by trees, shrubs, etc., which leaves only fourteen acres for tents, exhibits, offices, etc. Applications for space have, naturally, been very numerous, and ground has to be allotted for paths, promenades, and so forth. It must also be remembered that, apart from the visitors themselves, there will be a large number—say, 3,000—of officials and servants, including jurymen, exhibitors, attendants, etc."

COMPETITION.

Competition has well been said to be the life of trade, but that certain forms of competition mean the starvation of the tradesmen is apparent to all who study tendencies. Not only underselling, but the disposition to follow any successful lead come under this head. The subject was excellently handled in a letter recently published in the Horticultural Advertiser (England), from which the following:

"That competition is as good for our trade as for mankind generally will be, perhaps, acknowledged, but we can always have too much of a good thing, and that sort of 'beggar my neighbor' competition can not even be classed as healthy competition at all.

"This is a wider world than many of us believe it to be, but I will cite a far too common form of competition that so injures our trade. 'A' considers roses a good line and wisely specializes in them. 'B,' without training his own brains to bear on the problems of his trade, says 'A' is doing roses, so I must follow suit, and to sell them I must supply them cheaper than he does. Now if 'B' were a wise man, surely it would have been to his advantage to argue that as 'A' is doing roses, I will specialize in something else.

"The writer was recently in a town on the south coast and called on two worthy men of our trade, having establishments almost opposite to each other. Contrary to the usual custom in our trade, these men were firm friends, and avoided as far as possible treading on each other's heels. One goes in for roses, so the other turns his attention to the furnishing trade and the sale of plants. Neither of them attempts to cut the other out in his particular branch of his trade.

"We must turn to other countries to see the excellent working of coöperation. In America the better feeling that exists there, finds expression in the way they have of fixing prices, the idea being that as 'A' gets such a price for his goods, 'B' must get the same.

"There exists in Ghent, as in most other continental horticultural centers, a strong Trade's Association, whose members meet each Sunday to discuss matters of interest to the trade; and while no actual trade ring is formed, prices are discussed in a friendly spirit, which usually ends in the trade taking advantage of every shortage to keep prices up, instead of the policy of 'cut, cut,' which is usually going on in this country. The small grower quite understands that if he can not sell his stock at a fair price, his bigger neighbor will pay him ready money at a reduced figure rather than let the outside foreign buyer cut up the trade; and the small grower realizes if he can not obtain the proper price that it is better to sell to his neighbor than to an outsider.

"That uniformity in prices for stock of the same grade exists in Holland is, of course, also well known, and it is no mere sentiment, but the knowing on which side his bread is buttered, which causes the Dutchman to act as he does."

Bancroft's Suggestions For Thanksgiving.

LOCAL RETAIL ADVERTISING.

"Here is a Thanksgiving advertisement that pulled," write Joseph Bancroft & Son, of Cedar Falls, Ia., in sending in the clipping of the advertisement reproduced on this page. "It was used in our home daily for a week before Thanksgiving in 1910 and the returns were direct, prompt and easily traceable. Not only was trade good, but people either asked for the advertised article or spoke of having seen the advertisement."

The Bancroft display originally occupied four times as much space as the reproduction occupies, but it cost only a few dollars for several days' run—the small city dailies never are exorbitant in their charges, as florists slowly are finding out. A great deal of the success of the advertising depends upon the skill with which the advertisement is prepared, but it nearly always pays if a seasonable suggestion is thrown out and a price or two quoted.

In the past too many florists have used advertising copy that merely was a business card, or at special flower holidays their advertisements have been written merely to get a larger share of the trade that is going—just a scramble on Smith's part to get the trade away from Brown. That is not the best idea, or the modern one. The best advertising is educational; it is designed to show the uses of the article advertised, to create a desire on the part of those who have not been buyers; to enlarge the field. That is the kind of advertising which will be of greatest value to the individual florist and to the trade at large.

"The Thanksgiving turkey will taste much better if there are flowers on the table."

"If you are invited out for Thanksgiving dinner, send your hostess the flowers for her table."

Try a few such suggestions next week.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

GOOD DISPLAY.

The average retail florist knows all about the arrangement of flowers, but is densely ignorant of the arrangement of type. For that reason the florist would do well to call to his aid, when advertising, a man who knows typographical display—either that or study type effects just as flower effects are studied. Usually the newspaper representative is qualified and eager to assist in preparing layout and copy and his services should be availed of. To begin with, he knows how to get good results in his own paper—the man from outside may attempt the impossible, for it manifestly is impossible to get in a low-priced, hurry-up newspaper the cut making, complicated display and resetting one might ask from a six-dollar-a-line magazine that demands a month to work in. By all means get the newspaper man's help.

H. S. Rogers, with Penn, Boston, is one florist who has made a study of type and display. The Penn advertisement reproduced herewith is one of his latest and best productions.

WARDING OFF THE "KICKS."

Many retail florists find it desirable to send, with plants and cut flowers, brief instructions as to how they are to be cared for. Such a course wards off "kicks," and more; it often is the means of gaining a satisfied customer, that best of all advertisements. Here is the card the Saltford Flower Shop, of Poughkeepsie, sends out with plants:

KEEP THIS PLANT WET.

All flowering plants require twice as much water as a foliage plant.

To obtain best results let this plant stand in a pail of water for ten or fifteen minutes every day.

If this plant is to be kept in a jardiniere do not let water accumulate in the jardiniere.

When a box of flowers goes up to Vassar the lady finds in it this instruction on.

CARE OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

If any of these chrysanthemums should show signs of wilting after being placed in the vase, break off (do not cut) a portion of the stem and place in deep vase in a cool place and they will soon revive.

To keep chrysanthemums a longer time we recommend breaking off a small portion of the stem every day and placing fresh water in the vase.

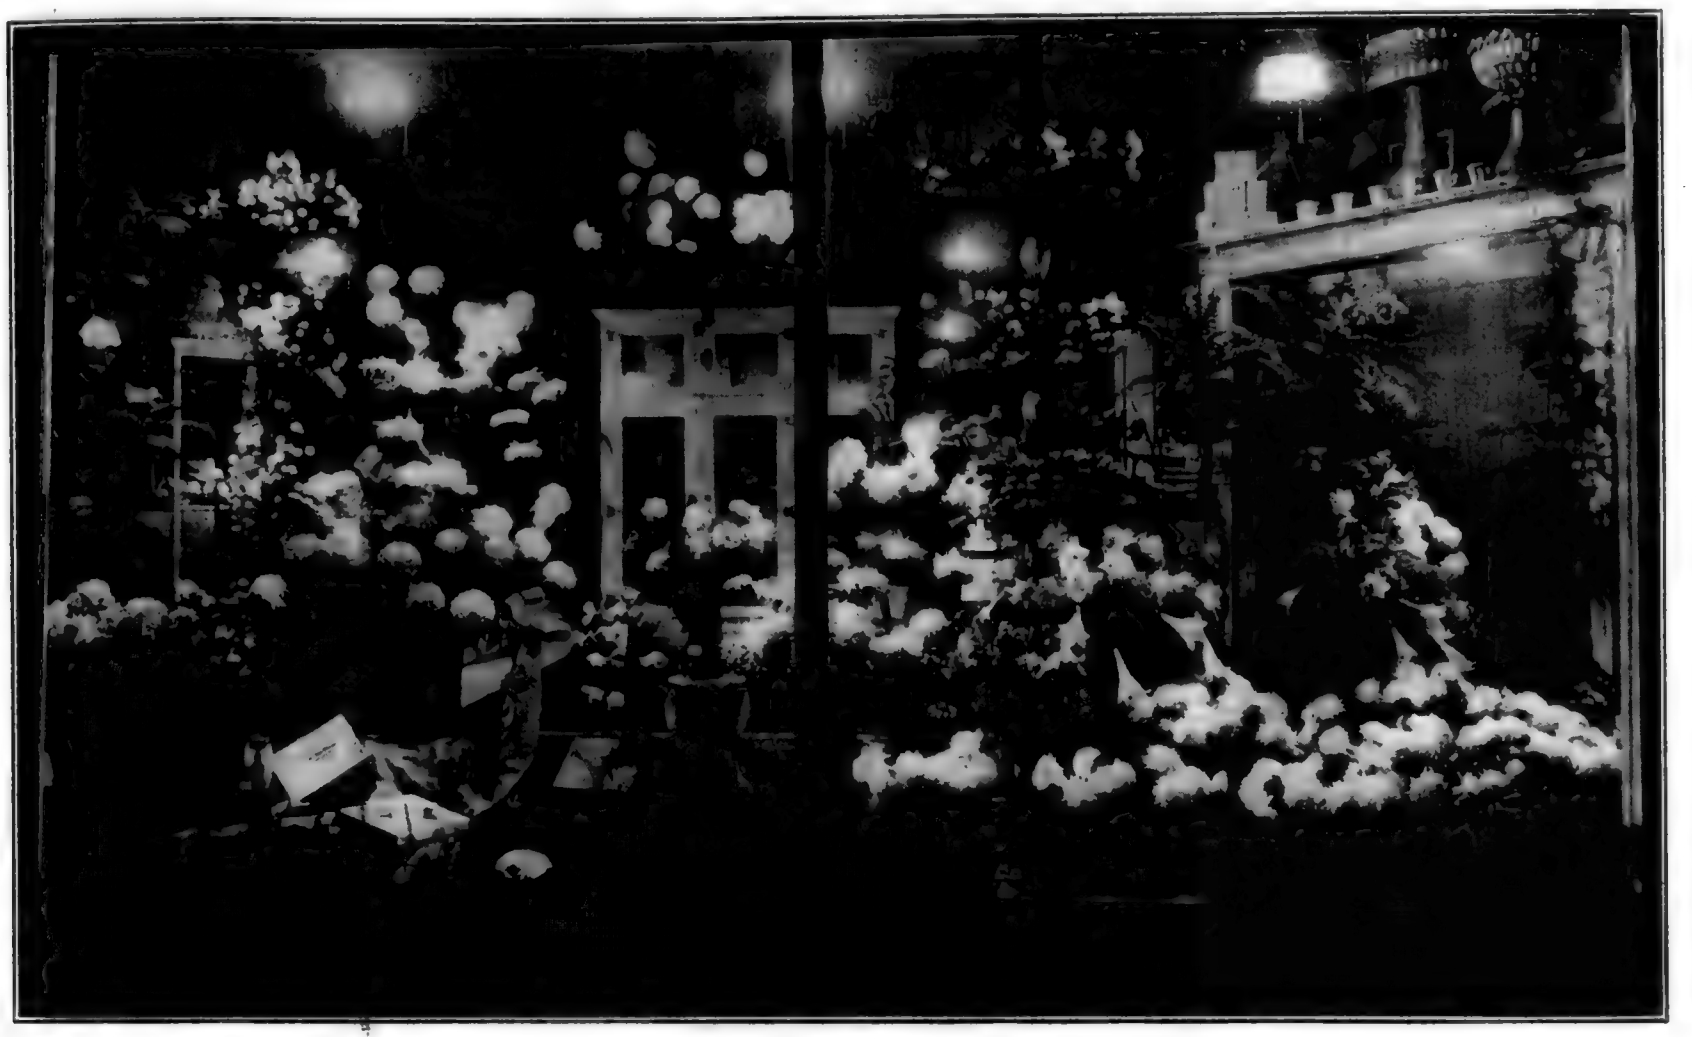
Wilting is caused by the pores of the stem becoming clogged and not allowing the water to ascend to the flower.

MR. SANGSTER'S WINDOW.

The illustration on page 33 gives a view of the window of Joseph Sangster as it appears to those who pass along Jefferson street, in Buffalo. Mr. Sangster was formerly in the employ of S. A. Anderson and later went to Paterson, N. J., where he managed a store. Returning to Buffalo, he was again with Anderson until the opening of the present store. That Mr. Sangster believes in the big show, the picture proves. The store is located in a busy section of the city, but far from the real business center. By hard work and keeping a fine stock and showing it off to advantage he has built up a nice business. Mr. Sangster is also active in the local Florists' Club and takes an interest in everything for the good of the trade. R. A. S.

A TRIP TO RICHMOND.

November 7 some forty members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana journeyed over to Richmond to visit the several greenhouse establishments there. One of the fast Pennsylvania trains, with special orders to stop at Easthaven, covered the 70 miles in less than two hours and deposited us right at the doors of the E. G. Hill Co. establishment, where the day's visiting began. There were also present a number of men from nearby towns and several from Cincinnati and other Ohio points, making a total in the party of well over fifty.



At the Hill place there was a great deal to be seen and all eyes were wide open as the party walked through house after house of well grown stock. There were hundreds of thousands of young plants of roses and geraniums and a few other varieties of plants, but we noticed that the lines now grown have narrowed down to only a limited number of species and a limited number of varieties of each species. Where formerly the collection of geraniums comprised hundreds of varieties, now there are only a dozen or so. More of each variety was considered preferable to a long list of varieties.

In carnations there are benches of the best varieties grown for bloom, Pink Delight leading all others in quantity. Then there is bench after bench of plants cut back for cuttings and, if this firm does not fill all its orders for carnation cuttings this year, it will surely be because of a phenomenal call for them. Propagating has already begun. White Wonder is making a great record as a bloomer.

In roses there are many interesting things to be seen. All the Killarneys are present and there are several. It looks to me as though this sport racket is being run a little strong. Pretty soon there will be as many Killarney sports as there are rose growers, and many of them will show little to merit distinction after leaving their homes. Rose Queen looks well and should prove a valuable forcing variety. Melody and Lady Hillingdon are both here on trial, but by far the finest thing in a yellow rose is the grand new variety Sunburst, which is to be disseminated in the spring. This yellow rose is so distinct from any variety I have ever seen and so far in advance in quality that there is really no comparison between it and any other yellow rose I know of. The long stem holds the bloom erect and the bloom is exquisitely beautiful in all stages. A few blooms on long canes were allowed to open up for the occasion, to show its beauty when full blown. As Mr. Totty would say it: "Believe me, there will be a big sale on this variety during the next few years."

In mums there were both exhibition and commercial blooms in great variety and quantity. To mention all would be an endless task, so we will be content with noting only the two long benches of T. Eaton and Yellow Eaton, and the hundreds of varieties of pompons and singles.

The next place visited was that owned by George R. Gause. Being just opposite beautiful Earlham cemetery, Mr. Gause enjoys a splendid plant and cut flower business, both for the cemetery and in the city. All the stock here is in tiptop shape. A large variety is grown, from roses to bedding plants, and all were in good shape. Mrs. Gause is considered one of the ablest artists in making up work in eastern Indiana, and her work is always one of the features at the Richmond flower shows.

Next we visited the Chas. Knopf Floral Co., and here we found things in apple-pie order, as usual. Carnations are the principal crop grown here. Again we found Pink Delight outnumbering all others, and in quality it lacked nothing. White Enchantress seems to be the favorite white, though White Wonder bids fair to divide honors with it in future seasons. A house of Killarneys is in fine shape. We noticed on one end of a bench about 100 plants of a seedling which looks pretty fine; of Killarney blood, you may be sure, but a better color and a rank grower. A house of early mums was all cut and gone.

The next stop was made at Fred H. Lemon's place. After moving away many of the houses to the west side, the Hill company left Mr. Lemon a fine lot of glass. He uses the houses for growing for the retail trade, which Mr. Lemon has taken up. A high grade of stock is grown here and in great variety. A 400-foot house of carnations and another, the same size, of roses, are in fine condition. Mr. Lemon conducts a retail store downtown and finds it both profitable and convenient.

Just across from Lemon's place is located E. C. Ruch, with about 15,000 feet of glass. Here, too, is grown stock for retailing. A fine house of single violets was seen and carnations are looking good.

A splendid dinner was served at the Hill place, and automobiles were used in going from place to place.

GLADIOLUS TOPICS.

In The Review for October 5 I notice what Mrs. A. H. Austin has to say about gladioli with variegated leaves. I have noticed the same thing, but never have found these striped sorts to run from one season to another. I should judge it is an indication of some infirmity in the stock; possibly a lack of suitable nourishment in the portion of the leaf where the white or light-colored division exists. I hardly think we need a permanently fixed variegated gladiolus; we grow them for their flowers and not for any ornamentation their foliage affords.

If this fine flower were planted more extensively than it is, then a variegated or other colored-leaved sort might be worked into beds of this flower to advantage. There are several varieties having more or less red showing on the stems; but none, so far as I have been able to find, are of any advantage to the gardener or florist. One sort, said to be colored-stemmed, sent me by the originator last spring for trial, proved to be only ordinary with me; there was not sufficient color to attract attention to it over the general run of such flowers. I believe that with proper selection and breeding some desirable sorts in this line may be produced. Usually many of the deep red varieties show a reddish stem, but they are not a bit more ornamental on that account than if they were just every-day, plain, ordinary green.

Mentioning red gladioli reminds me that while the trade in the east seems to prefer light-colored varieties, out here on the Pacific coast it is almost the reverse. With the exception of such a fine light sort as America, there seems to be little demand for lights here in the autumn. I believe this is owing largely to the fact that during this time of the year there is a dearth of red flowers; we have yellows, pinks, whites and blues galore in an abundance of fall flowers. The gladiolus is the best flower we have that stands cutting in the hot weather, yet it is not so popular as it should be. To some extent this is owing to the high price at which it is held by the general run of florists.

Another reason why red is called for so much is, I believe, because a large portion of our homes are finished off in a natural state in our native redwood. With this finish almost any of the shades of red, as well as red itself, harmonizes. The stately appearance of gladiolus flowers of the shades mentioned lends an enchantment to homes finished in the way mentioned.

I had a letter from an eastern gladiolus grower last week in which he spoke well of Gladiolus Mrs. Francis King, but lamented the fact that it too often came with crooked stems with him. This it does here, too, when it has not been liberally supplied with water. It should also be planted deeply. But with me the crooked stems have been a decided advantage. Flower dealers will soon come to want a fair proportion of the spikes crooked; they work in well in decorating. In one lot I sent to a dealer there were a good many such misshaped stalks; every one of them was picked out by a discriminating purchaser. I saw them afterward in the office window of a large contracting concern. They made a most attractive show and were admired by all who passed by. I believe if all these spikes had been straight and stiff they would not have received more than a passing glance. In a room the artistic effect would have been even more pronounced. Possibly with many of the Lemoinei, which are noted for their propensity to run to crooked stems, the effect would not be so good, unless the varieties were of the larger flowered sorts of this race of gladioli.

I have been asked for the name of what I consider the best early white gladiolus, The Bride, Shakespeare, Snowbank, May, Augusta and the like not to be considered. Of course, we here, in this California climate, can have early gladioli long before they would open outdoors in the east. Out of a score of whites grown here by me during the last season, I found the earliest to be an unnamed one produced by A. E. Kunderd. It is one of his plain-petaled sorts. For a truly magnificent white of grand form and substance, his new ruffled variety named after his wife is the best I ever saw. The flower is much larger than Snowbank or Reine Blanche. Alice Carey is a splendid white, but I do not like the way it sets on the stem; I am afraid it will prevent its ever being a good sort for florists.

Mentioning Kunderd's new varieties reminds me that he has several other good whites, but not equal in my estimation to the grand ruffled named. One is a ruffled, but I think the stem too short for anything but bedding purposes. He has a white with blush edges that is a free bloomer, as many as ten or a dozen flowers being out at a time, which makes it desirable for many uses in florists' work. He has a beautiful pink variety that equals in some respects that magnificent French sort, Sans Pareil. For this country it has greater vigor and reproductive proclivities to recommend it to our trade. For cutting it has no equal among the pink varieties.

I am something of a crank on reds, although I am fond of many of the other colors as well; in fact, I like all the fine sorts. But of reds I have made quite a study. And yet, for our climate, I have not found a red that I must say I thoroughly like. Perhaps I am too hard to please. Kunderd has some good ones. What P. O. Coblentz put out as No. 312 as one of our freest and surest bloomers. Sometimes, however, it seems to lose color in our hot sun; then, sometimes, the stem does not grow upright. It is a grand flower and a good seller as a cut flower. I am glad it is about to get a permanent name. I have grown it several years. R. E. Huntington, of Painesville, O., catalogued it a year or two ago and called it Grenadier; so, also, I believe, did Storrs & Harrison, of the same place. Some other names have been applied to it, but I believe a number of dealers have united on Grenadier as the future name of what Coblentz sent out as No. 312. I think, however, that Red Chief would be better, although the one pitched upon is good and distinctive.

The peer of all red or scarlet gladioli is unquestionably Princeps, but it is not entirely suitable for florists' use. A new one just being sent out by the Kirchhoffer people, of Pembroke, N. Y., is the swellest thing out. Princeps colors are there in full force, but it has the advantage of having a better arranged flower, although it is not so large. It has much the form of America, and, perhaps, generally speaking, is as large. I understand that it will be some years yet before the stock will be sufficiently large to allow of its general use in the trade. I have tried over a dozen forms and they did splendidly here. The hot sun did not burn the petals, as is too often the case with the reds.

ANTIRRHINUMS.

It is really wonderful the way antirrhinums have advanced in popular favor the last few years. Growers unacquainted with them until quite recently are now growing them in quantity and find them a profitable crop. The main trouble, with many florists, still is that they will persist in planting mixed colors in shades which are not wanted in the market. This is utterly wrong. Of course, at Memorial day about any shade will sell, but at other seasons a few special colors only are wanted. Bright pink is always a seller. Pure white, yellow and scarlet are other selling colors. Once having secured a really good type, it is best to hold on to it, propagating from the shoots, which are plentifully carried on the flowering stems. These root readily in sand, like carnations, and any put in now and grown on will give a strong spring crop. The sale for rooted cuttings should not be overlooked. There is a strong and growing demand for these and it is not confined to any one section of the country.

Many of the mums, in fact all but the late ones, are now cut and there are few better paying succession crops than snapdragons, to give them their common name. The old mum soil need not be renewed. Give it a heavy coating of cow or sheep manure, spade it over well and you can grow splendid antirrhinums in it. If strong spikes are desired it is necessary to disbud the shoots and leave only a small number to a plant. Of course it is necessary to get rather fancy prices for these, and such prices are only obtainable in the big markets. For supports, wires and cross strings, such as are used for carnations, answer well. It is necessary to always keep the stalks erect; once allow them to get bent and they are valueless.

The early batch is now in heavy crop, and in spite of the avalanche of chrysanthemums is selling well. An effort should now be made to hold a large cut for Thanksgiving, when prices should materially advance. A mulch of old manure and occasional doses of liquid will now be of benefit to this early crop.

WIENHOEBER'S EXHIBITION.

One of the best ways of winning trade for a flower store is to hold an exhibition and invite the attendance of those who should be flower buyers. When the people are shown, not only the flowers, but the ways in which they are or can be used, the results, if not immediate, are certain.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., Chicago, holds a private show at its store, not every year, but just infrequently enough so that the novelty will not wear off. No newspaper advertising is done, but engraved invitations are sent to the company's list of patrons and to others in that section of the city who are thought to possess the appreciative taste which would make them desirable customers for a flower store that puts quality and service above price. These Wienhoeber shows always are so good that the attendance is assured.

For the exhibition held November 8 to 10 the show house along the street front was curtained and roofed with green cloth as a background for a decoration of wild smilax, and in this room two round and two long dinner tables were set, with all napery. The decorations were strikingly different on each table and were changed daily. In the store itself a velvet-covered frame was built in front of the large mirror before which the special displays always are staged, and here orchids principally were used. All other sides of the store were made attractive with vases and baskets of the best cut flowers the market affords, each arranged for decorative effect and to show some special use for that particular flower.

Above the store are the rooms made famous by the occupancy of Richard Mansfield. Since Mansfield's death these rooms have been used for the large stock of pottery, baskets and supplies, customers never tiring of visiting them, often bringing friends. In the living room a buffet table was set, with appropriate decorations elsewhere throughout the suite. Some of the illustrations in this issue show details of the decorations.

ORANGES IN TUBS.

I have about fifty orange trees in tubs, from five to fifteen feet high, and they bloomed heavily, but only a few set fruit. Please give me some advice. What temperature is the best for them? I never have grown any before and when I took charge of this place they were full of mealy bug and scale. I washed them several times with heavy soap suds, but they still are on the trees. I should like to inquire about a gas which is used in the nurseries for fumigating trees and shrubs; also if there will be no danger for the plants, where to get it, and how to use it.

C. B.

While oranges can be wintered in a house just clear of freezing, they succeed best when given a minimum winter temperature of 50 degrees, increasing this 5 to 10 degrees when the plants start to grow, usually early in March. In winter they do not require much water, but should never be allowed to get actually dry. During the growing season, they should have copious supplies of water and liquid manure in addition. While they are in flower, discontinue syringing, or the fruit will not set so well. A suitable compost is one consisting of coarse, fibrous loam, crushed bones not smaller than quarter-inch size, with some old plaster or burnt mortar added. Cow or horse manure are better not used except in liquid form or for top-dressings. Syringe twice or thrice a day from March till October; then less frequently. Prune back any lanky trees. If kept warm and well sprayed, they will soon break away again. Be sure to provide the plants with good drainage.

While mealy bug can be largely controlled by a force of water and cleaned out by spraying with such insecticides as Aphine and kerosene emulsion, which should not be used however while the plants have tender growths, and while the larger scales can also be killed by these and some other insecticides, the surest method of extermination is hydrocyanic acid gas. This is especially necessary if you have the San Jose scale. This is a most deadly gas and must be used with the greatest of care, as its effects are quickly fatal on human beings as well as plant pests. Many articles have appeared on this gas in past numbers of The Review, but we would advise you to use the following formula, which we have proved effective. For each thousand cubic feet of air space, use two ounces of cyanide of potassium, best grade procurable, and six ounces each of water and sulphuric acid. To find cubic area of your shed or house, multiply length by breadth and this by average height; thus, a house 50x12x8 would contain 4,800 cubic feet and would need approximately five times the amount given for 1,000 feet. Use earthenware jars. Just pour in the acid; then add the water, after which drop in the cyanide wrapped in oil paper and get out of the house as fast as possible. Lock the door and be sure that no one is allowed to enter again that night. See that ventilators are tightly closed. Choose a cold night for the operation. In the morning open the doors and ventilators wide. Syringe well. All bugs and scales should be deceased. If any show signs of life, apply a second dose a few weeks later. Don't trust the fumigation to assistants. Do it yourself and keep any cyanide securely locked up.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Azaleas.

If not already placed in heat, no time must be lost in getting any azaleas wanted for the holidays in a warm, moist house. Some varieties flower early with little forcing and it is always possible to get a fair number for Thanksgiving. Among whites, the well known Deutsche Perle holds first place. Mme. Petrick, double pink, is excellent, as are Simon Mardner and the old variegated, Vervæneana.

The dwarf varieties are great sellers at Christmas. Foremost among these is Hexe, sometimes called Firefly. This is the best selling shade for the holidays and should be more largely grown. It must be pushed right along to flower it on time. Plants carried over from last year and planted out in the field, where they were kept well hosed over, are already flowering, several weeks in advance of the imported Belgian stock. Keep the plants sprayed over freely until the flowers are opening and, when a fair number of flowers are open, remove to a cooler house. A night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees should be given and rub out any young growths the plants may make.

Camellias.

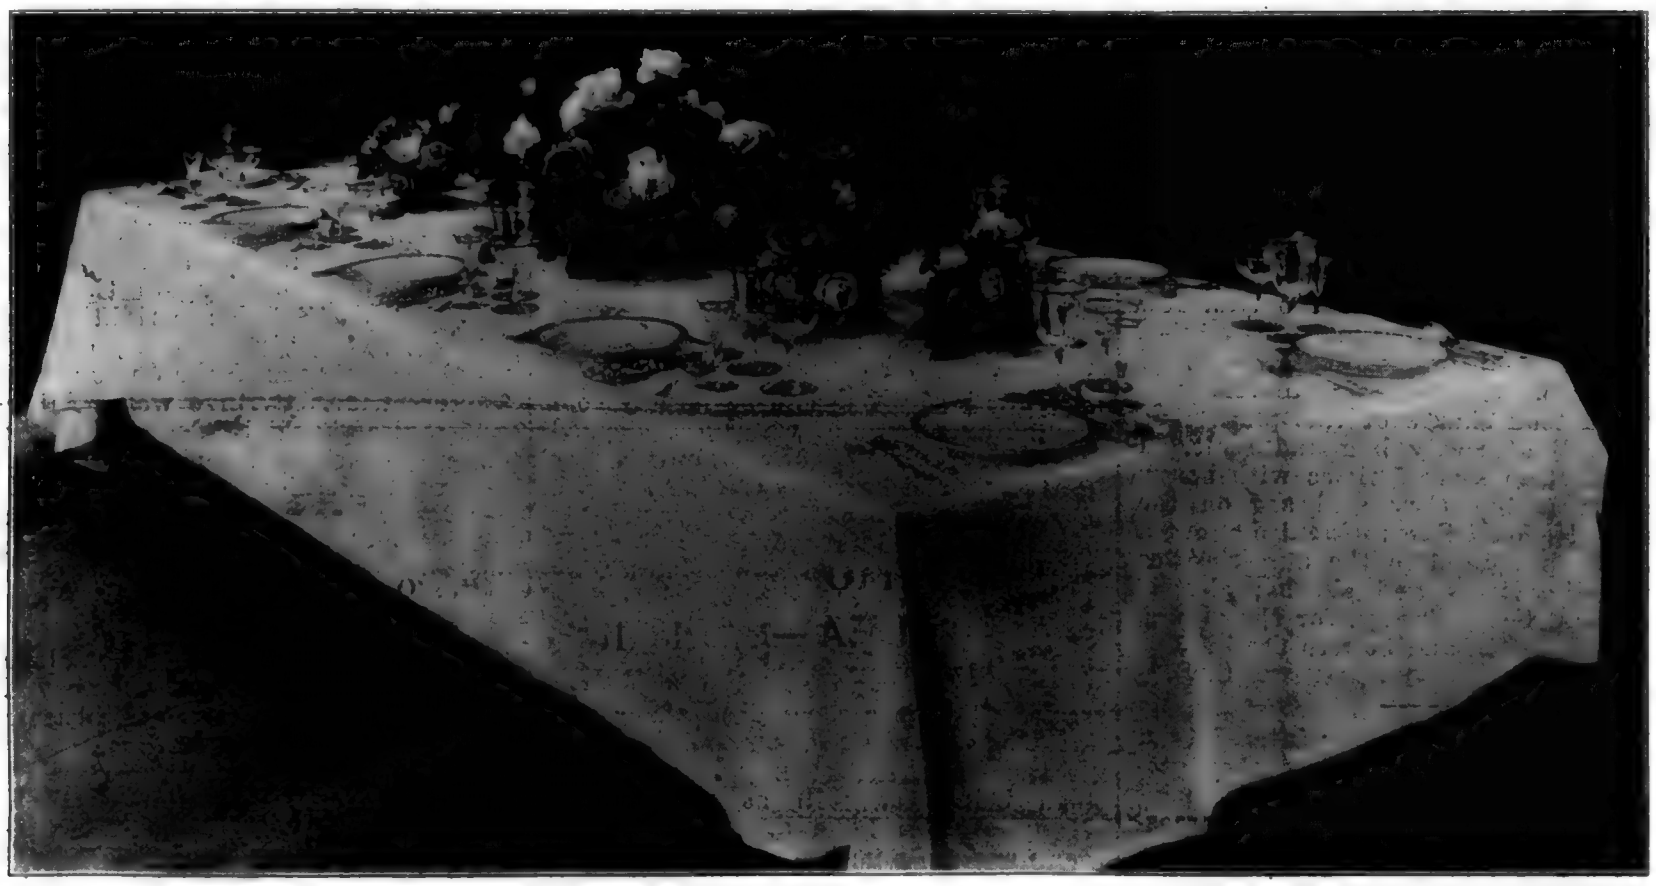
Camellias are steadily growing in favor and sell especially well at Christmas. They cannot be forced in the same way as azaleas, or most of the buds will fall. Give them a light, sunny house, a temperature not in excess of 50 degrees at night, and the majority of them should have a few flowers open. If the plants are heavily budded, rub off some of the smaller and weaker buds to turn more strength into the others.

Spiræas.

The spiræas, or astilbes, are now coming to hand. Do not attempt to force these at once, as only failure will result. After unpacking soak well in a tub of water, as the clumps usually get well dried out in transit. Keep them in a coldframe and leave the sashes off until they get several good freezings. Spiræa plants are now seen in flower at Christmas. These, however, are grown from retarded clumps and are not new importations. In potting spiræas use a rich soil and use pots into which the clumps can be just conveniently fitted. Little can be gained from forcing spiræas before Christmas, but after getting a few freezings, pot them and they will make considerable roots before you start them.

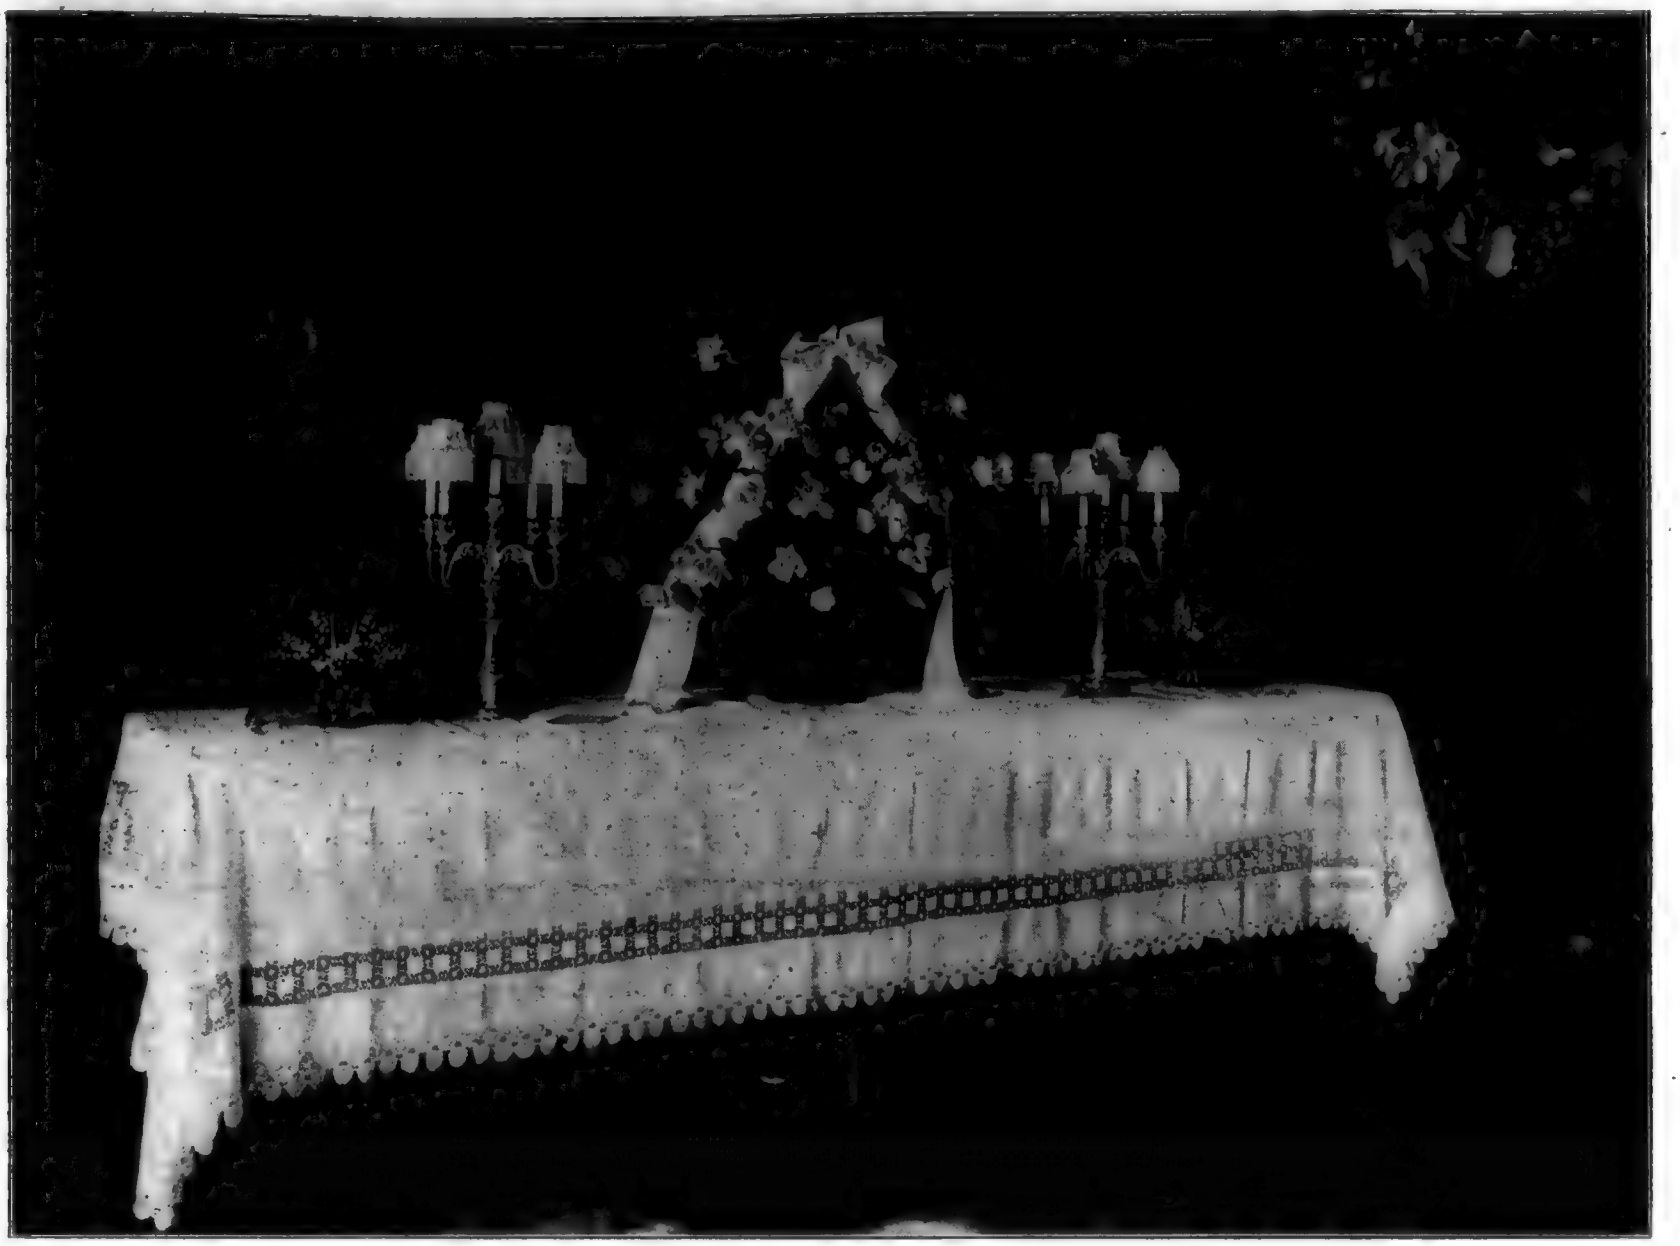
Cyclamens.

Many cyclamens already are blooming quite nicely and we will have quite a lot of salable ones for Thanksgiving. Do not grow your plants too warm in an effort to flower them early. It will only mean plants with long, weak flower stems, which will topple over every time you move them. The night temperature is better kept down to 50 degrees, and 55 degrees should only be used in extreme cases. Keep the plants as close up to the glass as possible. They will need no shade now. Those standing in a shady house and some distance from the glass will become drawn. A properly grown cyclamen should have a perfect circle of foliage, which partly hides the pot, and the flower stems should all stand up rigidly. The pots being now full of roots, give doses of weak liquid manure twice a week, or a top-dressing of Clay's once in ten days. Plants which it is intended to hold back until February or March must have a cold house; 40 degrees at night will be found ample for them.



Marguerites.

Marguerite plants which are flowering should be kept well fed. They are better somewhat cramped at the roots in winter. A large root run is not conducive to floriferousness. Such as are being grown for Easter should be kept potted along and pinched for some weeks yet. Marguerites prefer a cool house, but will stand a carnation temperature. To produce nice, bushy plants, however, specialists prefer to grow them moderately cool. The old plants carried over in coldframes or lifted from the field are such as we get our winter crop of flowers from. In this connection, special mention should be made of the new double white Queen Alexandra variety, Mrs. F. Sander. This is proving a most satisfactory winter flowering sort.



Bulbous Stock.

Batches of both Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths should be brought into heat every week or ten days. There is no trouble in having an abundant supply of Paper Whites for Thanksgiving, but the Romans come on rather more slowly. Now is a suitable time to place a good batch in a warm house for flowering at Christmas. The flats should now be well matted with roots and the tops started a couple of inches. It is, of course, an advantage to be able to give them a cool house for a few days before cutting the flowers.

French Trumpet Major, and Empress, and some of the La Reine tulips, should now be in a condition to house, and, provided they are sufficiently rooted and started, should give some Christmas flowers. Many cannot be expected this early and it is doubtful if there is much money in them even at double the usual prices.

See that other batches of bulbs, whether in cellars, frames or outdoors, are well supplied with water. The upper soil may seem damp and that below be quite dry. Many bulb failures are due to too little moisture at the roots now. Where the bulbs are being stored outdoors, care must be taken not to allow them to get more than a few degrees of frost. As severe weather may come at any time, it is well to have protective material at hand to cover them when needed.

Spanish iris and Gladiolus nanus which are nicely started can be placed in a cool house, also a batch of any of the yellow, sweet-scented jonquils, which naturally flower early and are useful for retailing florists.

The Compost Pile.

Before freezing up weather arrives an ample supply of fibrous loam should be stacked, layered with well rotted cow or horse manure. The turf can be plowed lightly, which is much easier than attempting to cut it by hand. This compost will not, of course, be ready to use until next year. Provision should be made to get a good supply of loam, leaf-mold, well decayed cow manure, sand and other potting necessities under cover as soon as possible. It is disagreeable trying to secure any of these when once winter has grimly shut down on us, but every June we notice some of our brother florists who are lazy in this respect.

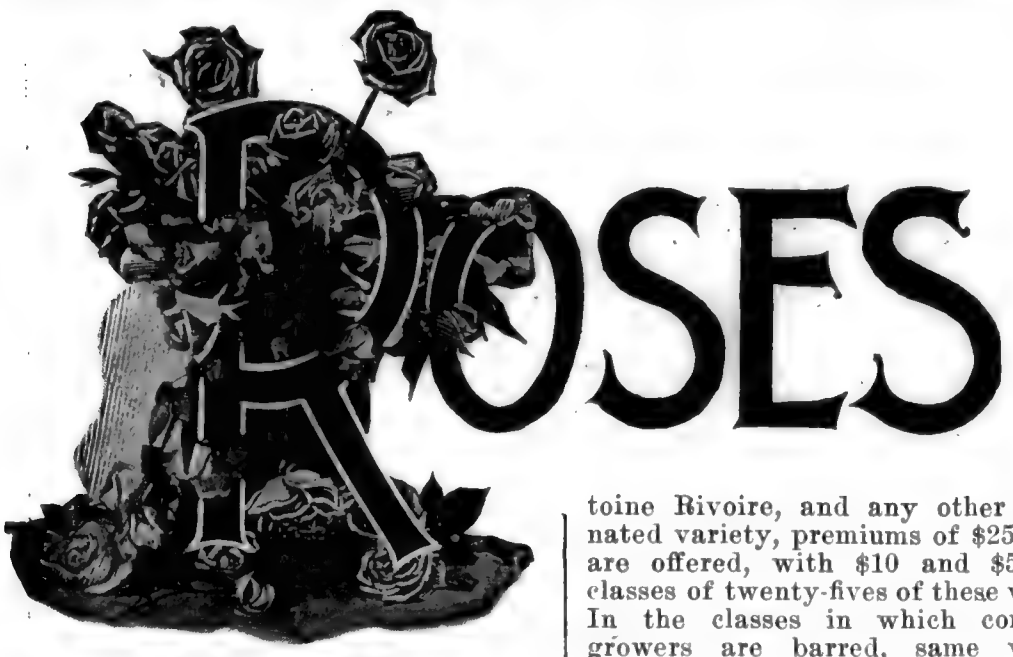
THAT LETTER-HEAD.

At the risk of wearying some of its readers, The Review has iterated and reiterated the injunction: "Use a printed letter-head; it's unbusinesslike to do without one." Wholesalers, especially seedsmen who cater to growers' mail orders, appreciate that thousands and thousands of florists write on paper that does not show the buyer to be entitled to trade prices; in fact, that leads to exactly the opposite presumption. It is because so many fail to realize the importance of the appearance of an order that The Review purposes to keep after the neglectful ones until they wake up to the fact that they stand in their own light.

The following is reprinted from an advertisement of a paper manufacturer, as showing the importance of a well gotten up letter-head:

"Build your business on your letter-head. It's a bigger power than you think. It has started many a successful concern. It is helping to develop many another. You may regard it as a mere detail of correspondence. Wake up! It's a good deal more than that. It's one of the biggest things in commerce.

"Our paper used in letter-head, pamphlet, circular and brochure is extending the influence of every firm that uses it. It is creating splendid impressions wherever there is a buyer. It is an index of character. It is strong in dignity and refinement. It indicates aggressiveness, progress and style. It arouses the same admiration as a stylish woman or a well-groomed man. It will strengthen your advertising campaign.



"What kind of a letter-head do you expect from your banker, your broker, your insurance man, your department store, your furrier, your tailor, your jeweler? If it isn't dignified or rich you are shocked. If they send you cheap-looking, poorly-printed matter you are pained. You are bound to get the idea that they are going back."

THE USE OF LIME WATER.

Please give me some information about the advantages and disadvantages of the use of lime water for watering plants. W. G.

The use of lime water is advisable when there are slugs, eelworms or insect larvæ of any kind in the soil. It is also helpful if the soil is of an acid nature, as some plants do not thrive under acid conditions. There is no particular disadvantage in using lime water, except the extra work. Most of this extra work can be avoided if air-slaked lime is mixed with the soil when it is being prepared, which will do away with the necessity of using lime water.

New Haven, Conn.—Plans have been drawn for a handsome new residence for William Slocombe, the Townsend avenue florist.

RAMBLER ROSES.

Now is a good time to dig up and pot a batch of rambler roses. These will not force quite so well early in the season, nor will they produce as fine trusses of flowers as those carried over summer in pots or tubs, but they will make nice plants and will flower particularly well if lifted without delay and kept cool for some time, so that the roots may become fairly active before forcing commences. Some of the roses will, no doubt, carry too many shoots for practical purposes. Cut away the weaker ones; from three to five are ample for each plant. Pot firmly. Use a good compost of loam and cow manure, to which some fine bone may be added with advantage. It should be possible to leave them outdoors a short time yet. When housed they can be laid on their sides if need be, and stacked quite closely, to economize space. If severe weather seems likely, use some littery manure or leaves among the pots, to prevent breakages from frost.

If you are purchasing your plants, do not get too many Crimson Ramblers. People are rather tiring of this pioneer in its class. The pinks, such as Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon and Lady Gay; reds, such as Hiawatha and Delight, and the white Dorothy Perkins will all be found grand sellers; and do not forget the so-called Baby Ramblers, now procurable in scarlet, pink and pure white; these make neat pot plants and sell well. It is rather early yet to pot up any of the hybrid perpetuals; wait until the leaves fall from them.

ROSE SOCIETY PREMIUMS.

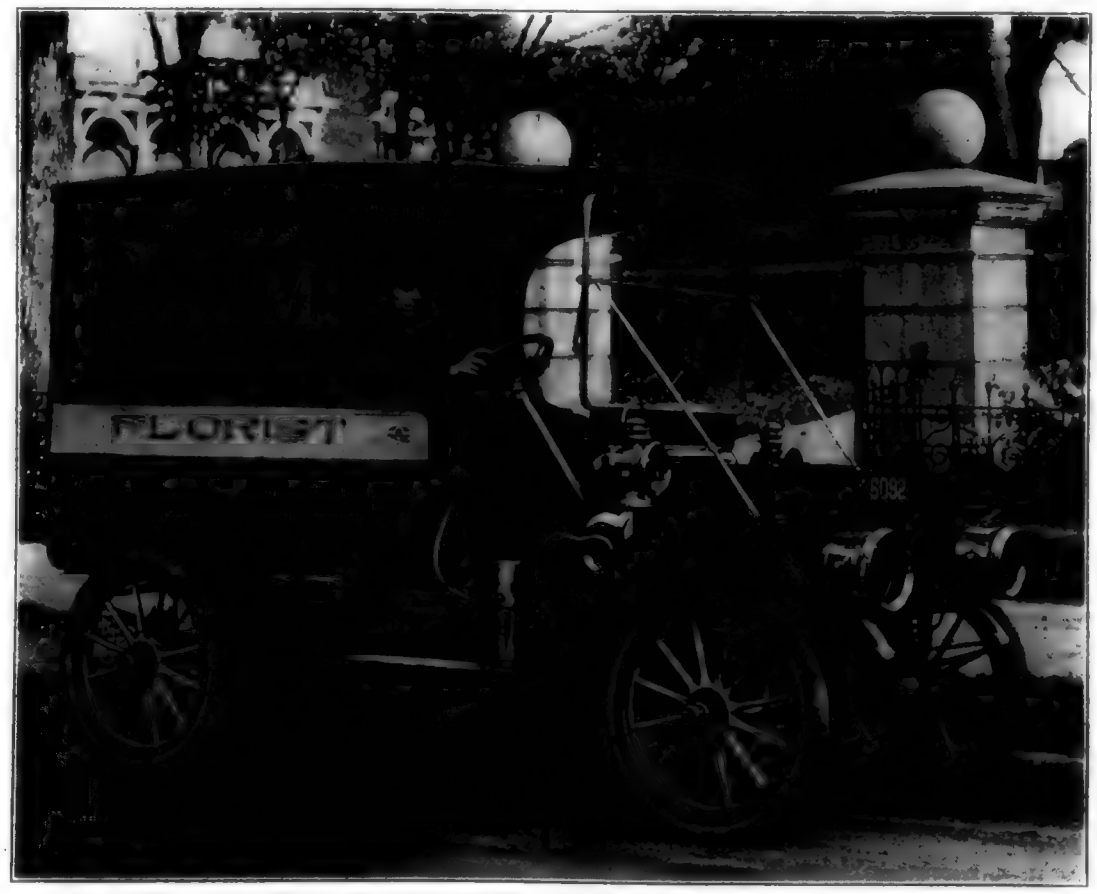
The American Rose Society has issued a premium list for the Detroit exhibition in January, the big feature of which is a class for "best display of cut roses covering not less than 200 square feet of space and not to contain less than 200 blooms, quality of blooms and effect to be considered, and decorative green of any kind, including plants, permitted. First prize, $150; second prize, $100; third prize, $75."

For fifty Beauties premiums of $50, $30 and $20 are offered, with half these sums for twenty-five Beauties.

For fifty each of Killarney, Dark Pink Killarney, Double Pink Killarney, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Richmond, My Maryland, Mrs. Jardine, La Detroit, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon, Melody, Radiance, Rose Queen, Prince de Bulgarie or Antoine Rivoire, and any other disseminated variety, premiums of $25 and $15 are offered, with $10 and $5 in the classes of twenty-fives of these varieties. In the classes in which commercial growers are barred, same varieties, twelve blooms, the premiums are $4 and $2.

For the best rose not in commerce, fifty blooms, $50 and $25 is offered.

The retailers' prizes for the best and most artistic display of cut roses, and with such accessories as the exhibitor may desire, are $100, $50, $25.



The S. A. F. medals and the Dorrance trophy will be awarded, and many special prizes are expected to be offered before the date of the show.

COST OF DELIVERY.

The accompanying illustration of the delivery car used by Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., is of interest because it is a touring car rebuilt in a local shop, with a body suitable for a florist's use, and especially because of the saving in cost Mr. Baum has been able to effect by its use.

"Delivery is a big item in our business," says Mr. Baum, "and we find the best advertisement is to get our goods out on time and in proper condition. We can do this with less expense with this auto than we could before. Our delivery expense before we used the automobile was $3.50 per day, and sometimes more, using horse and wagon, messenger boy and the street cars, which was not only unsatisfactory but slow. Since installing this car our expense has been cut in half. Our greenhouses are five miles from the store and all stock is brought from the greenhouses every morning to the store in fifteen to twenty minutes, thereby saving a great deal of time. We have built a garage in the rear of the store; in fact, in the store, for there is just a partition between the workroom and garage, which is fireproof. To show the great help it is to us, the first week we had our car we were called on to deliver a casket blanket and several other large designs to a funeral twelve miles in the country and made the round trip in two hours and fifteen minutes, over a rough dirt road. The same trip would have taken eight to ten hours with a horse and wagon. The car was a five-passenger touring Reo which we made over into a delivery car. The work was all done in our local shops and the cost to us, including the car and the work we had done on it, was only $700. As all parts that were worn have been replaced with new ones, we consider that this truck will give us just as long service as one the factories are turning out now. Up to the present we are the only florists in this section who have a delivery automobile; in fact, this is the only car in our city like this one and we have had several calls from the grocers and dry goods stores asking about our car, with the intention of installing one like it."

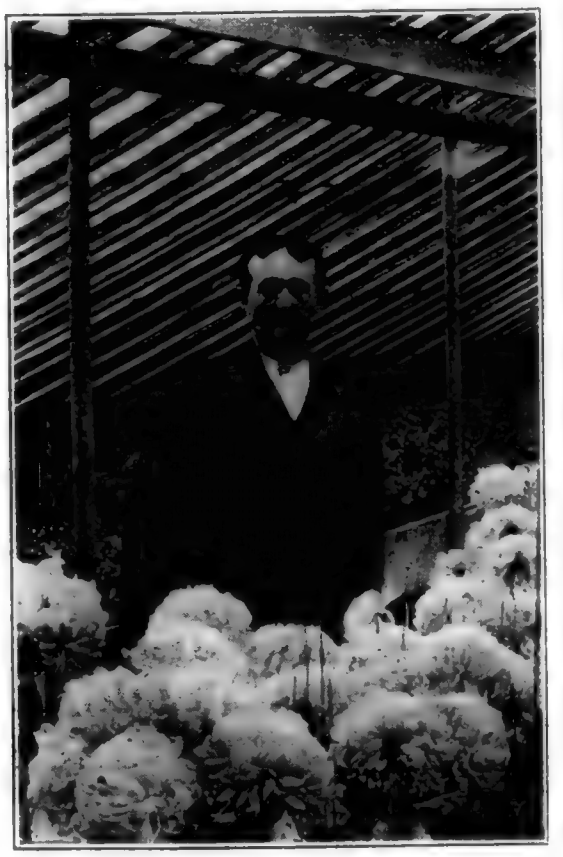
CHRYSANTHEMUMS

BEST VARIETIES AT NEW YORK.

Some notes on the varieties of mums that won premiums at the eightieth annual fair of the American Institute, New York, will be of interest. The quality of the exhibits has never been surpassed.

In the first class, for twenty-five blooms of one variety, Wm. Vert, gardener to Howard Gould, Port Washington, L. I., scored first with F. E. Nash, conceded the finest flowers in the exhibition. Other exhibitors in this class were Robert Spiers, gardener to Mrs. John E. Parsons, Lenox, Mass., who had splendid examples of Mrs. J. C. Neil; Alex. MacKenzie, gardener to Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, L. I., whose R. E. Felton were something to be long remembered.



In the class for thirty blooms, one of each variety, George Middleton, gardener to Wm. Rockefeller, Tarrytown, N. Y., was first. His collection included excellent examples of Mrs. David Syme, Rose Pockett, Mrs. H. Stevens, Brighthurst, C. H. Totty, Mrs. H. Partridge, Wells' Late Pink and Mrs. J. C. Neil. Wm. Vert was second, his finest flowers being W. Woodmason, Leslie Morrison, Wm. Duckham, Pockett's Crimson, F. E. Nash, Howard Gould and Kara Dow. Wm. Turner, gardener to M. C. D. Borden, Oceanic, N. J., had an exhibit in this class that would easily score first in ninety-nine per cent of the exhibitions of the country. His blooms included splendid examples of W. Mease, Mrs. J. E. Dunne, Wm. Turner and Mrs. David Syme.

In the class for twenty varieties, one bloom each, Mr. Middleton was again first, his finest flowers being Hon. Mrs. Lopes, Mrs. Partridge, Pockett's Crimson and C. H. Totty. Robert Spiers scored second, his best blooms being W. M. Moir, W. Woodmason, Frank Payne and Mrs. J. C. Neil.

In the class calling for ten varieties, one bloom of each, Mr. Middleton again scored first, his best flowers being Mrs. H. Stevens, Hon. Mrs. Lopes, Mrs. Syme and Mary Mason. Ewen MacKenzie, gardener to Miss Iselin, scored second with beautifully finished blooms of Rose Pockett, Mrs. J. Dunne, Mrs. J. C. Neil, Mary Mason and Leslie Morrison as his finest flowers.

In the class calling for ten white Wm. Vert scored first with beautiful Beatrice May. The same exhibitor scored first in ten pink with magnificent flowers of Wm. Duckham. For ten yellow John Everitt, gardener to J. T. Pratt, Glen Cove, L. I., was first with possibly the finest flowers of Mary Donnellan that have ever been exhibited. Wm. Turner was second with Cheltoni. For ten crimson, Mr. Turner was first with Pockett's Crimson. Mr. Everitt scored first for ten bronze, with Mary Mason that were a revelation of the possibilities of this variety. Ten blooms in variety was won by Mr. Vert, his best examples being F. E. Nash, Wm. Turner, Pockett's Crimson and Wm. Duckham.

For six white John T. Burns, gardener to Miss C. A. Bliss, New Canaan, Conn., scored first with Syme, Mr. Vert coming second with the same variety. For six pink Mr. Vert scored first with Duckham, and Geo. Hale, gardener to E. D. Adams, Seabright, N. J., second with the same variety. For six yellow Wm. Turner got first with Mary Donnellan, J. T. Burns coming second with the same variety. For six crimson Mr. Turner scored first with Pockett's Crimson, and it is a notable fact that this variety was head and shoulders above any other crimson in the exhibition. For six bronze Mr. Turner scored first with Glenview.

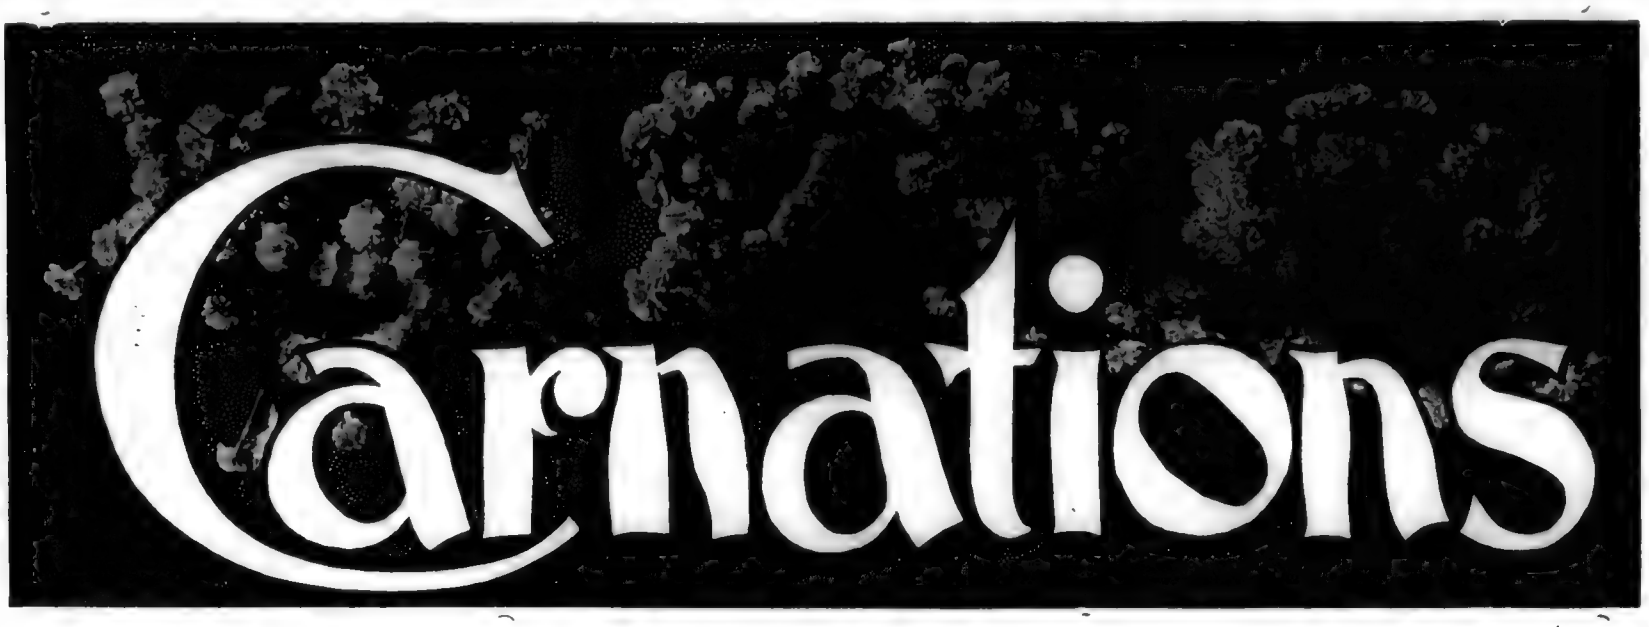
In the class for six blooms Japanese incurved, white, the spectacular blooms of the show were exhibited. These were staged by Alex. Robertson, gardener for E. H. Wells, Montclair, N. J., the variety being Wm. Turner, and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that these were the finest flowers that have ever been staged at the Institute and possibly anywhere in the country. This variety is destined to make its way. It is a greatly improved Merza, differing not so much from that variety save in the fact that it is much larger; it has the same incurving petal and is snow white. It was unanimously decided by all present that this exhibit was the finest vase in the entire exhibition, ranking in the same class with Nash. Mr. Robertson also scored an easy first for six yellow with F. S. Vallis. Other splendid exhibits were six W. Woodmason, exhibited by Mr. Vert, and six Ramapo by Carl D. Schafer, Tuxedo, N. Y. Chas. H. Totty staged vases of F. T. Quittenton, Wm. Turner, Felton and several seedlings, including F-65, afterwards named Annie L. Angus; F-91, named Mrs. Harry Turner, and G-26, named Mrs. Peter Duff. The same exhibitor also staged some 150 varieties of singles, pompons and outdoor kinds. The finest singles included Sylvia Slade, deep crimson with a white zone; Mrs. Sam Atanton, a lovely light pink; Miss Hilda Wells, crimson with a white zone; Miss Mary Pope, possibly the best of the novelties, a lovely light pink, and Alexander Rowbottom, a splendid white.



In the specimen plant classes Peter Duff, gardener to Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, Orange, N. J., scored first all through. His specimen white was Lady Lydia, his yellow Mrs. R. Hooper Pearson, and his finest standard, which was a splendid example of the craftsman's art, was Garza. In the class for six plants, one variety, Harry Turner, superintendent for S. Untermyer, Yonkers, won first with Mrs. David Syme.

Taking the show as a whole, the striking feature was that there was not a single flower of Col. Appleton staged in the yellow classes. T. Eaton and Yellow Eaton were alike conspicuous by their absence. This possibly might have been accounted for in the case of the two latter by their not being ready, but it does not explain the passing away of Appleton from the exhibitions. F. E. Nash, as an American seedling, was par excellence, but outside of this American varieties were poorly represented. Merza must certainly give place to Wm. Turner as the exhibition white, and it would seem as though Wells' prediction that Turner will displace Syme will be fulfilled another year, when the former variety is more generally distributed.

C. H. Totty.

A WISCONSIN FLORIST.

The accompanying illustration shows N. Greivelding among his chysanthemums in his range at Merrill, Wis. Mr. Greivelding was born in Luxemburg, a province of Belgium, and came to this country in the spring of 1892. He worked in the greenhouses of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., at La Crosse, for seven months and then started in business for himself at Sparta, with only one greenhouse. At the end of five years he sold out to Miss Miriam Jewett and moved to Merrill, where he built two houses. After three years, he sold the ground to the county and bought near the city hall.

PROPAGATING.

The Necessary Preparations.

While it is yet too early to propagate your next season's general stock of carnations, yet it is not too early to give the matter some attention. A few things you will be sure to need, and if you propose to have as good results as can be had, you should not wait until the time for putting in the cuttings is right upon you.

You will need a cutting bench if you do not possess a propagating house. Many of us do not possess such a house, and I doubt seriously whether we are not just as well off as those who do. I have always considered these specially built propagating houses as a good deal of a joke. Those who own them do not have greater success in propagating than many who use just a good, clean bench or house. The joke is that they are usually built small and are unfit to grow much in except small stock, and when, for one reason or another, the grower decides to propagate in one of the larger houses, the small one is unfit to use for the crop which formerly grew where propagating is to be done.

The Bench and Its Location.

So, if you do not possess a propagating house, do not despair. Select a bench—a raised one, of course—where you can easily keep off the sunlight and where you can control the drafts. This is usually more easily done on side benches, as they are farther away from the ventilators. There should be one or two heating pipes under the bench, to keep the sand warmer than it would likely be at times without bottom heat. This should not be overdone, however, as too much bottom heat will cause the cuttings to come out of the sand soft.

There are many different opinions as to what kind of bench construction gives the best results. We have seen many styles in use and have seen both successes and failures in each style of construction. So you "pay your money and take your choice." The style of propagating bench which appeals most to me is a clean wooden bench, with enough cracks to allow free drainage. We place in the bottom two inches of cinders and on top of these three inches of sand. The cinders will allow warmth to pass through into the sand above and they will drain away all the excess water which may have been put on the cuttings.

Building the Bench.

We build our benches as follows: Along the front edge and along the rear we place a stringer, which will rest on legs. When these are properly set up and braced, so they will stand up, we are ready for the bottom boards. These are sawed into the proper lengths to reach across the bench. Thus, when a board becomes weak, it can be replaced without ripping up a long stretch of the bench, which is often impossible. We use pecky cypress, of course, whenever we use wood, but you can use second-hand pipe to good advantage for the stringers.

Many concrete benches are being built nowadays. They are perhaps just as good for propagating as any, but I feel sure that they are not any better. The point I wish to make is, that no particular style of bench will bring you success in propagating unless you give the cuttings proper attention, and that if you do give this proper care you will have success on any style of bench, as long as you have complete control over light, heat, water and air currents.

If you have another crop now growing on the bench where you purpose to propagate, be sure that you cleanse and sweeten the bench well before putting in the sand. Let the boards dry out well first, and then apply a heavy coat of hot lime wash, allowing it to dry, too, before filling in the sand. This will kill any fungi which might be hanging around the sides or bottom.

TROUBLE WITH HARD STEMS.

I am having trouble with one house of three varieties of Enchantress carnations. I am cutting good blooms and in looking over the benches from a distance one would think they were perfect, but on looking closer one sees rather high on the plants a place about one-half an inch long getting hard and woody, through which no nourishment can pass. The shoot above the diseased part dries up, while the lower part of the plant is trying to thrive. I might say I had trouble in getting them to take hold when first planted and had to pick off a good many dead leaves where the disease is now showing.

This is my first fall-down with carnations. I have always followed The Review's cultural directions closely, except that, believing my soil to be inclined to be sour, I had put on a little too much air-slaked lime before they were sufficiently established. How can I check the disease and what is best to keep it from spreading to another house of healthy carnations? Any information as to the cause or how to check its spread will be greatly appreciated.

J. C., Jr.

The hardening and drying of the stems of your carnations is not caused by any of the ordinary carnation diseases, but through improper culture, if my theory is correct. I have figured it out about as follows: You will be able to tell whether my theory fits your case or not.

In the first place, the cuttings were made from blooming shoots, some of which were rather too long. Then, when they were potted up, they quickly ran up to bud. They were allowed to run up to bud and become a little stunted and hard before they were topped. Perhaps they lost some of the lower leaves. Then, when they broke, there was a hard stem between each shoot which never swelled as it should. This same condition may have occurred before the second topping instead of the first and would have acted the same way. Then, when you stripped the foliage off the stems, the rotting began, on account of your keeping the plants sprayed continually.

Now, the thing to do is to check the rotting if possible. To that end I would advise you to spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture. Hold the nozzle of the sprayer right into the plant, so as to get the material onto the stems, where the trouble is.

There is no danger of its spreading any farther than the plants which are affected with the hard stems.

EATERS OF CARNATION FOLIAGE.

In reply to H. C. G., who speaks in The Review of November 9 about an unknown enemy eating his carnations, I will say I had a similar trouble with my carnations, and by close watching I found the mischief-maker nothing but a grasshopper. After killing it the trouble was ended. I think that if H. C. G. keeps his eyes open he will catch the mischief-maker right at work, when he can kill him. C. A. H.

In answer to H. C. G. in The Review of November 9, I will say that his trouble is with cutworms, as I had the same trouble for a while, and when I looked closely I found a green cutworm. It does its work early in the morning. If H. C. G. can not find them in the crown of the shoots of his plants, he must look closely all through the plants.

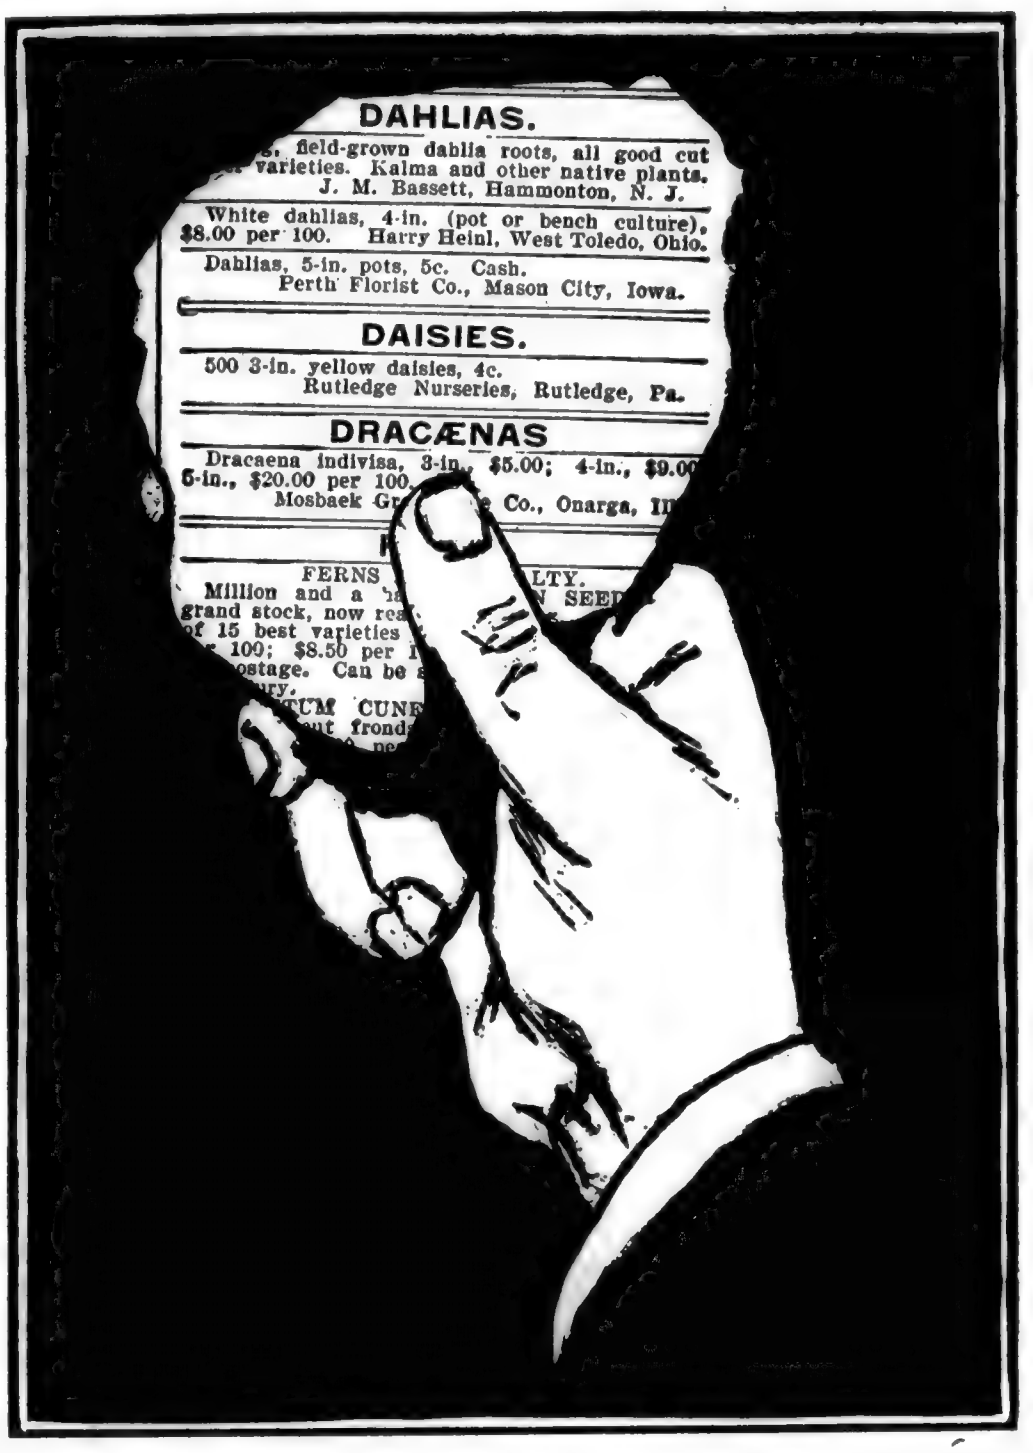
THE PLANT SPECIAL.

The express companies here are not willing to give me the reduced rates on plants that are shipped to me from other places. The agents here claim that the reduction only is given on prepaid shipments. When a shipment comes in properly marked and correctly waybilled by the agent at point of shipment I have no trouble, but when a shipment comes billed at the merchandise rate I can get no satisfaction. One agent even goes so far as to say that the express company could make no change in the billing except with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Will you please enlighten your readers on this subject?



F. J. U.

To begin with, it is important that plant shipments be properly and conspicuously marked as such, and it is well to have the placard also state that the rate is to be twenty per cent less than the merchandise rate. Most of the large shippers have large printed labels covering this point, for pasting on all outgoing boxes and crates. With this precaution by the shipper, the friction will be reduced to a minimum. Shippers also should acquaint themselves with the express companies' rules with regard to character of shipments, boxing, etc. It is not true that shipments of live plants must be prepaid to be entitled to the special rate, but it is the fact that payment of the charges must be guaranteed by the shipper. The rules with regard to crating or boxing are such as have been found to operate toward safe carriage and should be followed for that reason as well as for the reduction in rates so obtained.

When a shipment arrives that is entitled to transportation at the special rate but is billed at the merchandise rate, the stock being perishable, the thing to do is to pay the charges, being sure to take a receipt showing the waybill number. This is merely to help the company identify the shipment later. Then file a claim for a refund of the overcharge. In some of the smaller places the agents are so unfamiliar with the details of the express business that they look upon any claim as merely meaning trouble for themselves, though it does not, and will try to refuse it, or will say they can do nothing with it. In such an event ask the name of the division superintendent, and his address, sending the claim direct to him. If overcharges are frequent and difficulty is had in getting them adjusted, ask the division superintendent to instruct the local agent so that he will be able to correct an apparent error at the moment it is called to his attention. In the larger cities, if a delivery is tendered on which there is an apparent overcharge, the wagon man usually can get from the main office by telephone, right then and there, authority to correct the charge, but of course this should not be expected where the facts are in doubt.

There is one point to be emphasized: Be courteous. Nothing is gained by the "hammer and tongs" method of "making a kick." Don't use it. Don't make unreasonable complaints and, when you have cause to complain, do it in the same spirit you would like to have your own customers come to you in. The express business is one of infinite detail and mistakes are not to be avoided, but the men in charge for the express companies are gentlemen, as well as keen business men, and if one goes about it in a gentlemanly way he usually can get promptly anything that the rules will allow.

These Are the Little Liners That Do the Business

Trenton, N. J.—The Supreme Court has sustained a judgment given in favor of W. A. Manda, South Orange, against the Wells-Fargo Express Co., the case growing out of the freezing of a shipment of orchids.

Peoria, Ill.—J. C. Murray, the other evening, was writing and dropped his fountain pen. In reaching for the pen his arm struck and overturned the lamp. The flames spread with such great rapidity that Mr. Murray could do nothing but retreat to the street. The fire department, however, made quick work of the blaze, the loss being only $500, fully covered by insurance.

WHY SPHAGNUM IS SCARCE.

One of the shortages that is pinching the florists at large is the one now existing in sphagnum moss. Stocks are well cleaned up all over the country, and particularly so in the west. Jobbers have been unable to get their customary autumn shipments. To those who have inquired as to the reason for the shortage the answer has been returned that the season has been a particularly rainy one in the Wisconsin swamps, whence come the supplies of this essential basis for designs. Immense quantities of sphagnum come from the vicinity of Wausau, in Wisconsin. A shipper there, in explaining the delay in filling his orders, sent to the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, the photograph reproduced herewith. It shows, not a scene in Venice, but the main street of the neighboring town of Schofield during the days of late October. Traveling by boat is a novelty in the town streets in the sphagnum district. There was snow in the woods the last week of October, but it melted fast and there is hope of an opportunity of catching up with the demand.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The cold wave, which is making Washington shiver, is accepted as a boon by local florists. November as a rule is a poor month for the trade here, but nearly all the florists say that the balance of this month promises to be better than the average. The return of President Taft and his family to the city, marking as it does a revival of social activities, will be beneficial. During the next few weeks, besides Thanksgiving, the florists will be thankful for several debutantes' parties and other social affairs.

The better varieties of mums are now coming out. The first Maud Dean were shown last week. There are fine white and yellow Bonnaffon and the largest varieties will be along on time a week or more hence. Roses are fairly plentiful and really good. Carnations have advanced in price and are now bringing 2 to 3 cents. Valley is moving well, but smilax is going better. Cattleyas are more plentiful, and orchids bring $7.50 a dozen.

Various Notes.

The event of this week was Blackistone's opening Tuesday, after extensive alterations. The size of his store has been nearly doubled, and 300 square feet of show windows are filled with the choicest flowers, while inside a flower show is in full blast, including forty varieties of mums. The general scheme of the improved store is colonial. French gray and white predominate and the walls are decorated with dainty lattice and long mirrors. There is a beautiful balcony, used for office purposes. Visitors were given floral souvenirs. Z. D. Blackistone went into business independently in 1899 and is receiving many congratulations on his success. He increased his business force this week by taking on Walter Hengel, formerly with Habermehl, of Philadelphia.

The Washington Florists' Exchange recently received a dozen huge cases of smilax for the fall trade.

J. E. Morrison has opened a downtown branch of the Columbia Nursery Co., next door to the Florists' Exchange on H street. Mr. Morrison belongs to an old family of nurserymen in the west. His brother, Joseph, recently went to the Isle of Pines and is raising citrus fruits.

J. H. Small & Sons have been delayed in moving from their old stand at Fourteenth and G streets, to the Woodward building, Fifteenth and H streets, considered one of the best corners in town, owing to failure of the contractors to have the building completed on time. The Smalls hope to get settled in their new quarters this month.

W. Marche has a big contract to lay out a Roman garden for a wealthy resident of Chevy Chase, the fashionable suburb.

W. F. Gude is making a campaign for a congressional police and firemen's pension law.

W. R. Smith, superintendent of the botanical gardens, will probably be able to leave the hospital before long, but the doctors fear he may not entirely regain his health. He is suffering from a serious internal trouble.

Mr. Jones, of Philadelphia, is visiting here. H. C. H.

Not Venice—Just a Flooded Town in the Sphagnum District.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week ended the Indian summer. The western storm brought a drop of 30 or 40 degrees, and the week opens with the first severe weather of the fall season. The market improvement began November 10, with an advance in the price of orchids, violets and lilies. American Beauties advanced to 35 cents. All the new varieties of roses hold well and sell rapidly, the supply being limited. Of the older varieties, the market could not handle them last week and many thousands reached the street and the department stores. The cold snap will drive the street merchants to cover. Then the surplus must find its way to the big stores, where the purchases are made in wagon loads. For these, remarkably low prices have been advertised recently in the city dailies.

Carnations did not go above $2 per hundred last week and only the best brought that price, the bulk of the shipments closing out at $1 and under. The quality is now perfect. Lilies advanced encouragingly at the week's close and the selected stock sold at $1 a dozen. Valley was firm at $2 to $3 and the tendency is upward. Violets are none too plentiful. Some predict a dollar for them before the week is over. The specials sold at 60 cents to 75 cents November 11. Cattleyas, the best, touched 75 cents each, with not enough to go around.

The chrysanthemum flood is at its height and there are no signs yet of decrease in supply. Prices are down, and few command over $3 a dozen. Splendid stock can be had at $10 per hundred and some excellent flowers sold as low as $5 per hundred. Enormous shipments of bunches are arriving, but are hard to dispose of. Good plants can be bought at from 15 to 25 cents each.

Gardenias are in wide demand and of better size and stem, the best touching $5 a dozen.

Club Meeting.

The attendance at the club meeting November 13 numbered over 150, including a liberal sprinkling of the fair sex. The nominating committee announced its slate as follows:

For president—J. B. Nugent, Jr., I. S. Hendrickson, Jos. A. Manda.

For vice-president—John Rassbach, Philip Einsman.

For secretary—John Young, W. G. Badgley.

For treasurer—W. B. Rickards, Jr., W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., C. W. Scott.

For trustees—John Donaldson, R. G. Wilson, F. A. Bolles, William Duckham, Philip Kessler, Harry Turner.

Resolutions on the death of I. L. Powell were read and a copy ordered sent to his family. An important letter was read from Prof. John Craig, of Cornell University, and its many suggestions as to the advancement of the horticultural interests, including the prospective building of greenhouses at Ithaca, will be thoroughly considered at the club's December meeting. H. Reidel, Meyer Othile, Roma J. Irwin, H. Langeler, Wm. Chalmers and John Birnie were nominated for membership.

The exhibits of the evening were:

A vase of the new carnation Wodenethe, by Chas. H. Totty; thanks of club.

Seedling carnation No. 310, by J. D. Cockcroft; scored 84 points.

Double Improved White Killarney by S. J. Reuter & Son; scored 85½ points.

Carnation Brooklyn, by Charles Weber; thanks of club.

Seedling petunia, by A. T. Boddington; honorable mention.

White Killarney, by Robert Simpson, vote of thanks.

The award committee also reported its visit to the greenhouses of C. H. Totty at Madison, to see the new rose Sunburst, for which a score of 90 points was given and a certificate of merit.

A collation was served under the superintendence of Chairman Al. Rickards, of the entertainment committee. J. Hayes and Mrs. Maurice Glass supplied the musical part of the evening's program.

J. Otto Thilow gave a stereopticon lecture that was intensely interesting and held the audience for two hours. Nearly 200 views were thrown upon the screen. Those of President Nugent and P. O'Mara came unexpectedly and aroused enthusiasm.

Various Notes.

The auctions were well attended last week. The MacNiff Co. says it was the largest week in their experience.

J. K. Allen has disposed of many thousands of mums in pots. His next plant specialty will be pansies in pots.

Paul Meconi, in the Coogan building, is rapidly building up a prosperous business.

Anton C. Zvolanek left Bound Brook last week for his winter sojourn at his sweet pea farms in California.

The hunters, Messrs. Donaldson, Miesem and Scott, of Whitestone, have returned safely from a week's shooting in Virginia and quail on toast is the daily menu of their long-suffering housekeepers, each having brought home "enough birds to last till Christmas."

The new carnation, No. 310, the prize-winning seedling owned by J. D. Cockcroft, of Northport, is a rapid seller. Badgley, Riedel & Meyer have been handling it. Mr. Badgley has just had aldermanic honors bestowed upon him in Madison.

Emil Schrader, of Staten Island, a leading florist there, shot and killed a chicken thief, whom he caught in the act and was obliged to shoot in self-defense.

Woodrow & Marketos are occupying the store formerly owned by August Millang on West Twenty-eighth street and are building up a fine retail business, as well as doing a wholesale trade.

Max Schling had the decorative contract for a big dinner and ball at Montreal last week.

Frank & Sons, at Third avenue and Eighty-seventh street, report trade excellent in their section, the low rates advertised by the department stores not being seriously felt there.

Mr. Christensen, of Madsen & Christensen, Woodridge, N. J., was in the city Saturday, the guest of Wm. Kessler. The specialty of this house is the daisy, five houses being devoted to its culture. They also grow wallflowers and gardenias.

W. H. Taplin, superintendent of the Dailledouze plant in Flatbush, was in Detroit last week, attending the funeral of his uncle, Stephen Taplin.

John Egenbrod, with Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, was in the limelight last week, having saved the lives of an actor and actress by a brave control of a runaway horse.

Max Schling Inspecting a Design for the Pulitzer Funeral.

W. Atlee Burpee, of Philadelphia, was in the city November 13, attending the annual banquet of the Canadian Club of New York.

Mr. Moore, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, was in the city November 11, from Chatham.

Max Richter, superintendent of the orchid section of the Julius Roehrs Co., has been seriously ill with typhoid pneumonia.

The large plate glass window of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., 111 West Twenty-eighth street, was broken last week by an intoxicated man.

The Kervan Co. had a scare last week, the result of a fire on the third story of their new building. The damage was slight, and is covered by insurance. The cold storage section was uninjured. J. Austin Shaw.

Joseph D'Onofrio, who owns several flower stores in Harlem, was set upon and robbed while making his way home one night last week.

Sturgis, Mich.—John W. Vogt, formerly with E. C. Campbell, at Rochester, N. Y., has succeeded A. Richter as proprietor of the Sturgis Greenhouses.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business in general was good last week and there is little surplus stock on hand. Chrysanthemums are thinning out a little, because the early varieties are about exhausted and there are few of the late varieties on the market as yet. Yellow mums are not plentiful, Bonnaffon being about the only good one to be had at present. In pink, Patty is our best variety, having superb blooms and being exquisite in color. Timothy Eaton is beginning to come in, but good whites are scarce.

Carnations are not abundant, and continue to be below par. Pink Delight is coming in better now and has a firm stem with good blooms.

Beauties are much improved and specials are selling for $6 per dozen retail. Radiance, Melody, Uncle John and Sunrise make their appearance occasionally in small numbers and are much sought after. Killarney and White Killarney are in great demand and are excellent in quality. Tafts are first-class, but Richmonds are still rather poor. Wards are falling off in supply and the demand is greater than ever.

There has been a spurt in the market for gardenias and cattleyas. Both are in excellent condition and bring a good price. Oncidiums are quite abundant, but there is little market for them. Cypripediums are selling again, after having been thrust aside by the trade for a season. Valley is fine and is in great favor, especially for corsages. Star bouvardias are also used a great deal for that purpose. Violets are better than ever and are selling well. Primroses, begonias and cyclamen are finding abundant sale in the flowering plant line. There are still a few potted chrysanthemums to be had. Camellia Japonica has made its appearance and is bringing a big price from those who can afford this beautiful plant.

An extraordinary run of business occurred last week, as loads of flowers were sent as gifts to the performers in the play given for the benefit of the General hospital. A great number of Beauties were disposed of, and nearly all the downtown florists were represented in the floral tributes sent.

The Lamberton Show.

The appreciation by the people of Rochester of the Lamberton conservatories, recently opened to the public, has been amply demonstrated by the multitudes of delighted visitors who have thronged the place. Sunday, November 5, the stream of visitors was almost continuous. On entering one finds a rare chrysanthemum, with over twenty varieties that elicit much admiration. To the right of the mum house is the cactus house, in which are many varieties. The third house is given up to begonias, primroses, ferns, orange trees, etc.

As a flower show, pure and simple, the display was extremely creditable. The arrangements for the convenience of the visitors left nothing to be desired, and abundant opportunity was afforded to enjoy the floral specimens.

Various Notes.

The regular monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held Monday evening, November 13. Chas. C. Zollar gave a talk on color photography and exhibited color plates of various flowers and plants.

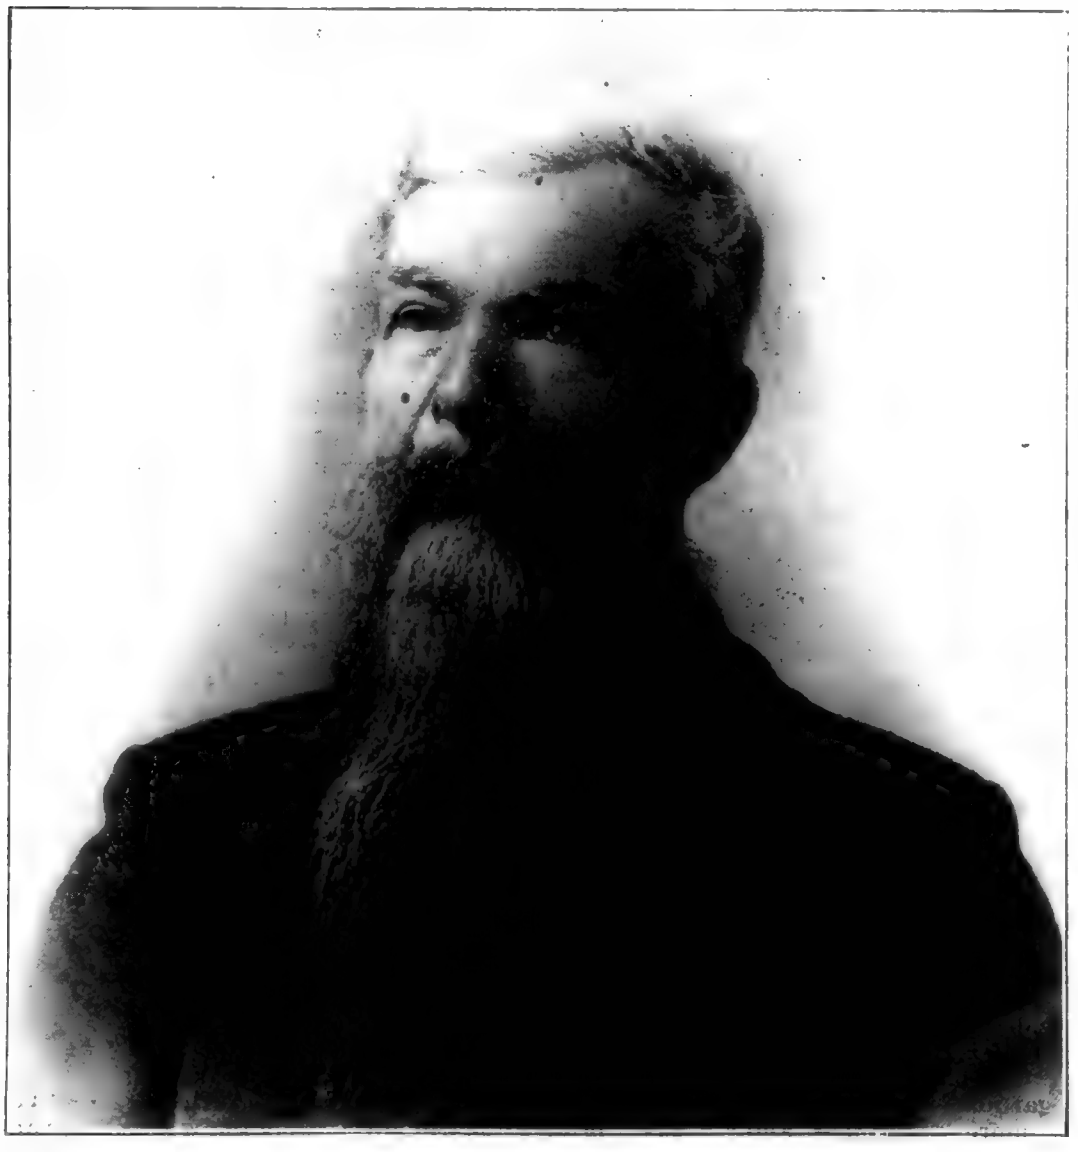
Street venders were selling roses at a sacrifice last Saturday, because of a few warm, sunny days, which brought them in an overabundance.

Edward Brockman, of Irondequoit, N. Y., is planning to put up another Lord & Burnham house in the near future. He is greatly pleased with the house the above firm erected for him last summer.

James Vick's Sons report that they had the best bulb trade this fall in their history.

Ellwanger & Barry had a large exhibition of fruit trees, shade trees and shrubs at the American Irrigation Exposition in New York city.

Edward S. Osborne, secretary of the Charlton Nursery Co., was elected comptroller by the Republican party November 7.



A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., is shipping some excellent gardenias into this market.

Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

J. B. Keller Sons are growing some fine Patty chrysanthemums.

Winfred J. Smith did some artistic decorations in the benefit play given here last week.

Geo. Keller's boiler for the new greenhouse is in place and will be built in soon. E. C. A.

Stephen Taplin.

...NEWS NOTES...

Wilmette, Ill.—H. P. Gerhardt, whose retail store is known as the Wilmette Florist, is preparing to move into a new and handsome building, on the main street, where he will have an attractive conservatory in connection.

Valley City, N. D.—Charles E. Moore, who began business here about six years ago and built up a flourishing trade, has now taken his brother, R. W. Moore, into partnership and the two are planning still greater developments.

Alton, Ill.—George Madsen, of the Alton Floral Co., has purchased a residence on East Second street and will occupy it during the winter months when the weather is too bad to allow comfortable traveling to and from the gardens in Godfrey township.

Minneapolis, Minn. — The annual chrysanthemum show at the city park greenhouses was opened November 5, to continue for two weeks. The show was under the management of Louis Boeglin, head gardener for the park board, and attracted large crowds. After the close of the exhibition, the flowers were cut and sent to the hospitals.

Brookline, Mass.—James J. McElroy, for the last three years a resident of Dover, N. H., is now in this city, where he will resume his former business as florist and gardener. In association with his brother-in-law, he will have charge of a number of large estates. Before removing to Dover, Mr. McElroy was gardener for Millionaire Tom Lawson, at Dreamwold.

Freeport, Ill.—A 260-barrel water tank at the greenhouses of John Bauscher, Jr., collapsed on the evening of Monday, November 6, on account of the breaking of the hoops, and fell from the top of the 60-foot tower, crashing through four greenhouses, ruining thousands of plants and causing a loss of about $2,500. A gang of twenty men was put to work on the following morning, closing up the ends of some of the greenhouses so as to save as much of the stock as possible. Mr. Bauscher, though he feels the loss severely, says he considers it extremely fortunate that no one was injured.

New Springville, N. Y.—It is stated that Emil Schrader, while engaged recently in an attempt to capture a chicken thief, fired a revolver shot, almost at random, and killed the thief instantly. According to the report, the thief had entered the poultry house and had a bag of fancy Wyandottes in his hands when detected. He threw the bag of fowls at Mr. Schrader's head, and it was then that Mr. Schrader, staggering back and almost blinded for the moment, fired the fatal shot. He was arrested on a charge of homicide, and also on the additional charge of unlicensed possession of firearms.

PETER DEVOY NEAR DEATH.

At last report from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Peter T. Devoy, the well-known violet grower, who was suddenly taken ill several days ago, was so low that the doctors gave up all hopes of his recovery, and his death was thought to be only a matter of a few hours. Mr. Devoy was taken ill with pneumonia and later typhoid fever set in.

Mr. Devoy was born in Poughkeepsie and has lived the greater part of his life in that city. After attending the public schools there he learned the florist's trade and has since been engaged in that business. He has been a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus and several fraternal organizations and has enjoyed a large circle of friends. Mrs. Peter Shields, mother of Mrs. Devoy, also was in a critical condition at her home at Poughkeepsie.

OBITUARY.

Gabriel H. Pieser.

The not unexpected announcement of the death of Gabriel H. Pieser, for many years connected with Kennicott Bros. Co., Chicago, came November 14, a long struggle against dissolution having terminated at two o'clock that morning.

Mr. Pieser had been ill for many months and for weeks it had been certain that recovery was impossible. His trouble was enlargement of the heart. At the beginning of his illness he would be apparently as well as ever and then suddenly would be, for a time, almost at death's door. For some days prior to the end he was delirious. The funeral will be held from the residence, at 4447 Indiana avenue, Thursday morning, November 16.

Gabriel H. Pieser was one of Chicago's native sons. He was born on Randolph street, just west of the river, May 8, 1855, and he saw the sprawling town of that day grow to be the metropolis of the west. In early life he was in the flour and feed business, but over twenty years ago he changed the spelling from flour to flower, joining Flint Kennicott, who was then doing a wholesale commission business under the name of Kennicott Bros., and who already had had for some years as his chief lieutenant Mr. Pieser's younger brother, E. E. Pieser, the present head of the Kennicott Bros. Co. When the corporation was formed G. H. Pieser became secretary, becoming both president and secretary when Mr. Kennicott died, in 1907. In December, 1910, appreciating that his illness was such that it would be wise to put his house in order, he disposed of all his business interests and the presidency of the company to which he had given such close application during the greater part of his business life, was taken over by his brother. Besides E. E. Pieser, one other brother lives, and two sisters. The brother is Ike Pieser, who is the manufacturer of Uncle Jerry's Pancake Flour. He was twice married and is survived by the second wife, Kathleen Worley Pieser, also by George H. Pieser, son of Rosa Pieser.

Mr. Pieser was of that unswerving honesty that made his word as good as another man's bond and he was so thorough and methodical in his business affairs that he gained for himself a high position in the business world.

Gabriel H. Pieser.

Stephen Taplin.

Since the last issue of The Review went to press, Detroit, Mich., has lost its oldest florist, Stephen Taplin. He died on Thursday, November 9, after several months of illness and much acute suffering. The cause of death was said to be a malignant internal growth.

He was not only the oldest representative of his trade in his city, but was one of the noted members of the family of florists whose combined achievements have made the name of Taplin familiarly known and highly respected among florists throughout the United States. In such records of his life as are available there is a noticeable lack of dates and other exact information, but it is certain that he was born at Overton, Hampshire, England, sometime in the early thirties and was within a year or two of four score years of age at his death. After obtaining the rudiments of an education at the village school, at the age of 17 he left home to begin the comprehensive task of learning gardening. To be an English gardener of high standing required even more extensive and varied accomplishments in those days than at present, for in these modern times the division of labor has done something to relieve even the gardener from the old-time multiplicity of his duties. But Mr. Taplin learned the trade thoroughly, obtaining some of his early experience on the estate of the Duke of Sutherland, and then spent eight or ten years in the service of different members of the English nobility, including the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Earl of Stamford. At the Earl of Stamford's, it is said, he was associated, as a fellow employee, with Edwin Lonsdale, now in charge of a branch of the business of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at Lampoc, Cal.

When about 35 years of age Mr. Taplin came to America. Arriving, after a time, at Detroit, he purchased the Fort street greenhouses which were to form the nucleus of his future establishment. Then he returned to England and brought his family over on one of the largest steamships on the ocean at the time, the City of Paris. His greenhouses afterward covered more than an acre of ground at 962 to 1030 West Fort street, and he also had a 5-acre nursery in another part of the city, where he grew roses and other hardy stock. His knowledge of horticultural subjects was so thorough that he soon became an acknowledged authority on such matters. He retired from business some years ago. He is survived by his wife, by one daughter, Mrs. E. J. Stapleton, and by two sons.

Stephen Taplin's brother, James Taplin, who died in 1892, was also prominent in the trade, and was the father of three children who became well known in horticultural circles. One of the three is James S. Taplin, now with Siebrecht & Son, at New Rochelle, N. Y.; another is W. H. Taplin, superintendent for Dailledouze Bros., at Brooklyn, and the third is Mrs. E. T. Royle, for years associate editor of the Rural New Yorker.

In early life he was in the flour and feed business, but over twenty years ago he changed the spelling from flour to flower, joining Flint Kennicott, who was then doing a wholesale commission business under the name of Kennicott Bros., and who already had had for some years as his chief lieutenant Mr. Pieser's younger brother, E. E. Pieser, the present head of the Kennicott Bros. Co. When the corporation was formed G. H. Pieser became secretary, becoming both president and secretary when Mr. Kennicott died, in 1907. In December, 1910, appreciating that his illness was such that it would be wise to put his house in order, he disposed of all his business interests and the presidency of the company to which he had given such close application during the greater part of his business life, was taken over by his brother. Besides E. E. Pieser, one other brother lives, and two sisters. The brother is Ike Pieser, who is the manufacturer of Uncle Jerry's Pancake Flour. He was twice married and is survived by the second wife, Kathleen Worley Pieser, also by George H. Pieser, son of Rosa Pieser.

Mr. Pieser was of that unswerving honesty that made his word as good as another man's bond and he was so thorough and methodical in his business affairs that he gained for himself a high position in the business world.

Stephen Taplin.

Since the last issue of The Review went to press, Detroit, Mich., has lost its oldest florist, Stephen Taplin. He died on Thursday, November 9, after several months of illness and much acute suffering. The cause of death was said to be a malignant internal growth.

He was not only the oldest representative of his trade in his city, but was one of the noted members of the family of florists whose combined achievements have made the name of Taplin familiarly known and highly respected among florists throughout the United States. In such records of his life as are available there is a noticeable lack of dates and other exact information, but it is certain that he was born at Overton, Hampshire, England, sometime in the early thirties and was within a year or two of four score years of age at his death. After obtaining the rudiments of an education at the village school, at the age of 17 he left home to begin the comprehensive task of learning gardening. To be an English gardener of high standing required even more extensive and varied accomplishments in those days than at present, for in these modern times the division of labor has done something to relieve even the gardener from the old time multiplicity of his duties. But Mr. Taplin learned the trade thoroughly, obtaining some of his early experience on the estate of the Duke of Sutherland, and then spent eight or ten years in the service of different members of the English nobility, including the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Earl of Stamford. At the Earl of Stamford's, it is said, he was associated, as a fellow employee, with Edwin Lonsdale, now in charge of a branch of the business of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at Lampoc, Cal.

When about 35 years of age Mr. Taplin came to America. Arriving, after a time, at Detroit, he purchased the Fort street greenhouses which were to form the nucleus of his future establishment. Then he returned to England and brought his family over on one of the largest steamships on the ocean at the time, the City of Paris. His greenhouses afterward covered more than an acre of ground at 962 to 1030 West Fort street, and he also had a 5-acre nursery in another part of the city, where he grew roses and other hardy stock. His knowledge of horticultural subjects was so thorough that he soon became an acknowledged authority on such matters. He retired from business some years ago. He is survived by his wife, by one daughter, Mrs. E. J. Stapleton, and by two sons.

Stephen Taplin's brother, James Taplin, who died in 1892, was also prominent in the trade, and was the father of three children who became well known in horticultural circles. One of the three is James S. Taplin, now with Siebrecht & Son, at New Rochelle, N. Y.; another is W. H. Taplin, superintendent for Dailledouze Bros., at Brooklyn, and the third is Mrs. E. T. Royle, for years associate editor of the Rural New Yorker.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

This issue of The Review contains 140 pages—the largest Autumn Number thus far issued.

It still takes a really first-class chrysanthemum to beat old Bonnaffon for commercial purposes.

The fall shows do not seem to be starting any conflagrations this year. What can the matter be?

The cold wave was general over the greater part of the United States this week and interrupted the flower business just as it was getting into its autumn stride.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, has issued a handsome booklet entitled "Boxwood Sprays," that tells in text and picture the history of boxwood in America.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

With this issue The Review starts its fifteenth year. Fifteen years is a long time to look ahead, but a short time to look back. For ourselves the publishers ask nothing better than the past has afforded, but it is our hope that The Review's usefulness to the trade may increase as steadily in the next fifteen years as we are told it has in the last fifteen.

It is just as well to remember that, after "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker" have charged the housekeeper their prevailing rates for the Thanksgiving dinner, she may not be in a mood to pay fancy prices for flowers for the table. Thanksgiving is like May 30, a day when everybody can use flowers if the prices are within reach. What florists nowadays need is volume of sales and large volume and high prices do not ordinarily go together.

With chrysanthemums early and Thanksgiving late, it looks as though there will be less than the usual supply of mums for the feast day.

The Great Central Market.

As last week progressed the temperature advanced steadily, Saturday being the warmest November day in the history of the weather bureau, followed by the coldest day of the season, an unprecedented drop of 61 degrees within sixteen hours. Both extremes, of course, were bad for the flower business.

The heat wave, accompanied by more sun than has been the rule in recent weeks, accelerated the production of flowers and caused the quality to deteriorate. A large volume of sales, at declining prices, did not serve to move the receipts and before the weather changed there was an embarrassing accumulation of stock, a large part of which was of none too good quality. The severe cold snap curtailed the cuts, but it also cut off a considerable portion of the local demand, there being few buyers out Sunday, so that the load was not materially lightened.

Last week for the first time this season the chrysanthemum became something of a problem. Mums have made no specially high prices this season, but the good stock made an excellent average up to last week, especially the latter part. It was Bonnaffon week, this favorite sort coming in with a rush. Chadwicks in both colors also were abundant and fine, with well finished Eaton to keep them company. The supply was so large it was impossible to clean up even at concessions in prices that made a decidedly poor market for the less well liked varieties and the indifferently grown stock. Diana, the queen of the pompons, also came in so heavily that the price fell one-third, and other small varieties suffered worse. The fear is expressed that the mums were pushed along so far that few will be left for Thanksgiving.

Roses were in heavy crop when the summer days came and the wholesalers' cold rooms were full of them Saturday night—all but Beauties; there were not enough of them to cause trouble at any

A Big Supply of Fine Stock

There will be no shortage here of Thanksgiving flowers. We never have been so well equipped as this year to take care of increased demand. Not only is our supply larger than ever, but the quality throughout is the very best.

Buyers should bear in mind that our prices are not higher than others ask for the same quality of stock, if they have it. While we are strong on the "special" grade, by far the greater part of our supply is "select," and we can do as well for the buyers who use medium-priced stock as we can for those who want only the longest stems.

Pink - KILLARNEYS - White

Buyers who know the market recognize that, length for length, our Killarneys carry the finest heads of any roses to be had. We are now cutting crops that will increase from day to day for the next two weeks, giving the heaviest cut just in time for Thanksgiving. We want to book the orders of buyers who can use choice Killarneys in quantity.

VIOLETS

We handle the cream of the doubles—the "specials" now offered here are quite in a class by themselves. Also can supply fancy, fragrant singles. Can supply any quantity for Thanksgiving. Place orders now.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are coming in heavily, and the quality is right up to the high standard that has made our stock noted for its superior shipping qualities.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We hear it said by many growers that they will be cut out of Mums before Thanksgiving. Not so with us. Order here and be safe. We shall have from 20,000 to 25,000 for Thanksgiving week—the largest supply we ever have had. All the best late varieties.

BEAUTIES

We are cutting steadily and the quality is fine. Local demand takes whatever out-of-town buyers have not asked for, so order early.

ORCHIDS

There are no finer Cattleyas than those we are handling in quantity. Order of us and you will be delighted with the stock.

Order VALLEY of Us

If you have had any difficulty getting your Valley orders filled, it was because you didn't order of us. Always plenty of Fancy Valley here.

HEADQUARTERS FOR EASTER LILIES

We always have Easter Lilies, every day in the year, and the finest there are—home grown—they go out in perfect condition.

time and medium and short were scarce when all else was plentiful. The heat softened the roses, but the quality, otherwise, still is improving. One can get all the roses he wants with four-foot stems, and the price, in proportion to quality, really is lower than for the shorts, which, relatively, are scarce. With full crops on at the middle of the month, no great quantities are expected for Thanksgiving, but growers feel sanguine as to Christmas.

Carnations showed the effect of the heat perhaps more than any other flower. With the temperature suddenly carried above 60 degrees all night and 74 degrees in the shade by day, the damage would have been great if the heat wave had not ended quickly. Strictly first-class carnations became scarce in the face of an oversupply of low grade stock.

Violets, both single and double, were good, but slow sale. Sweet peas have come in moderate quantity. Cattleyas continue plentiful and there are liberal supplies of oncidiums, vandas, etc., all fine. Valley is abundant. Lilies cut little figure, but callas are arriving. A few Paper Whites are seen, also mignonette, antirrhinum and a little stevia. All greens are plentiful.

Receipts were not so heavy Monday, November 13, but city trade was dead, as it always is after a bad Sunday following a pleasant Saturday. Shipping trade was fair, but could not consume the stock on hand, some of which was no longer in condition to ship. The market scarcely will regain its equilibrium until there have been several days of settled weather.

Ferns are reported as not keeping well, and some of the stock that has arrived in the last few days seems to confirm the statement. The price, which was advanced the first of the month in the east and which will go up another notch December 1, has been advanced by many of the wholesalers. At $1.50 there was not enough margin to cover waste. Ferns are not the profitable item they once were.

Various Notes.

J. F. Czarnich, who has a store at 1514 West Chicago avenue, has taken a lease of the one at Ashland avenue and Van Buren street, formerly conducted by H. W. Metz. The fixtures now are the property of the landlord. Some small claims are outstanding.

A. L. Randall Co. has consolidated the bookkeeping office with the sales office, locating both at the rear of the second floor of the building, adjoining the florists' supplies.

The George Wittbold Co. now operates four motor cars, besides numerous wagons, in its delivery department and has a runabout for the estimators, decorators, etc.

T. E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., spent two days at the St. Louis flower show last week.

Kyle & Foerster have a consignor who has a fine yellow sport of George S. Kalb. Having sold the cut flowers, they are now placing the stock plants.

Vaughan & Sperry report a large business on natural green sheet moss. Sphagnum is scarce.

Paul M. Bryant, secretary of the E. H. Hunt corporation, spent a couple of days at Milwaukee, Wis., his old home, last week, on personal business.

A novel feature of Frank Oechslin's new houses is placing the boiler in a deep pit at one end of the largest house, building a floor above the boiler and using the entire space for plants on benches. Of course the stack rises through the center, but the work is so well done that the space above the boiler is only a few degrees warmer than the rest of the house. Stock of all kinds was in fine shape and gives evidence of being just right for the holidays.

One of the yellow journals on Sunday had a story about "a rich florist" being sued because his automobile knocked down a woman as she was alighting from a street car September 19. The reporter missed the fact that it was the president of the S. A. F.

Most of the growers lost some glass in the big blow on the night of November 11, but so far as heard from John Evert was the heaviest loser. The end of a mum house was broken down by the force of the gale and most of the stock, just ready to cut, was frozen. The loss is put at $500. Miss Ida Evert is selling the family output at the store of the Batavia Greenhouse Co.

nati Monday night to stage exhibits. They will be at Milwaukee with flowers November 16.

C. W. McKellar reports the arrival of the first cypripediums last week.

F. C. Hoerber is one of those who believe that the daily newspaper advertising the retailers are doing will broaden the flower business greatly, causing many new people to become flower buyers.

H. Van Gelder says out-of-town buyers are already placing orders for Christmas.

Bassett & Washburn say their mums are about two weeks earlier this year than usual. They will be all cut within another week, which will leave them without this item for Thanksgiving for the first time on record. However, Mr. Washburn says mums have done well this season and will not be missed, as Beauties and roses are just coming into crop.

The Geo. M. Garland Co., of Des Plaines, believes a record for speed was made last week when it constructed and shipped the material in three and one-half days for three houses, each 34x300, and a lean-to, all of truss, iron-frame construction, for Chas. Frueh & Sons, Saginaw, Mich.

T. B. Gray, of the Geo. M. Garland Co., and Miss Ida Poyer, both of Des Plaines, surprised their friends by getting married November 1, fully a month earlier than was expected by anyone excepting their most intimate friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside in Des Plaines.

The A. Dietsch Co. reports business this year running away ahead of the previous records.

H. N. Bruns says the quality of the valley pips he has just received is so good that he paid a slight premium for them. He is hoping that the shipments still to come will equal the first arrivals.

Sol Garland, of Des Plaines, says the work he has done on the range of the Des Plaines Violet Co. rather delayed planting in his own houses. Nevertheless, stock appeared to be in good shape and he is now getting a fairly heavy cut of both mums and carnations. He has added one new house, 27x200, and has nearly completed the piping in the violet houses, which are being temporarily heated by oil stoves.

Nic Becker, vegetable grower, near Niles Center, has installed a new Superior return flue, firebox boiler.

A new sign proclaims "Meals at All Hours" at the restaurant at Wittbold's Edgebrook greenhouses. The management of the restaurant is now in the hands of parties who have leased the fixtures and rights from Otto Wittbold, who is thus relieved of all except the collection of the rent. Mr. Wittbold expects to follow the same plan with the new rooming house when it is completed. The blacksmith will also be put on an independent footing, leaving Otto Wittbold free to devote his entire attention to the greenhouses and nurseries.

Frank Johnson, sales manager for the A. L. Randall Co., is serving on jury.

Visitors: Paul M. Palez, Little Rock, Ark.; Charles Fuhlbruegge, formerly of Minneapolis, but now of Kansas City; John Breitmeyer and Herman Klagge, sons of well known florists at Mt. Clemens.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The conditions in this market last week were only fair, owing to the warm weather. Extra good stock of all kinds has sold readily, but the abundance of inferior stock has caused this grade to move slowly.

The severe cold snap which struck Cleveland November 12 will certainly have a tendency to shorten up stock and clear the market of the glut of poor mums and second-grade roses. Carnations are about equal to the demand. Violets took a jump from 60 cents to $1 per hundred, but the quality has improved accordingly.

Various Notes.

Herman Knoble, senior member of the west side firm of Knoble Bros., celebrated his thirty-first birthday November 9. Knoble, Jr., arrived the same day, weight eight pounds.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange is receiving some excellent Beauties and Killarneys from L. L. Lamborn, Alliance, O.

L. F. Darnell, of the J. M. Gasser Co., had a window of mums last week that attracted large crowds.

The Florists' Club, at the meeting November 13, unanimously indorsed Adam Graham for the position of superintendent of parks.

Frank M. Smith has returned from his new home in Los Angeles to take personal charge of several large weddings that the Smith & Fetters Co. has booked for early December.'

A. F. Longren, of E. H. Hunt, Chicago, stopped on his way to the Cincinnati show. F. A. F.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Trade conditions are not what one would like, as business does not have the proper life in it and retailers are complaining a good deal. There have been numerous banquets and social affairs, but general business, which is more important, has been sluggish.

The wholesale houses are receiving some fine stock of all kinds, but it requires effort to get rid of it.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday evening, November 7, in the Dutch room at the Fort Pitt hotel. It was chrysanthemum night and that always brings a crowd. It was expected that Chas. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., would be the guest of the club, but he was prevented from being present by more urgent business engagements. However, he sent an exhibit of fourteen varieties of chrysanthemums, all of them good sorts that were highly commended by the club.

W. A. Morton, an amateur, showed a fine vase of the popular varieties, grown in a small house in which he has a little of everything.

C. Goodwin & Sons, Woodville, had an exhibit that was exceptionally fine.

Homewood Cemetery showed a fine lot of pot plants with four flowers to the plant, which were well done; also a vase of good cut blooms.

Walter James, gardener for Mr. Hilliard, had a fine vase of seven varieties that deserved praise.

The Department of Public Parks had an especially fine show of many good varieties.

C. Phillips, gardener for H. J. Heinz, was a new exhibitor, showing some fine stock. He has been giving the public the benefit of his skill, as Mr. Heinz insists on allowing all flower lovers the privilege of his houses.

Chas. Weisenbach, gardener for Mrs. Parks, had a show of pot mums and Celosia Pride of Castle Gould.

Thos. Jenkins, gardener for A. R. Peacock, had a big exhibit, including some thirteen varieties.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. made a good showing with stock from its Bakerstown greenhouses.

Randolph & McClements were on hand with their usual exhibit of fine commercial varieties of good flowers, well grown.

Taking it all in all, it was an especially fine flower show and a good meeting.

CLEVELAND — PITTSBURGH

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is handling some of the finest single chrysanthemums ever seen in this market and the way they move out shows how they are appreciated.

The private gardeners and the park men who have exhibitions say that the early varieties of chrysanthemums are keeping much better than the later ones now coming into bloom.

Arthur Hall, of the A. W. Smith Co., is confined to his home with an attack of fever.

Randolph & McClements recently had a fine exhibit of Maud Dean with the fancy prepared adiantum and the effect was most striking.

The box of exhibition flowers sent by Nathan Smith to the club, being one day late, was turned over to the Botanical Society. The box contained a lot of good new ones which the boys would have been pleased to see.

A drop of 49 degrees in temperature between Sunday noon and Monday morning, when the thermometer registered 10 degrees above zero, was almost too decided a change.

All of the growers in the Allison Park and Bakerstown section are members of a good roads boosters' club. They met Tuesday evening at Bakerstown. E. C. Ludwig and T. P. Langhans are also members of this club.

The A. W. Smith Co. made some effective orchid displays last week.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The beautiful Indian summer that we have enjoyed the last few weeks was broken Sunday, November 12, by a gale which lasted two days and brought cold weather and snow. The wind reached a velocity of eighty miles an hour and the temperature dropped 30 degrees in less than five hours. This has been a most remarkable autumn and the records are given out as showing the mildest October on record. There were nine clear days, ten partly cloudy and twelve cloudy during the month, the mean temperature for the month being 51.2 degrees.

As a result of the mildness and bright days, stock is much in advance of the usual time and we are now cutting varieties which are two weeks early. Roses, carnations and lilies continue plentiful, which, with the lack of a brisk business, makes rather a crowded condition.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Johnson, nee Miss Rebstock, has sold out her business and will retire at once. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will leave for the south shortly, to spend the winter catching alligators in sunny Florida. The business was purchased by Buffalo people who were not connected with the trade heretofore. With the retirement of Mrs. Johnson, Buffalo loses one of the squarest and best persons ever connected with the florist trade. She made many friends and I can safely say, in voicing the sentiments of the local florists, that she has the best wishes for success and happiness in the new relationship and that her connection with the florists will always be remembered as a happy one.

Owing to the failure of the Florists' Club to have a show this year, the South park and Delaware park greenhouses have given the people the benefit of their preparations and held a show at their respective places. Many fine specimens were shown in pot plants and seedling pompons. R. A. S.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The week ending with mid-November was divided into distinct halves, exact opposites of each other. The first half was summery, the second wintry, with a terrific storm between them, November 12. That day the temperature dropped an incredibly large number of degrees in an exceedingly brief space of time. The wind and rain that accompanied the change caused much damage. The effect of the cold, despite sunshine, has been to shorten the supply of flowers. Business improved during the warm weather. Since its departure, prices have become steadier and in some instances they have advanced. The general tone is decidedly better than one week ago. It looks as though the season is opening in earnest. Chrysanthemums have passed from the midseason to the late varieties. Only a few of the latter have yet to appear. Bonnaffon is at its best. So, too, are both Chadwicks, Maud Dean and Dr. Enguehard, with several others named before, and some of lesser note. Prices show little change. Pompons are fine and plentiful, but hardly buoyant. Yellow and white are best. Pink often lags. Beauty is the only rose to rank with the autumn queen. Fancy Beauties have advanced in price. So have pink roses of first quality, for well colored pink of any variety is in demand. Choice carnations are firmer. Here, too, the gulf between fancy and ordinary is widening. Bouvardia is more abundant, chiefly in pink and red. Lavender has been added to pink and white in sweet peas. Cattleyas have gone up, while dendrobiums, cypripediums, vandas and oncidiums can all be had in numbers. Lilies and callas are on the back track. Violets, though reinforced from the Hudson river, are as scarce and active as a week ago. Valley is brisk; gardenias ditto, and a few greens in more favor than for some time past.

The prospect for Thanksgiving is thought to be excellent.

PRINCETON

We will have a large supply of this beautiful new glowing pink rose, unique in its color, admired by everyone who sees it.

Revival of the Corsage.

Charles Henry Fox is devoting his window this week to suggestions for corsage bouquets for the theater. The idea is brought out by pictures from "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," now running at one of the theaters. Pine trees form the background. Pine cones, too, are there, with the daintiest of corsage bunches: violets and gardenias for the theater and orchids and valley for box parties. Then, too, there is a violet special; also violet delivery boxes to enhance the beauty of the flowers, a rich effect.

The Cabinet.

President Thilow has selected his official family: David Rust, secretary of state; George Craig, secretary of the treasury; Frederick Hahman, secretary of the interior; Robert Craig, secretary

Each has the support of strong associates. The selection of Messrs. Hahman and Niessen are the surprises. Both are looked upon with great favor by those best qualified to judge, while the cabinet as a whole is regarded as strong. Regular meetings will be held the first Tuesday of every month.

Various Notes.

An eminent plantsman assures me that the mere sight of a house of araucarias brings vividly before him the name and face of Godfrey Aschmann.

George Burton, the successful Beauty grower of Wyndmoor, Pa., is experimenting with some of the other roses, including Melody, Mrs. Aaron Ward, My Maryland and the three Killarneys —Killarney, Double Killarney and White Killarney. Killarney, grown cool, is a wonderfully fine sight.

The Rev. Francis Heyl addressed the Germantown Horticultural Society on "A Summer in Mount Pocono," at the chrysanthemum meeting held in the boys' parlor of the association on the evening of November 13.

Adolph Muller, of Norristown, Pa., asserts that My Maryland is one of the best outdoor roses, an assertion that is supported by no less an authority than George Redles.

Two notable commercial exhibits at the flower show last week were the white lilac of W. F. La Croix, Buena, N. J., and the orchids of Alphonse Pericat, Collingdale, Pa.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report heavy imports, 243, 419 and 418 cases for them on successive steamers just arrived.

D. T. Connor goes to Chicago this week to arrange for opening the Philadelphia branch of the Foley Mfg. Co.

Visitors to the flower show in this city last week: Alexander Montgomery, Natick, Mass.; Robert Montgomery, South Hadley, Mass.; William Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Patrick O'Mara, New York; John Donaldson, Elmhurst, N. Y.; the Heck brothers, Frank Shearer and Mrs. Shearer, Wyomissing, Pa.; J. Murray Bassett, Hammonton, N. J.; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; William Swayne, Kennett, Pa.; Daniel E. Gorman, Williamsport, Pa.; Ernest Ashley and Mrs. Ashley, Allentown, Pa.

Charles Zimmer, West Collingswood, N. J., lost one greenhouse in the violent storm the night of November 12. The house was blown down and the contents, callas and stevia, were frozen in the cold that followed, a serious and most unfortunate loss.

Fred Ehret has the reputation of being an excellent judge of the flower market.

Lost—A day, by G. C. Watson, last week. The finder will receive a liberal reward by returning to Edward Reid, 1619 Ranstead street.

Of all the aspirants for civic fame in the floral world, only Raymond Kester is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his election to a position of honor and trust by the citizens of Morton, Delaware county.

Robert Shoch, with M. Rice & Co., has returned from northern New Jersey, with that joyous smile that coins and holds friends everywhere.

Robert Craig will deliver the third of the Michell lectures, November 25, at 3 p. m. Fully 175 persons attended the second lecture, November 13, by Maurice Fuld, on "Hardy Bulbs and Perennials."

Three pleasing varieties of chrysanthemums this week are Golden Wedding, at the handsome new store of Berger Bros., now in good running order, and Golden King, at William J. Baker's, and some magnificent Chadwick at Alfred M. Campbell's. Phil.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Too many mums is still the general report. There is not, however, the overwhelming glut noted in former years. There is a tremendous outpouring of them, but sales are good, although prices which ruled in years gone by are never reached. Bonnaffon is seen in greater numbers than any other variety and is still the most popular commercial sort. Others seen in quantity are President Roosevelt, Mrs. David Syme, Intensity, Shrimpton, Eaton, Jerome Jones, Maud Dean, Nagoya and Mrs. Weeks. Roses have cleaned up well of late, which is unusual while the mum season is at its flood tide. The two Killarneys are now of fine quality. Mrs. Waddell is a popular store sort, and sales of Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Ward continue excellent. Richmond is coming of much better quality.

Carnations rarely rise above $2 per hundred and may go at half this price or less. Violets are not overplentiful and a little higher in price. Paper White narcissi now are in too heavy supply. Roman hyacinths are also coming from several growers. There are some good antirrhinums. Sweet peas are moving a little better, but valley is overabundant. There is also a good supply of lilies. Pansies from one prominent grower are of superb quality and readily sell at $1 per hundred. Bouvardia Humboldtii is popular and

Club Meeting.

There were 125 present at the club meeting November 14. Seven new members were elected. A progressive report was made by the Amherst College committee. Two field days were announced for December. For the sweet pea show $50 was appropriated.

The committee on nominations presented the following slate:

President—Thomas Pegler.
Vice-president—W. J. Kennedy.
Secretary—W. N. Craig.
Treasurer—Peter Fisher.

Executive committee—W. J. Patterson, P. M. Miller, A. E. Thatcher, H. H. Bartsch, W. Robb, Wm. Sim, A. Christensen, P. J. Van Baarda, W. McGillivray.

An interesting paper was read by Christian Van Der Voet, the title being: "Are Americans Interested in Horticulture?" The discussions were lively.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society the following, among other committees, were appointed for the ensuing year:

Prizes and Exhibitions—J. A. Pettigrew, chairman; Robert Cameron, Wm. Downs, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, M. A. Patten, Wilfred Wheeler.

Plants and Flowers—T. D. Hatfield, chairman; A. H. Fewkes, Wm. Nicholson, Thomas Roland, Wm. C. Rust, William Sim.

Lectures and Publications—W. J. Stewart, chairman; Robert Cameron, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Edward B. Wilder.

An appropriation of $6,000 was made for prizes for shows in 1912. An invitation was extended to the National Sweet Pea Society to hold its summer show in Boston, July 13 and 14, 1912.

Victor Lemoine, of Nancy, France, was unanimously awarded the George R. White medal of honor for his eminent services to horticulture.

Various Notes.

H. W. Field, of Northampton, through Thomas Pegler, is disposing of quantities of fine Richmond, White and Pink Killarney and Mrs. Ward roses at present.

Edward Winkler is the proud father of a nine-pound boy, born November 9.

Edward MacMulkin reports fall trade as excellent. He has secured many contracts for landscape work for the coming spring, which had been in abeyance for a year. Store trade is first-class.

R. D. Kimball, of Waban, just now is specially strong on Nagoya, Bonnaffon, Wanamaker and Eaton chrysanthemums; also fine violets.

J. Leach & Son, of North Easton, have nearly finished cutting mums, but are now cutting excellent valley. Their new carnation, Pink Supreme, looks fine.

William H. Elliott has, among other roses, Mrs. A. R. Waddell of fine quality. He finds roses sell well. He expects to double his sales of Asparagus Sprengeri the coming season, finding it profitable.

The Waban Rose Conservatories, which did not grow any mums for some years, is handling some this season. The Bonnaffons are superb.

J. W. Foote is a wonderful grower of Bouvardia Humboldtii. He measured bunches November 11 just a yard long. No other grower seems able to get such stems.

Montrose Greenhouses grow all roses well, but at this time they feel more proud of the Richmond than any others. They are certainly fine.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are keeping busy and say that fall business has been eminently satisfactory.

Herman Waldecker has Chrysanthemum Mrs. Weeks of extra fine quality and Eatons in quantity. He is also well to the front with violets.

The annual election of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurs November 18.

Wm. W. Edgar Co. has President Roosevelt, Intensity, Jerome Jones, Bonnaffon and Eaton mums as fine as any I have seen this seaon. Their Lorraines and cyclamens are selling fast.

The Halifax Garden Co., through the Boston Flower Growers' Sales Co., is now disposing of an immense cut of mums and carnations of excellent quality.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, is still cutting fine Cattleya labiata. He has a splendid lot of Trianæ in sheath and has already cut a few. He will have a fine crop of these for Christmas. In his carnation houses, White Wonder, Pink Delight, Gloriosa, White Enchantress, White Perfection, Dorothy Gordon and Beacon are looking extremely well.

The Halifax Garden Co., of Halifax, Mass., held its annual fall exhibition at the greenhouses November 11 and 12, and several thousand people took occasion to visit and inspect the extensive and up-to-date plant. Chrysanthemums and carnations are the leading specialties.

S. J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and George E. Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y., were among recent visitors.

William Sim's pansies almost take people's breath away. Everything Mr. Sim takes in hand he does well and his pansies were never equaled in this market. W. N. Craig.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have bought of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad a parcel of land on Elm street, Dedham, containing about seven and one-quarter acres, and abutting the present holdings of the grantees. The buyers intend to build heating plants and nurseries.

Superior, Wis.—F. H. Rockwood is erecting four additional greenhouses on Elmira avenue, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets. Three of the new houses are each 20x100; the other is 12x30.

The accompanying cut shows a sample of the

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The cut flower business last week showed great improvement over that of the preceding week. The west end florists say they had a lot of work for receptions, dinners and weddings. There was also considerable plant trade, for which the weather was then just right. Now, since the weather has become so much colder, we can look for a steady general business.

The wholesale markets, too, are receiving much better stock in all varieties, especially in mums, violets and carnations, and prices have advanced on fancy grades. All roses are arriving in fine condition and in large quantities, and, in spite of the big supply of mums, are having an excellent sale. Violets are limited in quantity and are cleaned up daily. Fancy mums and carnations are selling well. Valley and lilies are plentiful. There was a good call for smilax all through the week, and for other greens as well.

Dayton, Ohio, September 7, 1911.

Chas. S. Lee & Co., Evergreen, Ala.

Gentlemen: It is a pleasure and a revelation to receive regularly our weekly order of Southern Smilax from your firm. It is the best and freshest we ever had from any point in the South, being far superior to any we ever handled, and we use hundreds of cases annually. The packing is also above the average. What makes your Smilax excel all others is because you gather it and ship the same day. Most respectfully yours, teresting meeting on Thursday afternoon, November 9, in its rooms in Odd Fellows' hall. The meeting was noted for the large attendance of both members and visitors. Prominent among them were: President Geo. Asmus and President-elect R. Vincent, Jr., of the S. A. F.; President Philpott and Secretary Pyfer, of the Chicago Florists' Club; President Elmer D. Smith and President-elect C. H. Totty, of the Chrysanthemum Society; Vice-President-elect August Poehlmann, of the S. A. F.; A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the Carnation Society; Secretary Johnson and Vice-President-elect Wallace Pierson, of the Chrysanthemum Society, and J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association.

President Robert J. Windler opened the meeting at 3 o'clock, with Mr. Philpott at his right and R. Vincent, Jr., at his left. Every seat in the big hall was taken. A few remarks from some of the visitors, called upon by the chair, were then heard, but some of the best speakers were reserved for the after-dinner talks.

After adjournment the members and guests were escorted to Lippe's cafe for dinner, at which eighty-three were seated. At the close of a good, substantial feast, with cigars for the finish, J. F. Ammann, who was elected toastmaster, said that he would call on some of the visitors for talks. President Windler made the address of welcome and was followed by Messrs. Totty, Smith, Asmus, Vincent, Foley, Baur, Pierson, Balsley, Mann, Poehlmann and Ammann, who made some great talks for the good of the S. A. F., the florists' clubs and our profession. Then all in attendance were taken in a body to the Coliseum, where the flower show was being held.

Various Notes.

C. H. Totty and W. H. Duckham, the eastern mum kings, were with us last week. They are almost inseparable companions and two finer gentlemen would be hard to find. Their cut stock was featured during the week.

Last week quite a few florists from outside the city were here, attracted by the flower show. They were entertained by the local craft with a banquet at the American hotel on Wednesday evening, and a dinner at Lippe's cafe on Thursday afternoon. The show lasted five days and, with the help of the Chrysanthemum Society, was a really creditable affair, but it has not as yet been learned whether it was a financial success.

Adam Zender, a well known Chicago florist, who is here visiting his son-in-law, R. J. Windler, had a narrow escape from being killed November 6. In company with W. C. Smith, he took a trip out in the country, visiting the growers, when an automobile ran into their buggy from the rear and dumped both of them into a ditch. The buggy was demolished and both men were painfully though not seriously hurt. Mr. Smith was not able to attend to business during the week, but, according to reports, will be out this week.

The exhibit of the McCray Refrigerator Co. at the flower show was quite an attraction for the local and visiting retailers, as well as the visiting public.

The lecture given on Thursday night by President-elect Richard Vincent, Jr., at the Coliseum, was a good feature of the week's program and was largely attended by the ladies, who gave Mr. Vincent a good reception at the finish.

The Ladies' Home Circle gave a euchre and dinner to the visiting ladies at the Marquette hotel on Thursday afternoon. A large attendance of ladies from outside the city was expected, as usual, but, strange to say, Mrs. Richard Vincent was the only lady visitor during the show, and the ladies of the Circle think the "men folks" quite selfish to come alone.

The Missouri Botanical Garden will open its chrysanthemum show to the public this week. It will continue, weather permitting, for two weeks, and will be held in a large tent, as usual.

Park Commissioner Davis guided the city park committee on a tour of the public parks and playgrounds November 10. The committee encouraged the commissioner in his new plans for improvements at all the smaller parks.

The Engelmann Botanical Club held its monthly meeting on Monday evening, in the graduate lecture room at the Missouri Botanical Garden. The

HOLLY-HOLLY-HOLLY

I have just returned from a two weeks' trip through the Holly sections of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and have contracted for my supply for the season of 1911. I expect to have several cars of very fine, dark green, well-berried Swamp Holly. I will have it packed as usual in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and guaranteed as represented. My first car will arrive in Philadelphia about December 1st. I filled all orders received last year and gave entire satisfaction and I hope to do so again this season. My price this year on orders received up to December 1st is $3.00 per case. After that date, at market price, which I am quite sure will be higher on account of scarcity.

HOLLY WREATHS

My Holly Wreaths will be made of the very finest selected dark green Holly on 10 inch hoops, and will be well-berried $10 00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to quality.

LAUREL WREATHING

My Laurel Wreat ing will be made of the brightest Swamp Laurel that it is possible to secure, in 50-yard lengths. Price, 2½c and 3c per yard.

MISTLETOE

My Mistletoe, from North Carolina, will be extra selected and full of berries. Per case, $3.50 to $5.00, according to quality.

Lycopodium, in 10-yd. rolls, 5c to 8c per yd.

I make a specialty of the above and guarantee all goods as represented or money refunded. Cash must accompany all orders.

feature of the meeting was an illustrated talk by G. H. Pring, of the Botanical Garden, on "The Evolution of the Cultivated Chrysanthemum." The meeting was well attended.

C. Young & Sons Co. had a grand opening of the firm's new branch store, on Waterman avenue. For souvenirs they gave away a few thousand small ferns in gilded pots. This store is sure to become one of the most attractive places in the west end.

The Eggeling Floral Co., for many years at the northwest corner of Lafayette and Grand avenues, will move to the new location this week, just opposite, in a new, modern building. The old stand belongs to the Shaw estate, which will be laid out in lots and sold. The firm's name has been changed to Margaret Eggeling, Florist.

Messrs. Steidle, Bergstermann, Bruenig, Bourdet and Tesson, who judged all the exhibits at last week's flower show, did their work well. All the exhibitors were satisfied with the awards made.

Wm. F. Nichol, president of the St. Louis Seed Co., and A. J. Butterfield, of Farmington, Mo., made applications for membership in the St. Louis Florists' Club. Both will make valuable members.

Fred Lautenschlager was with us last week and, in company with W. J. Pilcher, visited the growers in St. Louis county in the interest of the Kroeschell boilers. J. J. B.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Considerable improvement in the flower market was noticed last week, brought about by the slightly cooler weather, the opening of the reception season, several weddings, and funeral work. Mums were in good demand and supply, and some choice Major Bonnaffon, Maud Dean, Col. Appleton and others were received and met with a good call. Roses are rather plentiful and of excellent quality, but the demand has been sluggish, the mums holding the center. Violets are arriving in good shape and carnations are coming better.

Various Notes.

George C. Kelley was defeated for membership in the general assembly from Providence at the recent election.

Joseph Kopelman was a visitor at the Boston flower show last week.

O. H. Williams was elected a member

BULBS A SECOND YEAR.

Please inform me in reference to bulbs that flowered last spring and were dug up after blooming. Will the old bulbs, such as hyacinths and tulips, flower again this coming spring if planted outdoors sometime in December? M. L.

Hyacinths will flower a second year if planted outdoors as soon as possible. December is rather late to plant any of these bulbs. Better get them in at once. Hyacinths will give much smaller spikes the second year. They are much better, however, if left outdoors undisturbed, in which case they usually improve from year to year. Tulips will flower a second year if the best bulbs are planted. The late varieties generally do better than the earlier ones. Of course, if these bulbs had not been dug up and dried directly after flowering, but had been heeled in soil after lifting until the foliage died down and then stored away, they would do better.

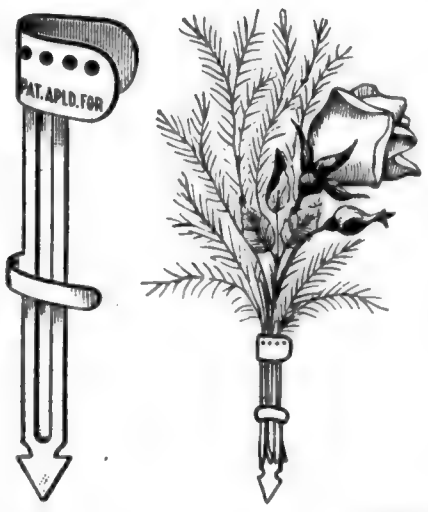
Vegetable Forcing.

"Is the tomato a fruit or a vegetable?" The next time someone puts that question to you, reply that unquestionably it is a vegetable—there is a United States Supreme Court decision to that effect. Mr. Justice Gray wrote the unanimous opinion of the court. He said: "Botanically speaking, tomatoes are the fruit of a vine, just as are cucumbers, squashes, beans and peas. But in the common language of the people, whether sellers or consumers of provisions, all these are vegetables, which are grown in kitchen gardens, and which, whether eaten cooked or raw, are * * * usually served at dinner in, with or after the soup, fish or meats, which constitute the principal part of the repast, and not like fruits generally, as dessert." 149 U. S., 304.

STEM-ROT OF LETTUCE.

Please tell me the cause of stem-rot in lettuce, and suggest a remedy. I have one house of lettuce which acts in a way that I can not understand. When just ready to use, the under leaves begin to spot and the stems rot close to the earth. Any help that you can give me will be gratefully received.
W. A.

Stem-rot of lettuce is a fungous disease, which flourishes in such dark, rainy weather as we have had lately. If it gets a start, the spores are spread rapidly and find ideal conditions for germination. Sunshine and fresh, cool, dry air are the enemies of all fungous diseases. Do not water your lettuce any more until the soil is thoroughly dry and needs water. Then water only on the ground between the plants; do not wet the leaves. Keep a little air on the house at night and keep it wide open in the daytime. Pull up the diseased and unsalable plants and scatter a little air-slaked lime on the soil where they were. H. G.



Syracuse, N. Y.—W. B. Kelso made a trip to Chicago recently and, figuratively speaking, returned with a Superior return flue, firebox boiler under his arm.

SEFTON FLORISTS' BOXES

CORRUGATED DESIGN STYLE AND FOLDING CUT FLOWER BOXES

Florists' success in shipping flowers depends to the greatest extent upon the point where their interest ceases in the sale of flowers. The progressive, prosperous florist retains his interest in a customer's order until it reaches destination, and for that reason he is careful to select the proper style and grade of box to insure safe delivery of his flowers.

Particular Florists are users of Sefton Corrugated Fibreboard Boxes for the shipment of Floral Designs as well as our superior line of Folding Cut Flower Boxes. They know from experience that Sefton Boxes combine high quality with low price and make neat, attractive packages which carry the flowers safely to destination. Write for our Flower Box Price List.

FUNGUS IN CUTTING BENCH.

I am much troubled by the damping off of cuttings in the sand. Can I use a spray to kill the fungous growth? What is it and how do I use it?

J. M.

Possibly your drainage is not so good as it should be, below the sand. Then, again, if the sand itself is too fine, it will lack porosity and be more liable to cause damping. If the latter is the case, you can improve matters by mixing some fine charcoal with the sand. This helps to keep it sweet as well as open. To kill the fungi, stir up the sand well and run live steam in it, if you can possibly do so. Failing this, soak the sand well with boiling water. This will destroy all fungi and make the sand practically as good as new.

Seven Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

THIS DEPARTMENT PAYS.

In sending their check for $9.10, to pay for a ½-inch card for six months in this department of The Review, McFarlands, Akron, Ohio, wrote on the bottom of the statement:

It is a good adv.; none better; have had a number of orders from it.

It is worth while noting that Akron is a city of 69,067 population. There are plenty of other larger places not yet represented in the department that have larger populations and would naturally get more exchange orders.

DENVER.

The Market.

A complete clean-up has been the rule each day for the last two weeks, and business compares favorably with the same period a year ago. This is due to funeral work. The largest funeral in some time, from a florist's viewpoint, was that of ex-Governor J. B. Grant, where a small fortune was represented in flowers. Long Beauties were in demand and the grower who was fortunate enough to have a crop on had no trouble in disposing of them. Prior to the funeral there was practically no call for Beauties and for a while it looked as though they would be a loss, but such was not the case.

There are many chrysanthemums on the market, but apparently there is room for all of them. Prices are low, and that fact may have some influence in moving them quickly. The football season is on, but the chrysanthemum no longer seems necessary for the success of the game. About one-fourth as many mums are sold now as there were three or four years ago. Something extraordinary should be done to revive the custom.

Carnations are not equal to the demand. Many growers are troubled with stem-rot this year; others planted their stock late and are cutting only a few. The prospect for Christmas, however, is bright, as everyone expects to be in crop at that time.

Violets are not a complete success this season. The plants are making slow progress, and in some instances are affected with "smallpox." It is necessary to go over three or four houses to get a few hundred blooms, and the violet growers are losing patience. The price has been raised from 50 cents to $1 per hundred, although the quality is not first-class. Shipments of violets from California are coming in, but fastidious buyers will not tolerate them. They have no fragrance, half of the blooms are asleep when they arrive, and the other half go to sleep almost as soon as they are exposed to the air. It is a question whether or not one comes out even on these violet shipments. The mercury hovered around the zero point November 11 and 12, making it impossible for the violet peddlers to stand in the streets.

Various Notes.

The Colorado Florists' Club held its monthly meeting November 6 at T. M. A. hall. About twenty-five members were present. The officers nominated at the previous meeting were elected: President, A. H. Bush; vice-president, E. S. Kennedy; secretary, E. P. Neiman; treasurer, B. Boldt; trustees, Emil Glauber, E. S. Kennedy and C. R. Root.

No bowling team has been organized, because it is impossible to get a sufficient number to join. George Braun suggested to the meeting that in his opinion a flower show could profitably be held in the fall of 1912. His suggestion was taken up by other members, and by vote of those present a special meeting was called for Monday evening, November 13, to decide whether or not it would be advisable to proceed with that end in view. The decision will be announced in the next Denver report.

The Park Floral Co. sent cards by mail to its customers inviting them to visit its greenhouses during the first week in November, when they would be given an opportunity of seeing chrysanthemums as they are grown on a modern commercial place. A touch of formality was added by serving tea to all those who called.

Thomas McDonald, who for some time conducted the flower store at Fifteenth and Lawrence streets, and later was in the employ of the Speth Floral Co., has opened a store on Welton street, near the office of the Rocky Mountain News.

The new store of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co., during the formal opening last week, was elaborately decorated. Many potted chrysanthemums were used and also quantities of cut flowers, palms and ferns. After the opening all the plants used in decorating were placed on sale at reduced prices.

bringing in is extra fine, having stems nearly eighteen inches long. Mr. Glauber has a sash house filled with chrysanthemums and expects to cut from $400 to $500 worth of blooms for Thanksgiving. The house is rather dark, and he has no trouble in holding the flowers until that time.

Cupid has undoubtedly been working overtime among the florists, there being three weddings in less than two weeks. None of them were boosters for the business, for instead of a fine wedding decoration, bouquets and boutonnieres, they went off quietly, never telling anyone about it until it was all over. The first was N. A. Benson—he had been married almost a week before it was discovered. Then cards were received announcing the marriage of Thos. W. Hannah, manager of the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co., and Miss Ruby A. Ordway, Saturday, November 4. Saturday, November 11, a marriage license was issued to George W. Graul and Mary Weishaupl.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are now in the height of their glory and much decorating is done with their aid. Parties and weddings are numerous here this month. There have been a number of funerals and much design work was in demand. Violets are plentiful and cattleyas are fine. Roses and carnations are good.

Various Notes.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. W. Jung, representing J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis.

IT has been wet in the Wisconsin woods, rain and snow, and little bouquet green has been picked lately.

THE government report shows the corn crop for 1911 to average 23.9 bushels per acre, comparing with 27.4 bushels last year and a 10-year average of 26 bushels.

JACOT & MULLEN, dealers in seeds, have been incorporated at Moorestown, N. J., with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are: W. Jacot, of New York city; H. W. Doughten and E. A. Gill, of Moorestown.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed at Louisville, Ky., for the Hall Seed Co. Seeds and farm machinery and implements will be handled. The incorporators are E. C. Foltz, F. P. Hall and W. B. Bunton. Capital stock, $50,000.

ADVICES from Ordway, Colo., state that the cucumber crops in that vicinity were frozen before they were threshed and were then thawing out and soft, so the growers would not handle them. These conditions will cause a shortage with the parties to whom the crops are contracted, although to what extent can not be stated.

THE Southern Seed Co., of Louisville, Ky., has filed notice that it will cease doing business in Indiana.

THE Holland seeds are being shipped earlier this year than usual and the same is true of seeds from other parts of Europe. Weather conditions, while unfavorable to seed crops, assisted in ripening, harvesting, drying, cleaning, etc.

THE customs authorities still are busy adjusting protests on duty on hyacinth bulbs imported prior to the decision of the test case of Breck vs. United States. A large number of these protests were on the suspended file. Last week the board of appraisers followed the Breck decision in protests of F. L. Roberts & Co., Boston; H. Water, Philadelphia; Wm. Elliott & Sons, New York; American Shipping Co., New York, and two of the International Forwarding Co., Chicago.

DISCLAIMER UPHELD AGAIN.

Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision.

The Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, recently has secured a decision in the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, in a suit against the Crary Canning Co. that passes directly on the seedsmen's nonwarranty as embodied in the contract.

George R. Pedrick & Son

agreed to furnish 1,000 bushels of Advancer peas. Such peas were to be grown during the season of 1908, to be delivered after harvest, but in season for the planting trade for the year 1909. A quantity of peas was delivered under this contract to the defendant, it giving its promissory notes in payment therefor according to the terms of the contract. The peas so sold were in turn sold by the defendant to various farmers for the purpose of planting; and under contracts by virtue of which the farmers agreed to sell the peas raised from such seed to the defendant. The plaintiff brought action upon the notes. The defendant, among other things, interposed a counterclaim setting forth that the peas furnished were not Advancer peas; that they were received by the defendant without knowledge of that fact; that there was no means of discovering that they were not Advancer peas until after they had been sowed and the seed had germinated, and that as soon as the defendant discovered that the peas were not of the variety purchased it notified plaintiff. The counterclaim further set forth that the peas were mixed with other different varieties, making it impossible to harvest them without a mixture of overripe peas of varieties other than Advancer. Facts are pleaded tending to show damage, and judgment is asked for the amount thereof. On the trial the court allowed the defendant to amend its answer by setting up a new counterclaim for the purchase price of the peas. The trial court held that the peas were sold without warranty as to quality or description, and directed a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, less $343.75. The peas were shipped from Chicago and invoiced on the basis of fifty-six pounds to the bushel. The court held that the defendant was entitled to receive sixty pounds per bushel, and hence made the foregoing reduction. From a judgment in plaintiff's favor defendant appeals.

The contract for the sale of the peas contained the following provision:

"It is also understood and agreed that the party of the first part (plaintiff) does not give, and its agents and employees are forbidden to give, any warranty, express or implied, as to description, quality, productiveness, or any other matter, of any seeds, delivered or to be delivered by it, and that it is not, and will not be in any way responsible for the crops."

Counsel for the appellant admit "that plaintiff is freed by the terms of this contract from all liability as to the seed in question being good or bad, large or small, wrinkled or smooth, black or white, wormy, sound, vital or dead." But counsel argue that the peas furnished under the contract must be of the Advancer variety and that plaintiff was not relieved by its contract from liability for damage resulting from furnishing peas other than Advancer peas. It was practically conceded on the argument that the clause quoted was intended to exempt the plaintiff from such liability as was sought to be enforced against it under the counterclaim in this action. The concession was advisedly made. The peas to be delivered under the contract were described therein as Advancer peas. But the contract provided that no warranty express or implied was given that the peas furnished should be of the description named therein. If a dealer in seed peas can exempt itself from liability for selling bad, wormy or dead peas to a grower, no good reason is apparent why it cannot go further and say that it will not be responsible in the event of an intermixture of other peas with the variety agreed to be furnished. Neither of the parties here are under guardianship or incompetent to contract. There is no claim that the contract signed was not the one agreed upon or that both parties did not fully understand what they were agreeing to. Plaintiff plainly undertook to relieve itself from liability in case of intermixture, and defendant agreed that it should be relieved. It is not claimed that the contract is void because contrary to public law or to public policy, and, if not, effect should be given to it. The vendee might reject and refuse to receive the peas if they were not Advancer peas, or it might well be that in the event of the shipment being made in bad faith, and with the purpose and intention of committing fraud upon the vendee, an action for damages for the fraud would lie, but we have no such case before us. If it be conceded that the contract is one-sided, it must also be conceded that the parties had a right to make a one-sided contract if they saw fit.

Counsel for appellant cite the following authorities to sustain the contention that, notwithstanding the agreement of the parties, there was a warranty that the peas sold would answer the description contained in the contract, or in any event that there was a breach of a condition that the contract by the failure of the plaintiff to furnish the thing contracted for. Josling vs. Kingsford, 13 C. B. (N. S.) 447; Columbian I. W. & D. D. Co. vs. Douglas, 33 L. R. A. 103; Shephere vs. Kain, 5 B. & Ald. 240; Allan vs. Lake, 18 Q. B. 560; Weiler vs. Schilizzi, 17 C. B. 619. These cases do not hold that a party selling an article under a designated name may not relieve himself from liability in his contract for sale, in the event that the article delivered does not answer the description contained in the contract. Some very general language is used in the contracts of sale involved in the cases cited, and in some of them it might well be construed as being broad enough to extend to the description of the article, but in none of the cases has it been so construed. These cases were decided upon the theory that this general language was intended to refer to the quality of the article furnished and not to the description of the article itself. In Taylor vs. Bullen, 5 Excheq. Reports 779, where an article was sold and the party undertook to relieve himself from liability in his contract of sale by stating that he would not be liable for "any defect or error whatsoever," it was held that the word "error" was broad enough to include an error in description as well as an error in quality, and that there was no liability on the part of the vendor, even though the article furnished did not answer the description of the article contracted for.

If the seller expressly refuses to warrant, there can be no excuse for raising an implied warranty. Habersham vs. Rodrigues, 1 Speers (S. C.) 314; Farr vs. Gist, 1 Rich. Law (S. C.) 68; Fauntelroy vs. Wilcox, 80 Ill. 477; Lynch vs. Curfman, 65 Minn. 170.

In case of Blizzard Brothers vs. Growers' Canning Co., 132 N. W. (Ia.) 176, is directly in point. There a package was marked "Large cheese pumpkin seed," and sold as such, when in fact it contained Connecticut pie pumpkin seed, mixed with a few squash. On the package the following warranty was printed: "While we exercise great care to have all seeds pure and reliable and true to name, our seeds are sold without any warranty, express or implied, and without any responsibility in respect to the crop." There was no evidence to show that the purchaser read this warranty, but there was evidence showing that it was a general custom among seedsmen to sell seeds without warranty as to quality and as to true name, and such custom was held to be binding upon the purchaser. A contract deliberately entered into between two parties exempting one of them from liability in case seeds sold are not true to name, should be as binding as a custom among dealers not to sell with a warranty that the seeds furnished are true to description.

As before stated, we do not hold that, if the plaintiff acted in bad faith and with the intention of deceiving and defrauding the defendant, or even if it failed to exercise due care and caution in selecting the seed, the latter would not have a cause of action for the resulting damage. No such cause of action has been stated in the counterclaim and no claim was made on the argument that any such cause of action was relied upon or existed.

GLADIOLI

ANNOUNCEMENT

I AM PREPARED to fill orders for Gladioli, as I have a fine stock of large, clean bulbs. I wish to call particular attention to PRESIDENT TAFT, a large pink of very robust growth, and GOLDEN QUEEN, a fine, rich golden color. Both of these varieties received an award at the Cincinnati Convention two years ago, and GOLDEN QUEEN won the Boddington Trophy for "Best Yellow Gladiolus" at the Rochester Exhibition last year. These are good forcing varieties. I am growing them to sell and am not asking a fancy price.

PRESIDENT TAFT, 1½ to 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000
GOLDEN QUEEN, ... 4.00 per 100; 30.00 per 1000

I can also supply AMERICA, second and third sizes; EASTER, FLORIDA, EUGENE SCRIBE, GEO. PAUL, KLONDYKE, MADAME MONNERET, MRS. FRANCIS KING, MOHONK and many other varieties, besides mixtures. Write for trade list.

YOURS FOR TRADE,

E. E. STEWART, Rives Jct., Mich.

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 335 to the case, $15.00 per case; full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case, 16.00 per case; full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case, 18.00 per case; full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots . . . . . $0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants . $1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants . . . . 2.50 each

The ruling of the trial court excluding testimony tending to show that the peas furnished were not Advancer peas, was correct on the record presented. There was present but one of two elements that were necessary to constitute a cause of action. The element of bad faith was not presented by the pleadings, and no claim was made by counsel that such bad faith existed. We find no error in the record.

By the Court—Judgment affirmed.

cumber and melon seeds, with a total market value of $1,072. The seeds were consigned to a large supply house in Chicago and were procured from a special machine purchased last summer by the Van der Karrs, who have for many years been prominent melon growers in this county. The entire crop of melons and cucumbers was allowed to mature and was run through the machine and the seeds extracted. The senior Van der Karr has specialized on the growing of melons in Aroma township for the past forty-nine years.''

SEED ACREAGE NOT CHANGED.

Report has come from San Jose, Cal., of a sale of part of the real estate holdings of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co. In explaining the transaction, J. W. Edmundson, sales manager for the company, says:

''The Braslan Seed Growers' Co. purchased on speculation 650 acres of land on Downer avenue, south of San Jose. When this land came into our possession it was largely marsh. We drained it and improved it to a considerable extent. It was not our policy to use it for seed purposes. For a time it was rented to the Kimberlin Seed Co. During our ownership we grew one crop of seed on the property. As I said before, it was purely a speculation, and just as soon as we found a buyer we sold it. This was merely a little outside business and does not affect our output of seed in the slightest particular.''

Always mention the Florists' Review when writing advertisers.

To try and do away with the middleman in the bulb importing business is like trying to economize on the policeman in the middle of a busy street. It's a sort of finesse that seldom works out profitably. There are so many ways a buyer can become a loser by doing his own importing that it is not policy for the average grower to do it. It is a business by itself, and it's better for most buyers to buy from an American house than a foreign one, because you can get in quick, close touch with those responsible without difficulty and expense. This alone has saved buyers many a dollar that would otherwise have been lost to brokers and other parasites, whose business it is to prey upon the unwary and ignorant in all sorts of ways that cost money. Buy your bulbs and plants from good, first-class American houses—in the long run you can't do better anyway, and, besides, by helping Americans you help yourself and encourage home industry. What business do you get from a man entirely foreign to this country? Who supports you and your business—the Americans or the foreigners? Support those who support you—and, above all, don't let a foreigner sail home with a mortgage on your bank account and a lien on your business.

Chicago Market Brand
New Stock is Now Ready

This is the best stock for early forcing, if strictly fancy valley is wanted. When it was shipped my grower wrote: "The finest shipment that is going to the U. S. this season,"—and he knows.

My representative in Europe is constantly on the lookout for the best pips to be had. Bruns' Chicago Market Brand is the result.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston June 1912.

HE is the Hon. John S. Kerr in Texas.

THE state of Michigan conducts a nursery from which stock, mostly evergreen seedlings, is sold at cost. The nursery is at Higgins Lake, Roscommon county.

L. R. TAFT, state inspector of orchards and nurseries in Michigan, reports that the stock examined in the various nurseries of the state is particularly clean this season and is free from any sign of the brown-tail or gypsy moth.

APPLE TREE NOT FRUITING.

I would like to know if you can give me information in regard to an apple tree. It is four years old and has flowered this season, but did not have fruit and is growing very tall. Would it be advisable to cut the top off or to trim the branches? Any information you can give me in this regard will be greatly appreciated. C. M.

It is probable that you have failed to prune your tree as is necessary for a few years in order to get it into a good shape. The pruning would have consisted of shortening back new growths half their length and removing small branches which seemed to be crowding others. If you have not done any pruning it may be necessary to do so now, but do not do it too radically. If cut back severely you will only get a lot of rank growths. Head it back moderately after the foliage has fallen and do not leave too much wood in.

Apple trees, except dwarfs, do not fruit to any extent for from eight to ten years. Therefore, you need not become discouraged at your tree not bearing yet. Perhaps you are giving it too much nitrogenous food. This promotes a strong but not fruitful growth. To check this feed another year with potash and phosphoric acid, and do not use any barnyard manure, bone or other fertilizers containing nitrogen. Cultivate freely about the tree until the end of July, but not later. C. W.

THE NURSERYMAN.

[An extract from the address of Jim Parker, Tecumseh, Okla., before the St. Louis Convention of the American Association of Nurserymen.]

I think that a campaign of education to convince the people that our business is useful and honorable would be one of the best methods of increasing sales. We should impress upon the world the fact that the nursery salesman is a useful citizen and that his persuasive powers are needed to add that spark of hope and energy that induces men to plant orchards and beautify their homes. We should stand up for the dignity and honor of our business with such faithfulness and sincerity that cheap newspaper wits and goods-box loafers will no longer dare by their vulgar jokes to insult the men whose work has done and is doing so much to increase the beauty and comfort of the world. We should impress upon the world the thought that the men who are doing so much to make of this earth a garden of bloom, a feast of fragrance and a paradise of plenty, are doing their duty and fulfilling the designs of their Creator just as much as the man who drives the reaper, wields the hammer, or whose voice is heard from the pulpit or before the courts of justice.

The public seems willing enough to honor the agriculturist. We should remind them that the nurseryman is the highest type of agriculturist. The nurseryman puts more labor into, and spends more money on, the cultivation of an acre of ground than any other tiller of the soil. He spends most of his days mid fragrant flowers and growing trees. His mind is employed trying to understand more of the laws of life and growth. For him the secrets and beauties of nature have a peculiar fascination. As he stirs the soil to warm it up, to dry it out, to conserve its moisture, to give it air and sunshine that it may unlock its storehouse of fertility for the nourishment of life, and as he watches its kindly response to his care, he sometimes fancies that indeed the earth is imbued with life and wisdom and that the trees and flowers he loves are to him close akin. He looks beyond the field in which he plows and sees the great railways hurrying their trainloads of fruit from the mountains of the west to the cities of the east, and it does him good to know that his labors in the fields and his influenec with men have helped to bring into being this great wealth. And, looking still beyond the field of thriving enterprise, he catches a glimpse of thousands of orchards in bloom, while 'neath the trees the children play or ponder over the mysteries of nature even as he did in childhood's happiest days, and he asks the question: "Has not he done his part of the labor of the world and for the joys of his youth provided by those who came before given back to the world full measure?"

PACIFIC COAST.

The Wenatchee Valley Nursery Co., at Wenatchee, Wash., has made arrangements to establish a branch nursery at Molson, Wash.

Pacific coast growers will be specially interested in the letter, "Gladiolus Topics," which appears on another page of this issue. Mr. Pryal speaks of conditions in the vicinity of San Francisco.

A Pacific coast nurseryman who has been around a bit is quoted as saying: "One thing that struck me as significant is that most of the growers on the coast are planting canning fruits, such as cling peaches and Bartlett pears, and passing up the shipping fruits. This is due in a great measure to the low prices shipping fruits brought in the eastern markets this year."

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Frost and a few days of cold weather have at last put a quietus on all outside stock, except where it was well sheltered. Business has picked up accordingly; yet there is a laxity, compared with former years. Mums are plentiful and are the leading commodity on the market. White Killarneys seem to be plentiful, but there is a scarcity of pink varieties. Carnations are more abundant, with an increased demand. Prominent funerals and weddings of the last week utilized all available orchids and valley.

Various Notes.

John D. Arentshorst, representing Baartman & Koning, bulb growers of Sassenheim, Holland, is calling on the local trade this week.

John Holden is looking after the growing end of Clarke Bros.' range.

The Heilig Flower Shop discontinued business November 1, not finding it a profitable location. E. R. C.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Although business conditions in this vicinity are not all that could be expected, the demand has been fairly good and there is extremely little surplus stock, especially in the better grades. The weather has been fine; too fine, indeed, to suit the growers, as there has not been sufficient frost to kill the outdoor flowers and it is not unusual to see roses, dahlias and other kinds of outdoor plants in full bloom. Carnation stock is of good grade and some of the best mums ever seen in this market are now coming in. Roses are slow, but of good quality.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club met November 2, in its new club room at the Tacoma hotel, and, after a general business meeting, adjourned to give the members time to bowl. The club now has a membership of thirty-one, and can feel justly proud of the work being accomplished, both for the business firms and the employees.

The Flower Shop is being reopened this week, under the management of the Smith Floral Co. Mr. Smith is remodeling the whole store front and will have an up-to-date retail place when it is finished. The stock will be furnished from the company's greenhouses in the south end.

A party of local florists called on S. Poolman, manager of the greenhouses of the Woodland Floral Co., at Sumner, last Sunday. They all report that they had a pleasant time and found the stock in fine condition.

J. L. S.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business is only fair, if one must be truthful. The weather is too beautiful for anything except a superabundance of flowers, and when we have this condition at this season, where there is always more or less of an excess of mums, the balance of the stock suffers. The big Berkeley-Stanford game this week, and preparations for the Thanksgiving holiday almost immediately afterwards, will stimulate trade, no doubt, and put prices right. The mums just spoken of are in elegant shape this season and are as popular as ever. Violets, owing to the cooler nights, are coming into town with stiffer stems and richer color daily. They move well. Roses of the short-stemmed quality are in too heavy supply for the demand and, although not so cheap as they have been, move slowly. Outdoor flowers are about as usual, except that sweet peas are over and dahlias and late-flowering amaryllis are near the end of their season. Smilax is more plentiful and adiantum somewhat scarcer.

Various Notes.

We are glad to report that McMillan Brown is on the road to recovery after a severe sickness. He expects to leave the hospital in a few days.

Geo. C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno, Cal., is in town.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held in Red Men's hall on the evening of November 4. About fifty members were in attendance.

Chas. Bagnall, formerly with the Sievers-Cornwell Co., and more recently with Wright's Flower Shop, in Los Angeles, is in town and will permanently locate here.

Mrs. C. F. Wells, of the Gem Nursery, Los Gatos, is in town calling on the local trade.

The first of the Holland bulb salesmen has arrived in San Francisco. P. Krouwel, representing Speelmen & Sons, of Sassenheim, is the party.

From advices from nurserymen in central and southern California it seems the trade is much more backward this season than it should be and the feeling is general that nothing short of a heavy rain will stimulate the plant department to a healthy showing. G.

nursery stock began in the latter part of October. Not so much planting will be done this year as there has been in some years in the past, but there will be a great deal. Record of each shipment must be sent to the state office in Tacoma, as well as to the office of the local inspector into whose territory the shipment is made.

New interest in horticulture is being aroused west of the mountains, a meeting being planned to be held in Centralia, to encourage the development of that section in the same manner in which the Puyallup valley has been developed. Mr. Huntley and others interested in horticulture will speak at this meeting.

Richmond, Cal.—Adolph Winters has closed his establishment at Fourth street and McDonald avenue and has organized a flower and nursery business in West Richmond, under the name of the Adolph Winters Co. He reports a good trade.

Los Angeles, Cal.—It is reported that Frank M. Smith, formerly of the Smith & Fetters Co., Cleveland, O., has stated that he is making plans to open a first-class flower store here. Mr. Smith has resided here for some time. He is now on an eastern trip. He is one of the most skillful flower artists in the country.

Seattle, Wash.—The city park board has accepted the plans prepared by Hitchings & Co., of New York city, for a conservatory to be erected in Volunteer park, and has also accepted that firm's bid of $9,920 for furnishing the materials, including the heating apparatus and the interior fittings. The conservatory will be 25 x 200, with 42-foot wings on each end. The total cost of both materials and erection is estimated at $24,500.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—Clarence Goodwin, a youth who was formerly employed by the Leedham Bulb Co., of this city, has formed a partnership with C. E. Berg, another young man, and they have begun business in a modest way as growers of outside stock. They will plant a line of bulbs, such as narcissi, irises and gladioli, as well as several varieties of Spencer sweet peas. They are also planning to grow asters and snapdragons. A local shipper, they say, has agreed to handle their output next spring. They intend later to build a greenhouse and grow carnations and other stock.

POINSETTIA LEAVES DROPPING.

Can you tell me why my poinsettias drop their leaves so badly? Writers in The Review say to give them a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night till they begin to set their bracts, when they should have a somewhat higher temperature. Also it is stated that want of feed, too much dryness at the roots or too low a temperature will cause the trouble. In my case it seems likely that the temperature is to blame, for when I had them in a rose house, running it at 58 to 60 degrees, they did not drop their leaves. What do you think? S. M.

Poinsettias kept at 50 to 55 degrees at night should not lose their leaves unless they are too much potbound and starved at the root or have been allowed to become too wet or dry. The bracts will soon be showing, and your rose house, with a temperature of 58 to 60 degrees, will be just what the plants will need. C. W.

THAT TREE STUMP AGAIN.

A recent issue of The Review contained an inquiry as to how a tree stump might be removed without grubbing or blasting. Here is a good, reliable and safe method: Bore the stump full of 1-inch holes, making the holes deep enough to penetrate well into the heart of the stump; fill the holes with kerosene and let it soak in for a few days. Then set the stump afire and it will burn out slowly but surely. W. G. H.

THE NEW YELLOW FORCING ROSE SUNBURST

This magnificent, giant yellow rose has been tested for three years in our benches; it stands head and shoulders above all other sorts of its color and will rank with American Beauty and the Killarneys in value and grandeur—because

It has a long, pointed bud, which can be cut tight for market. It is pre-eminently a long-stemmed rose. The stem is always stiff. It is free in bottom breaks. Is extraordinarily vigorous and healthy. Belongs in the class of Big Roses. Its keeping qualities rank with the best. Buds shipped from Richmond last December opened up perfectly in both Philadelphia and New York, where it scored 90 before the Florists' Club.

The color is orange-copper or golden orange and golden yellow, all intense shades, extremely brilliant in effect.

Come and see it growing; we have 8,000 of it benched.

Does splendidly out of doors; will rank high as a bedder. At the Chicago show, 1910, it was awarded the silver cup for the best new rose never before exhibited, and the judges unanimously gave it honorable mention additional. Has created a sensation wherever shown.

Raised by M. Pernet-Ducher, from whom we bought the American rights.

We have divided our stock with Mr. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., to give eastern growers a chance to see it growing. Will be distributed March 1 in America by C. H. Totty and The E. G. Hill Co. Mr. Pernet will distribute same date in Europe.

The American price is $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000 (own roots); $5.00 per 100 additional for grafts

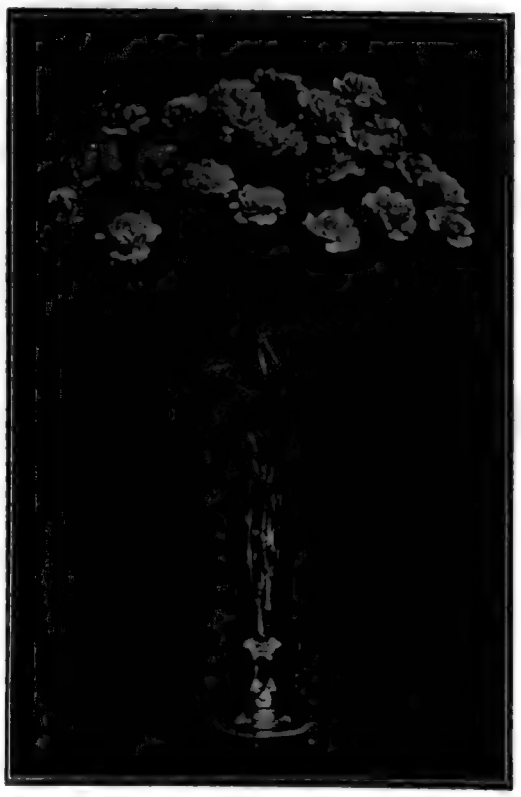
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

Funeral work last week was good. Flowers are in excellent supply. Just now carnations retail at 50 cents per dozen; some extras at 60 cents per dozen. Roses at $1 and $1.50 per dozen. Mums are still the whole show; they retail from $1.50 up to $3 per dozen. Early sorts are about all cut. Violets sell well at $1 per hundred blooms; lilies at $2 per dozen. Candytuft helps out. Stevia will be in bloom in a couple of weeks, also Paper Whites. Plant trade is fair.



E. H. Chamberlain has some nice ferns in his window, which make a display by themselves.

Wm. P. Peirce, on Union street, had a nice window display of mums last week.

R. E. Nofftz, on Williams street, has a tasteful window display at all times.

Nursery business is good. Privet hedges sell well at good prices. Bulbs are still selling, though a great many have been planted. W. L.

Woburn, Mass.—The Journal says: "Some of our florists are given to bragging of their superior skill and taste in arranging nosegays and bouquets, but we venture to say that Charles M. Strout, of Montvale avenue, can give them odds at the business and beat them to a standstill every time. He don't think a bouquet is worthy of the name if it can be crowded into a bushelbasket, and turns up his nose at one containing less than 100 or 200 flowers. For building up bouquets Mr. Strout has no successful competitor in Middlesex county."

Double White Killarney

THIS ROSE, IN THE OPINION OF THE BEST ROSE GROWERS IN THE COUNTRY, IS

The Grandest Forcing Rose That Has Ever Been Offered

Pure white, or practically so, with size, substance and petalage, it is a wonderful white summer rose, and as a winter forcing rose it has no equal.

Killarney Queen A cerise pink, with the same petalage as Killarney, but in growth and character of bloom it is stronger and heavier than Killarney.

These are the roses shown at the Baltimore Convention in August. They will be at Detroit in January.
Awarded Certificate of Merit by Chicago Florists' Club, Nov. 2, 1911.

Each variety considered separately; prices the same.

The Market.

Trade has held up exceedingly well. All lines are in good demand and a good call for design work has cleaned up the surplus. All stock is in excellent condition, particularly mums.

Various Notes.

Park Commissioner James Wilson, who left for the west in the middle of October, in search of better health, died at Salmon Ann, B. C., October 30. His body was brought east and buried at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Wm. Jay, Jr., son of a well known Toronto florist, and himself in the business, died here last week.

C. Bennett has opened a second store on Yonge street. His growing plant on Queen street, N., is being reglazed. He is also erecting a couple of new houses.

The Ontario horticultural exhibition opened November 14 and will continue till the end of the week. E. A. F.

Kewanee, Ill.—When Hamilton & Plummer began business here, they were able for a short time to handle their trade satisfactorily with the product of their small greenhouses on Third street. This source of supply, however, soon became inadequate; so they purchased five acres of land near Terminal park and there erected a range which now comprises 16,000 square feet of glass. The Third street place was retained and was used as salesrooms and business headquarters.

DELHI

is the Scarlet Carnation that will prove a profitable investment.

¶ Delhi is a seedling of exceptional merit—a cross of Enchantress on an unnamed scarlet seedling.

¶ Delhi comes in early, it is free, and produces fine blooms throughout the season.

¶ Delhi is a strong grower, of ideal habit, making no surplus grass—every shoot coming into flower.

¶ Delhi has a calyx that is perfect and absolutely non-bursting.

¶ Its color is that of Victory or Beacon at its best, but, unlike the latter, it does not fade into an orange tint during the early fall and late spring.

¶ Delhi under ordinary treatment (and it has been grown all along in ordinary field soil without any admixture of fertilizers) makes 3 to 3½-inch blooms. Its keeping qualities cannot possibly be surpassed, for blooms shipped to Georgia, Florida and other southern points were never known to reach destination in a sleepy condition.

¶ Delhi is a breadwinner. Place your order, you will not regret it.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, with President Trepess in the chair, Thursday evening, November 9. W. H. Robinson, of Castle Gould, Port Washington, and Walter Robinson, of Eastover Farm, Center Island, were elected to active membership and three other applications were received. Mrs. C. D. Smithers and Mrs. H. I. Pratt, of Glen Cove, were made honorary members of the society.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Geo. Barton, the manager of the fall show, and all those who helped him in his arduous duties. Felix Mense offered a gold medal for the best 100 single violets, to be competed for at the December meeting, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him for the gift.

President Trepess took occasion to present to Henry Gaut the Stumpp & Walter cup, which he won at the fall show for the best group of chrysanthemums, and also the Mrs. F. S. Smithers cup, which he won for the best collection of outdoor chrysanthemums. Henry Cliffe was presented with the Rickard Bros. cup, which he won at the same show for the best six varieties of chrysanthemums, three of each variety.

The result of the competition this month for the society's prizes was as follows:

Three chrysanthemums, pink—Henry Gaut, first.
Three chrysanthemums, white—Henry Cliffe, first.
Three chrysanthemums, yellow—Paul Reul, first.
Two vases of seedling chrysanthemums—Certificate of merit to John F. Johnstone.
Tomato Stirling Castle—Honorable mention to F. Petroccia.
Six heads of lettuce—Cultural certificate to F. Petroccia.

The judges of the exhibition were Messrs. Duthie, Barton and Carter.

IN CHRYSANTHEMUMS, CARNATIONS AND ROSES

In CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We will distribute the usual high-class list of six or more of Mr. Pockett's Australian varieties, which will include Mrs. Geo. Burke, a grand bronze; Mrs. A. M. Henshaw and Annie L. Angus, whites; Mrs. Harry Turner, crimson, and Mrs. Gilbert Drable, a lovely white, besides several other seedlings of surpassing merit.

In NEW ROSES

We are putting out the yellow "Sunburst," in conjunction with the E. G. Hill Co.—the giant yellow that creates a sensation wherever shown.

In CARNATIONS

We are distributing Wodenethe, the white you have been waiting for. It has been called the most perfect Carnation ever raised—a fancy in every sense of the word.

Brooklyn, a cerise pink; a "bread-and-butter" Carnation that will produce more from a given space than any Carnation I know of.

COME AND SEE THESE VARIETIES GROWING

¶ You will also see our 1911 varieties of Carnations and Roses—Princess Charming and White House in Carnations, and Lady Hillingdon in Roses, which is going to take the place of all other medium-sized yellows as a commercial florists' flower.

CHAS. H. TOTTY, Madison, N. J.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

The weather during the greater part of last week was quite moderate and trade was similar, although it showed quite an improvement over the week preceding. Still, there is ample room for further improvement, and nothing would please the florists more than to see a busy season approaching, as they are well fixed for it. Funeral work continues to be the only thing that keeps trade stirring.

There seems to be a greater demand for chrysanthemums than for anything else, although white have been quite scarce, but those in colors are quite plentiful. Roses are still cropping heavily, but sales on them are light. Carnations are quite scarce, but sufficient to meet the demand. The giganteum supply is limited, but there are enough to fill all requirements.

Various Notes.

Paul H. Duvall, of Chicago, was a guest at the home of George Bartholomew last week.

L. A. Thomas, Jr., of Troy, O., was a Dayton visitor last week.

Exceedingly high winds and a decided drop in temperature struck Dayton November 11 and continued throughout the next day. The wind did considerable damage to some of the local greenhouses. The Miami Floral Co. had lots of glass blown out in the gable ends of the greenhouses, while at Mrs. Haschke's the wind tore off one of the ventilators and blew it about the houses, breaking quite a lot of glass, some of which in falling ruined some of her young plants.

Mrs. Young tells us that last week's business was a great improvement over the preceding week.

Mrs. B. Haschke is suffering from another severe case of poisoning caused by Primula obconica. R. A. B.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Business on Third street started rather dull for Monday, the usual replenishing day of the retailers. The offerings were all good and large, but cleaned up slowly. The severe weather affected some of the shipments, for a number of boxes were frozen. The packers were evidently expecting the mild weather to continue, for the lining of the boxes was entirely inadequate to cope with the sudden change.

Chrysanthemums are, of course, the principal flower in the market and the really good blooms find little trouble in obtaining buyers at fair prices. All the fine later varieties are included in the offerings. The later pompons prove more popular than the early ones of a few weeks ago. Toward the close of last week some culls accumulated.

In roses and carnations the local growers are more or less off crop, or are going off crop. Still, there are plenty of each to go around. With either continued cold weather or a sudden strong demand they would run short. Lilies are proving good stock. November 13 the consignments of New York double violets arrived frozen. The offering in single violets runs short of the demand. Valley and orchids meet a steady call. The supply of greens of all kinds is good and the quality excellent.

Various Notes.

Bowling Club meeting next Monday, November 20, at Finke's alleys at 8 p. m.

Miss Claire Murphy was operated on for appendicitis last week. I am glad to report that Miss Murphy is recovering rapidly. She has not been well since she was injured by a fall at her father's camp at the Snow islands last summer.

The Florists' Club held a regular meeting at the salesrooms of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange, Saturday, November 11, as guests of Messrs. Alex Ostendarp and A. C. Heckman, Jr. Fred Backmeier, a hail fellow well met and a booster for everything he gets into, was elected to membership. A juvenile quartet of florists' errand boys rendered several vocal selections, while D. Rusconi gave us Italian airs. The hosts were tendered a vote of thanks for their splendid entertainment and royal refreshments. C. H. H.

DETROIT.

Breitmeyer's mum show was a decided success. Ideal weather and a reasonable amount of advertising, well directed, brought out large crowds. Neither were the visitors disappointed. Everything in the chrysanthemum line was to be seen, from the tiny yellow "Baby" to the big fellows beside which a cabbage looks small. Mr. Breitmeyer wore a most satisfied smile, as one automobile after another drove up. He remarked that the visitors seemed to take more than a casual interest in the flowers, as they asked numerous questions. The hundreds and hundreds of pompons and anemones from Fred Breitmeyer's houses at Mount Clemens caused no end of favorable comment. One of the large show windows was made attractive with immense Egyptian baskets of mums. All told, Mr. Breitmeyer felt well repaid for the sum of money—which was considerable—spent in advertising, etc.

B. Schroeter, who, by the way, is now past 70 years of age, formally opened his new store and conservatory November 14 and 15. Judicious advertising brought out a good attendance. In addition to the newspaper advertising, there were pretty announcements, which were mailed to a selected list of names. Enclosed with each announcement was a card entitling the bearer to a dainty fernery if presented at the store on the opening days. These proved a decided attraction. One feature of the opening was the orchid display, this alone being an attraction well worth seeing. H. S.

PREPARE FOR THE HOLIDAYS!

SECOND SHIPMENT IS IN

SEVENTY-FIVE CASES of Holiday Azaleas for Christmas, Kentia Palms, Latania Borbonica, etc., and to make the importation complete—a whole consignment of our so well-known specialty, the Araucaria Robusta Compacta, Excelsa Glauca and Excelsa, just arrived per SS. Menominee October 23, from Belgium. These, together with the already immense stock of Holiday Plants, will place the so well-known firm of Godfrey Aschmann in first rank in importing, growing and shipping of Holiday Plants.

CHEAP
GOOD
RELIABLE

Therefore, don't be deceived—be on the lookout! Buy only from the man who is well known to be in a position to give you GOOD BARGAINS AND GOOD STOCK.

What F. J. Michell, of the well-known Seed House, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, said:

"Have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me—I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Azaleas, Ferns and other plants of all sizes and prices than are at Mr. Aschmann's."

Leader in Azalea Indica, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, Palms, Etc.—Lead you into wealth.

CAN HANDLE LARGEST ORDER ON SHORT NOTICE

Now is the time to force Azalea Indica for Christmas. What varieties will you force? Surely the ones, the early varieties, that I know I can get in in time for Xmas. There is Deutsche Perle, one of the best early double whites. We have plants full of buds, at 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Simon Mardner, you know this variety well. It is an early, deep, double pink variety, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Vervaeneana, one of the old standard, well favored, large, double, variegated varieties, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Didn't you ever hear of that earliest of all varieties, Mme. Petrick? This is a variety hard to beat, pink, double flowers, full of buds and never fails to bloom. A child can bring this variety into bloom for Christmas. It is very scarce and high in price this fall in Belgium. You must have a few of them anyhow, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

Easter Varieties. For Easter forcing we have only the well known standard American varieties, such as Mme. Van der Cruyssen, pink (very scarce this fall in Belgium), 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Niobe, double white. We have a large stock of this, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Helene Theleman, light pink, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. President Oswald de Kerchove, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. Schryveriana and Empress of India, large, double variegated, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Professeur Wolters, 50c, 60c, 70c, $1.00 to $1.50. Simon Mardner, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. Vervaeneana and Apollo, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00; dozen or 100 at same prices. Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana, Deutsche Perle, smaller size, 40c, 50c up to $2.00. Also a few more of the best varieties.

Just Arrived with the azaleas a fine consignment of Latania Borbonica, in first-class condition. Perfect foliage, 8 good leaves—height given in consular invoice, 35 to 40 inches, fit for 7 and 8-in. pots, $1.50 to $2.00. Combination Latania Borbonica (3 plants), 6-in. pots, 25 to 30 in. high, forming a bush of about 14 leaves, which give them an attractive appearance, $1.00 to $1.25.

We have the stock—the best obtainable in Belgium—of Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca; short, bushy jewels—none better in the world. 6-in. pots, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50. We can give a special price on Araucaria Excelsa, 7-in. pots, 6, 7 to 8 tiers, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, worth $3.00 to $5.00; to obtain room, now only 4c to 5c per inch or $1.50 each. Will you let such a bargain pass unnoticed?

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 4-in., 25c.

Kentia Belmoreana, which came on the same steamer as azaleas, are potted off combination plants (made up with 3 plants), 22 to 25 inches high, having 12, 13 to 15 leaves to a pot (in 6-in. pots), 50c, 60c, 75c to $1.00, according to height; still larger sizes, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50; single plants, 5 leaves, 22 to 25 in. high, stocky 5¼ to 5½-in. pots, only 50c, worth 75c.

Sago Palms, ready now, 6, 7 to 8-in. pots, 9 to 13 leaves, 12c per leaf.

Asparagus Plumosus, 2½-in., 3c; 3-in., 5c; 4-in., 10c and 15c.

Leader in Ferns—Scottii, Scholzeli, Whitmani and Boston. 6 houses stocked with them; 10,000 in all sizes and varieties now ready, never before better than this year; 5, 5½ in., 25c, 35c; 6 and 7-in., as big as a bushel basket, only 50c, 75c to $1.00. Scottii, Whitmani, Scholzeli, 4 in., 15c to 20c; fine to grow on. Giatrasii, 4-in., 20c; 5-in., 25c and 30c. Our ferns are all pot grown—not lifted from benches.

Ferns. Cordata Compacta, 4-in., 15c to 20c.

Ferns for dishes, big assortment, 2½-in. pots, $4.00 per 100; 3-in., $5.00 per 100.

Asparagus Sprengeri, 2½-in., 3c.

Hydrangea Otaksa, pot-grown, 6-in., 25c, 35c to 40c; 7-in., 50c. Only pot-grown, will force successfully for Easter.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This is another of our specialties. We have a secret in growing them to perfection, only known to us, giving them a rich, deep color; stand shipping well, traveling 2000 to 3000 miles without the least bit of injury if properly handled. We have a big house full in No. 1 condition, 6 to 7-in. sizes, in bud and partly in bloom, ready for immediate sale or for the holidays. Everybody knows that last Christmas we had the best Begonia Gloire de Lorraine in the market. They were crackerjacks, indeed! We have the deep pink and the light pink (Lonsdale) varieties, 6-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00; 3-in., 12c to 15c. If you have room order now, because they are always scarce at Xmas.

Begonia Erfordii, newest improved strain. This variety is always in bloom during the whole winter, Xmas and Easter, 4-in. pots, in bud or bloom, 20c; 5¼-in., 25c to 30c.

Solanum or Jerusalem Cherries, our well-known prize strain, the multiflorum, 6-in., 25c, 35c, 40c to 50c.

Cineraria Hybrida, Aschmann's well-known strain, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100; 3-in., $5.00.

Primula Obconica, big 4-in., in bloom, 15c; 5½-in., in bloom, 25c.

Primula Chinensis, best strain, 4-in., 10c; 5-in., 20c.

Shasta Daisies, pure white, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100.

Poinsettias, raised outdoors, in frame now—seedlings, $1.00 per 100; 3-in., 15c; short, stocky plants, large 4-in., ready for a shift into 5, 5½ or 6-in., 25c; single or bunched, 5½ to 6-in., 35c, 40c, 50c.

Wilsoni Ferns, 3 plants in a 6-inch pan, 25c to 35c per pan.

Adiantum Hybridum, large 4-in., 15c; medium 4-in., 10c.

Cocos Weddelliana, made up of 3 plants, 4 to 5-in. pots, 30c, 40c to 50c; 3-in., single, 15c; 4-in., single 25c.

Areca Lutescens, 4-in., 3 plants in a pot, bushy, showy, large, 25c; 5¼-in. pots, 24-in., 35c.

Ficus Elastica (Rubber Plant), 5-inch, 25c; 5½ to 6-in. pots, 20 to 25 inches high, 35c, 40c and 50c each; 7-in., 30 to 35 inches high, 75c to $1.00.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Special attention given to long distance orders, billed through at lowest rates. My method of packing is so light and perfect that I guarantee delivery in good condition at any express office in the U. S. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." A few samples of what others say: "Pansies arrived in good condition. In fact they are the best plants we have ever bought." Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind. "Send me $10.00 worth of your best pansy seed. If as good in colors and size as they were last year I will need double the amount next year." G. H. Toepke, Detroit, Mich. "Ship $10.00 worth of your best pansies. Last year's gave satisfaction to me and my customers." M. J. McCabe, Washington, D. C. "Your Pansy Park Perfection were the finest pansies I ever had in my 25 years of business. My customers went into ecstacies over their beautiful colors." H. G. Wolfgang, Leetonia, O. "Pansy plants arrived in 1st class condition. Am much pleased with them." C. H. Ward & Son, Winter Park, Fla. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash.

PANSIES—Continued.

HOME OF PANSIES.

Our growing crops of pansies for seed were greatly admired by all florists who saw them this last summer. All said they were grand—some said they were the best they had ever seen. We reserved over 50,000 of our best for seed growing and they certainly were a pretty sight. We are improving on them annually, and have a fine lot of red, red shades and other crosses of our own origin and nearly all colors and shades found in pansies. We started a few for a test very early and they have surprised us as to coloring and size of flowers; showing improvement over parent stock. You cannot go wrong if you place your order with us. If, upon blooming, you are not perfectly satisfied I will return every cent you paid for them. I made this same offer last year and had not a kick and I am better prepared to make it now than I was then. Our plants are in excellent shape owing to the good growing weather this fall; they are twice as heavy as last year and too large to go by mail. Our packing is right, we land them safe in Louisiana, Florida, California and other distant points. Have a large stock, all strong, sturdy, field-grown. Am receiving numerous testimonials and now have a large list of annual customers. Our collection contains no black, unless so ordered. We have a good stock of black which we keep separate. We can also supply, separate, Masterpiece, Giant Mme. Perret and Giant Prize Trimardeau; also blood red and Golden Queen, separate. All at the same price, $2.50 1000; 5000, $10.00. Liberal count.

Horticultural Books

We can supply any of the following books at the prices noted, postpaid, and any other book at publishers' prices.

Henderson's Picturesque Gardens and Ornamental Gardening.

By Charles Henderson. A volume containing half-tone illustrations of the prettiest and most famous gardens and parks of the world, vividly portraying lawn, garden and landscape effects, plant and tree groupings, decorative bedding, herbaceous gardens and borders, formal gardens, lawn gardens, Italian, Japanese and English gardens, rock gardens, wild gardens, bog gardens, subtropical gardens, sunken and terrace gardens, rosariums, hardy ferneries, arches, columns, festoons, etc., picturesquely draped with vines, as well as numerous other garden embellishments. Each illustration is described and explained. Cloth. $2.50

The Pruning Book.

By L. H. Bailey. This is the first American work exclusively devoted to pruning. It differs from most other treatises on this subject in that the author takes particular pains to explain the principles of each operation in every detail. Specific advice is given on the pruning of the various kinds of fruits and ornamental trees, shrubs and hedges. Considerable space is devoted to the pruning and training of grape vines, both American and foreign. 530 pages. Illustrated. $1.50

The Nursery Book.

By L. H. Bailey. A complete guide to the multiplication of plants. The book comprises full practical directions for sowing, the making of all kinds of layers, stools, cuttings, propagation by bulbs and tubers, and very complete accounts of all the leading kinds of budding, grafting and inarching. SPRINGFIELD, O.

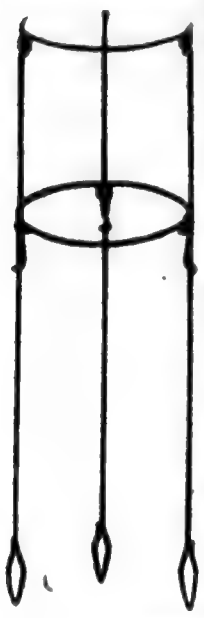
Club Meeting.

The annual banquet of the Springfield Florists' Club was held in the rooms of the Commercial Club, Monday evening, November 13. The usual business session was held, at which the club endorsed the project of acquiring the plot of ground between Limestone street, Union street and Fountain avenue from the Big Four Railroad Co., by the city, for park purposes. The members then adjourned to the dining room, where all did full justice to the menu. The beauty of the tables was greatly enhanced by two huge vases holding products of the Leedle Rosary, splendid blooms of Rhea Reid and gorgeous Golden Chadwick and Yellow Eaton, for which a vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered by the club.



At the conclusion of the repast, Geo. D. Leedle submitted the final report of the outgoing program committee by suggesting as a topic for general discussion the admission to membership in the club of persons other than professional or commercial florists, such as amateur flower lovers, employees, etc., and thereby broaden the scope and extend the influence of the organization. Charles W. Schmidt, the retiring president, was introduced as toastmaster and presided in a jovial manner. The recently elected president, Christian Binning, delivered a well prepared address on "Progressive Expansion," suggesting many lines of activity along which the club might work with its present membership, and still other lines with an increased membership.

John M. Good, while not opposed to an enlarged membership, expressed some misgivings as to the desirability of members not in some way allied to the profession. Harvey Siegenthaler, who is something of a fish culturist as well as a florist, dwelt upon elaborate and far-reaching lines of expansion far beyond the conceptions of the promoters of the idea and started some new lines of thought for consideration. Arthur J. Todd, lawyer, journalist and amateur florist, stated that he was a member of numerous organizations, but that the Florists' Club is the only one whose policy is entirely unselfish. Geo. H. Mellen, Leman Bradford and Charles W. Unglaub advocated a restricted enlargement of membership. C. A. Schaefer illustrated his views by an apt story of a darky attempting to fly with a pair of turkey wings. Arthur C. Leedle inquired as to the propriety of consolidating or affiliating with the Horticultural Society as a means of mutual betterment, and also spoke in favor of again boosting the annual flower show project. William Mumm, of Columbus, commended the work of the club.

President Binning announced his appointment of standing committees as follows: Program, H. F. Good, C. C. Leedle and C. A. Schaefer; entertainment, Charles W. Schmidt, J. F. Businger and Leman Bradford; membership, Geo. H. Mellen, J. M. Good, Geo. D. Leedle, C. P. Bethard and Roy McGregor; grievance, Opha Jackson, B. C. Blake and John Doyle; publicity, Geo. D. Leedle, A. J. Todd and Geo. H. Mellen.

The EUREKA CARNATION SUPPORT

It has all methods beaten to a shadow. Make your own for the future. By far cheaper for you, just as profitable for me; saves more than 50 per cent in labor. "Time is money"—you can make time by making it. Try a few to convince you, then go ahead. Nearly all florists, especially the larger ones, know the faults of others. Others are acceptable for want of cheaper and better. "Everything has its day."

SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES OF THE EUREKA

The average cost per plant, 1-10 of a cent for material, saves more than 50 per cent in labor. You can make your own, saving dealers' profits. The support is started at the end of row of plants and can be done at any time. Does a row (any length) at a time and does it better. By far neater and uniform. More free access between rows for sun, air, watering and all necessary work. Adjustable to any size plants, at any distance, and by far more rigid. Not necessarily bulky; enough for 50,000 plants can be stored in quite a small space, as they rack together one above the other very tight with care. Easily conveyed. I have lifted with my little finger enough for 200 plants and carried them quite a distance with one hand. I have made by hand enough in one hour for 300 plants; supported 54 plants in six minutes. It does its work for the season. What I have done, you can do. Lasts as long as any (12 to 15 years). Not likely to be superseded. I have all similar methods covered. Material can be had at most any hardware shop. Calculated to meet the demands of both large and small growers. Every good thing eventually speaks for itself. I should like all growers to try it. One man can save you in one day the price asked. It has been tried thoroughly and I am able to substantiate all statements.

Send $5.00 for permission and instructions. Infringements or using without permission costs more.

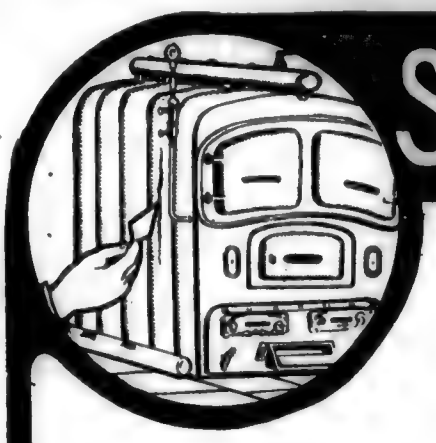
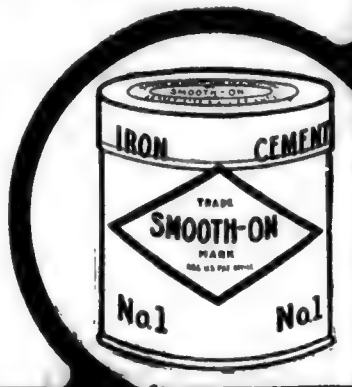
Greenhouse Heating.

HEAT FROM RESIDENCE CELLAR.

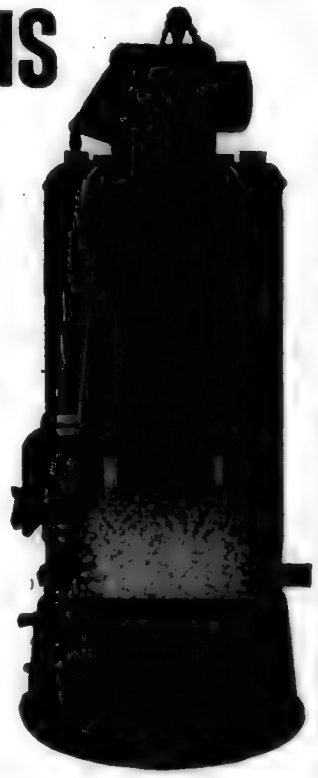
I have just built a small greenhouse, 15x20, with a shed roof. The north side is boarded tightly. I wish to heat the house from a steam furnace in the cellar of my dwelling house. Please tell me how many pipes, and what size, will be required to heat it to 65 or 70 degrees in our coldest Rhode Island weather. F. E. S.





The question does not give a clear idea of the construction of the house, or of the amount of exposed glass and wall surface, and this lack of particulars makes it difficult to give any positive advice. However, it can be said that, in heating with steam, it is advisable to use 1¼-inch pipe, and, so far as can be determined from the data furnished, a simple way of arranging the piping will be to begin at the corner nearest the heater and run the coils around on the walls, making as nearly a complete circuit as possible. The pipes should be given a slight fall. The data are not sufficiently complete for an estimate of the amount of radiation required, but it will not be far from right if the number of linear feet of 1¼-inch pipe is one-half of the number of square feet of glass in the roof and walls.

A WRONG SYSTEM OF PIPING.



Will you please tell me what is the trouble with my heating system and how I can remedy it? I have a greenhouse 16x60, in which I installed the pipes myself. The beds are all solid. The pipes are all 1¼-inch. One pipe runs all the way around the building, at the gutter, and the other three pipes are hung on the wall and in the aisles. Each pipe has an upward slant toward the far end of the building and then slopes back to the boiler. These four pipes are all fed by one 2-inch pipe which runs from the boiler to the header, and the return is the same.

The pipes heat only about halfway around. The water seems to back up; it gets hot in the expansion tank, but only in part of the piping. Do you think the pipes are air-bound, thus preventing the circulation of the water? There are two air valves, one at the far end of the building on the outside pipe and the other on the header of the return, but I can not get any air out of the pipes through these valves. My boiler has a 200-foot radiation. Is it big enough, or, if not, what size of boiler does this greenhouse require for a temperature of 50 degrees at night, in this Indiana climate? J. H. N.

While there may be other troubles which are not made clear in the letter, much of the difficulty is certainly due to the small pipe used and the way it is arranged. For a house sixty feet long nothing less than 1½-inch pipe should be used, and 2-inch would be better. Even then it should not extend around the house, but the water should be carried to the farther end of the house in a 2½-inch flow pipe, which should connect with the returns. There should be ten 1¼-inch, nine 1½-inch or seven 2-inch returns. The boiler should be able to take care of 350 square feet of radiation.

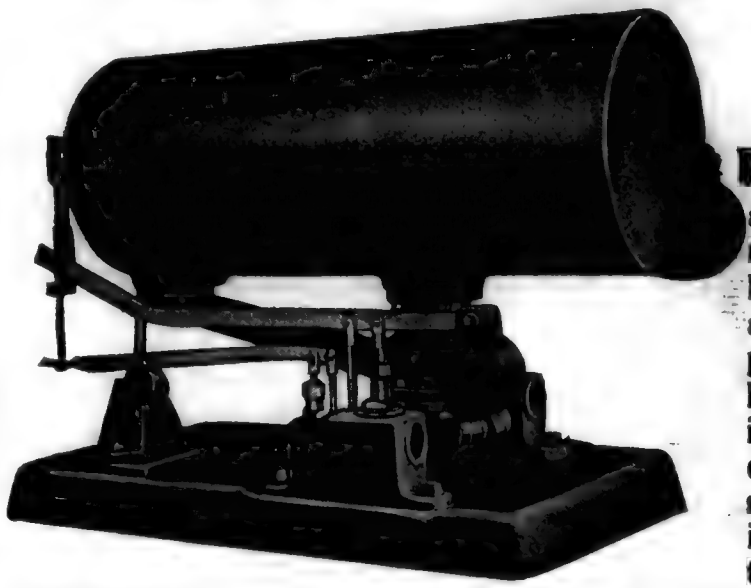
WHICH EXPANSION TANK?

Which of the following two methods will produce the better results in connection with a No. 2 Kroeschell boiler: To have an expansion tank with a capacity of sixty gallons and a height of four feet, with its base six feet above the top of the boiler, or to connect the boiler to a water tank which is twelve feet high and ten feet in diameter, and which is elevated thirty feet above the ground? All the pipes are below the benches and are in straight runs. The temperature required is 60 degrees in one house and 50 degrees in the other, in this Missouri climate. The glass area is about 2,500 square feet.



W. G.

If the piping is properly arranged, it will make little difference which method of connecting an expansion tank is used, provided the tanks are both above the highest point in the system, but if the coils are lower than the top of the boiler, or if the system is not properly balanced in any of its parts, the elevated tank will be more satisfactory, as this will make it possible to raise the temperature of the water in the flow pipes several degrees above the boiling point, which will improve the circulation. In either case, the tank should be connected with the highest part of the system, which should be arranged on the downhill plan.

AN ADDITION OF TWO HOUSES.

We have just finished the following addition to our range: Two attached houses, 20x50 and 26x50. The houses are open under the center gutter. The walls, which are of concrete, contain two and one-half feet of side glass. The houses are well protected from cold winds. The boiler room is centrally located, in a 100-foot service building. The gable ends of the two new houses are attached to the last

Will It Cost You $260 or $1200?

¶ Study our illustrations—see how a certain greenhouse man paid $260.00 for his boiler and fuel during the winter—while his neighbor tried to save money by buying a "cheap" (?) boiler and sank $1200.00.

The man who spent $260.00 used our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler.

It is the biggest saver you can put into your greenhouse.

You save money every year you use our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler, by reducing your fuel consumption, repairs and labor cost to the minimum.

Not a "Cheap" Outfit

Although we offer an extra discount of 25 per cent (in addition to our liberal regular discount) for the purpose of introducing our boiler in your neighborhood, this is not a "cheap" outfit. The price is right for the grade and quality of workmanship we put into it—the very best.

You want a boiler that requires very little attention and leaves you free to devote your valuable time to more important things. Neither you nor your men relish getting up at midnight, 3 a. m. and sunrise to feed a hungry heater.

The GIBLIN "Standard" requires attention only once in twelve hours in ordinary weather.

It economizes on repairs because of its unusually sturdy construction. All of the castings are tested at pressure of 65 pounds to the square inch—far more than they will ever undergo in actual use. Our boiler will last a lifetime, and once you've bought it your heating worries are off your mind for once and all. Can you say the same about your present boiler?

¶ Wouldn't it pay you to "scrap" the outfit you now have and start saving by using a GIBLIN "Standard"?

fifty feet of the service building. Please state what you consider the proper sizes of pipe to use and the number of flows and returns necessary to heat these houses to 55 degrees. The capacity of the boiler is ample, and it has a 4-inch flow and a 4-inch return opening. We are located in New York state.

Also kindly pass your opinion on the following: Our supply tank for watering our plants is located directly over the boiler room, on the second floor of the service building. These additional houses necessitate a larger expansion tank. Could we run our expansion pipe from the boiler to this tank? This tank holds about ten barrels of water. Would such a body of water be detrimental to the working of the hot water system? R. B.

The houses can be heated by using either three 2-inch flow pipes or two 2½-inch flow pipes. Two flows can be carried on the plates, and if 2-inch pipe is used, one can be a foot or two under the ridge. In the 20-foot house nine or ten 2-inch return pipes will be required, while twelve or thirteen will be needed in the 26-foot house. It makes no difference how large an expansion tank is used, but considerable elevation is helpful, if the piping is not properly adjusted or is below the top of the heater.

GAS OR COAL AS FUEL?

Will you kindly tell me whether satisfactory results can be obtained by the use of natural gas with Kroeschell hot water boilers? Which would be less expensive, gas at the rate of 50 cents per thousand cubic feet or coal at $2.95. per ton? A. J. P.

Coal at $3 per ton will be the cheaper fuel to use. At the figures stated by A. J. P., the cost of coal as fuel would be only one-third the cost of gas at the rate quoted. This estimate is based on natural gas having an efficiency of 1,000,000 B. T. U. per thousand cubic feet, compared with a low grade of coal having 10,000 B. T. U. per one pound. Kroeschell Bros. Co.

A Greenhouse Boiler that fairly shot into fame

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER the highest praise.

square feet of glass was equipped with the KROESCHELL BOILER during the past four years and you will find our new 1910 model KROESCHELL HOT WATER BOILER in every state in the Union and Canada. OUR EASTERN BUSINESS HAS BEEN EXCEEDINGLY HEAVY THIS SEASON.

Ratings and RATINGS

Unlike Cast Iron Boilers, which can not be depended upon to carry their ratings even when crowded WITH HARD COAL, "THE KROESCHELL" again excels because—every Kroeschell Boiler is HONESTLY RATED and GUARANTEED to carry the glass and pipe capacities stated in our catalogue TO 60 DEGREES AT 15 BELOW ZERO. Any kind of fuel can be used OUR RATINGS are easily maintained with the cheapest grades of coal.

Quickest Water Heater in the World

Can Ship Any Size At Once

HUNDREDS of CAST IRON BOILERS were replaced by the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

Our Heating Engineer has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

Quick Heating Piping Systems

We have just completed the largest hot water greenhouse system erected this season. One of our No. 17 Boilers is on the job, capacity 72,000 square feet of glass, 60° at 15 below zero. The mains are arranged to take care of 20 additional houses, 34x305. Kroeschell Threaded Tube Piping System is used throughout the entire range; every return is controlled by 1¼-inch gate valve (strictly a Kroeschell feature), insuring perfect control. The circulation is perfect, reaching the extreme ends of the range very quickly. The Kroeschell Generator is also used with this system. It's the "HIGH SPEED GEAR" for gravity hot water heating.

THE KROESCHELL GENERATOR is now used for over 15,000,000 square feet of glass and no hot water heating system is complete without it. Get one for your system—they are easy to install and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

North Easton, Mass.—J. H. Leach & Son have decided not to disseminate their carnation, Pink Supreme, this season.

Calla, O.—W. P. Mellott, successor to the Calla Cut Flower Co., has added another house, 35x110, which he expects to use for lettuce and cucumbers. With this addition, he now has 25,000 square feet of glass, chiefly devoted to carnations and lettuce.

Cambridge, Mass.—John McKenzie returned from his trip greatly improved in health and is giving strict personal attention to the specialties he puts on the market. Fred C. Becker says the opening of Harvard has stirred up business. He looks for a busy, though late, season, and is well prepared for it.

La Crosse, Wis.—The show held by the La Crosse Floral Co. in the Masonic temple, November 16 to 18, under the management of C. E. Schaefer, was a notable event in the trade and attracted a large attendance. Some of Mr. Schaefer's designs for the display of the stock were particularly ingenious and effective.

Danville, Ill.—In accordance with his annual custom, H. D. Caldwell, chief gardener at the National Soldiers' Home, invited the public to the greenhouses on Sunday, November 5, to view the chrysanthemums and other stock. He gives this chrysanthemum show on the first Sunday of November in each year. Several thousands of people generally attend.

Oskaloosa, Ia.—The Kemble Floral Co. is sending out an illustrated booklet descriptive of its establishments. This firm operates a branch at Boone, Ia., while business is conducted at Mason City by Kemble & Goodman and at Marshalltown by T. O. Kemble. The booklet is equally devoted to the interests of the four places and also gives instructions for the care of plants and cut flowers.

How the National Insecticide Law Helps the Florists

All nicotine preparations used by florists contain nicotine in the "free" condition; in which form it readily evaporates, especially when subjected to moderate heat. "Free" nicotine is a definite chemical compound, and wherever it is found its properties are always the same, no matter by whom it is manufactured. If you could take the nicotine itself out of these preparations, this pure "free" nicotine obtained from several different preparations would be identical in every respect, and one part would be just as deadly to insects as any other part.

Under the Insecticide Law, all nicotine preparations sold for insecticidal purposes must contain a label which plainly and correctly states the percentage amount of active ingredients (that is, insecticidal value) the package contains; also the percentage amount of inert (non-active) ingredients.

So, as to the nicotine preparations sold to florists, it is interesting to note that none of the manufacturers make claims on their labels that these preparations contain any substance except nicotine as possessing insecticidal value. Therefore, when florists purchase these preparations, the only insecticide they are being offered is nicotine.

Hence, by comparing the guarantees on the labels of those brands where the percentage of nicotine is stated, you can readily determine which brand to buy to obtain the most nicotine for your money; and, remember, if the labels do not plainly give you this information, you have a perfect right to insist that your dealer or the manufacturer inform you.

So, as "free nicotine" is just as definite a substance as is gold, the price you pay does not change the quality of the nicotine you buy any more than if you paid two different prices for two pure gold rings of equal size and weight. The only difference in these preparations of "free nicotine" depends upon the kind and percentage of the "inert ingredients" the preparations contain — and, of course, as "inert ingredients" merely mean the materials having no insecticidal value, you should pay nothing at all for same.

So, as the inert ingredients have no insecticidal value, it makes no difference to the florists as to what these ingredients are, provided they are not injurious to plants.

Therefore, you will clearly see from the above that in purchasing "free nicotine" you should buy the preparation which yields you the largest quantity—that is, the most grains—of nicotine for the money expended.

The labels on the "Nico-Fume" preparations clearly set forth not only the percentage of active and inert ingredients, but also the net weights of the contents and the number of grains of nicotine and also the price. So you can readily figure exactly what you are getting for your money.

Can you buy nicotine as cheaply in any competing preparations? Besides, quantity discounts are allowed as follows by prominent Florist Supply Houses:

EAVE PLATES ON CONCRETE.

When the walls are of concrete or concrete blocks, in greenhouse building, in what manner is it considered best to attach gutters or side plates of cypress to the walls? Providing the work of mixing and preparing the material is done under cover, can the wall making be proceeded with in moderate freezing weather? G. F. B.

When the wall is of grout or concrete, it is often customary to bed anchor irons in it and clamp the gutter or plate down upon it. Another way is to set gas pipe posts, with a flange at the top which can be screwed to the plate, placing the posts six or eight feet apart. If small pipe is used, the posts are generally only one or two feet in length, but it is well, especially in wide houses, to use 2-inch pipe and set it in the ground two or three feet. Sometimes, in small houses, no flanges are used, but the pipes extend an inch or so above the wall and fit into holes bored in the bottom of the plate. In any case, the plates should be bedded upon the wall with cement, and the roof should be supported either by truss rods or posts, so that there will be no lateral thrust.

If cement blocks are used, the wall can be put up in freezing weather, but it should be protected and given a long time to set if laid up of grout.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

ELLIS, MASS.

A call at Peter Fisher's always is interesting. There is a big collection of unnamed carnation seedlings, some of great merit, which in themselves will repay one for a journey. They embrace about every known color of the divine flower. A house 33 x 300 is devoted to Benora, the new variegated variety to be disseminated the coming season. The plants are all headed back to provide cuttings, of which some 25,000 are already in the sand, with orders coming in daily. White Wonder is well liked and will be more heavily grown another season. White Enchantress is largely grown and looks fine, better than White Perfection, which will be dropped another season. Beacon fills the whole bill as a scarlet. Winsor and Winona have been dropped, but some Gloriosa is grown and looks promising.

Gorgeous, another of Mr. Fisher's seedlings, looms above all other varieties. It is being carefully selected, no cuttings being taken from such as do not show plenty of flowering stems. Probably Mr. Fisher will introduce this in 1913.

A marked difference was noted between the early and late planted stock of all kinds. Mr. Fisher prefers, when lifting from the field, to have the soil quite dry. Plants recover much more quickly than when the soil is damp. Pink Delight is heavily grown and flowers with wonderful freedom. Some May Day is retained, but there have been complaints of this not shipping well. The old Enchantress was seen in quantity in splendid condition. Mr. Fisher now sells his entire output of flowers through the Boston Rose Co., Boston.

AUSTIN, TEX.

A review of the local growers leads to the conclusion that our people are becoming specialists. At Mr. Olsson's new plant his greenhouse roses are far better than others in this section. Mr. Hall, of the Hyde Park Floral Co., has a splendid crop of mums; he is cutting and shipping fine stock and can not fill all orders.

Mrs. A. J. Seiders has the carnation business easily in the lead. Several persons who have been out over the state say she has the best stock they have seen. Her home-grown plants are much better than the eastern-grown plants she has benched.

Outdoor roses are blooming beautifully since cool, damp weather set in.

When making a display at the recent fair the Hoskins Floral Co. handed out to visitors at the booth a 16-page illustrated pamphlet descriptive of the greenhouses and of the uses of flowers. It proved an exceptionally timely piece of advertising. The title was: "A Brief History of the Commencement and Growth of the Hoskins Floral Co., With a Few Suggestions Concerning Flowers, Plants, Bulbs and Gardening Material, and the Appropriate Use of the Same." The "history" was:

"In the year 1909 the Hoskins Floral Co., as an experiment, built a small greenhouse. The difficulties were many and expenses high. In the first place, there are few greenhouses, and none of any importance, located where the extremes of temperature are as great, that could be used as a basis of comparison. In spite of many difficulties, we started. The quality of the stock produced was so fine that the demand soon exceeded the supply.

"In 1910 our trade for home grown stock was such that we decided to erect additional houses. A rose house, 32x140, a carnation house the same size, and a violet house, 20x140, were added; the heating system enlarged and many other improvements made. These new houses enabled us to supply the demand for a short time only, as people found that flowers grown at home and freshly cut were so far ahead of stock shipped in that there was no comparison.

"In 1911, therefore, we have added another carnation house, 32x140, and a fern house, 20x140; have changed our heating system from hot water to steam; built a smokestack sixty-five feet high; enlarged our coal storage to a capacity of 500 tons, and made the plant the largest and best equipped west of the Twin Cities. In those cities there is nothing better; merely larger capacity.

"The present season we expect to produce the following main items. Carnations, 400,000; roses, 125,000; chrysanthemums, 12,000; violets, 90,000; Easter lilies, 20,000, besides many thousands of bulb stock, such as tulips, narcissi, daffodils, jonquils, lilies of the valley, hyacinths, etc.

"A few items culled at random may interest you. One of our heating boilers weighs twelve tons; we have seven miles of steam piping in the plant; our glass comes by the carload; our bulbs are imported direct from Holland by ourselves; it takes a 2-inch pipe from the city plant to supply moisture; some of our thermometers cost $50 each.

"Nothing Compared To It"

Read what Mr. Earle of the Burpee Company said:

"The benefit the Sweet Peas are deriving from the Skinner System of Irrigation is inestimable. It has saved a crop this spring and proven to be of the greatest value. The ease with which it can be adapted to all requirements is one of its strongest points."

The area one man can water with the Skinner System is limited only by the extent of the installation. By its uniformity of distribution and the mist form in which the water descends, it prevents bruising of foliage and preserves the soil. This is one of the chief reasons why the Skinner produces such fine crops—larger—earlier—surer.

In one season the Skinner System will save you enough in labor alone to pay for itself.

THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

MILWAUKEE.

A Splendid Show.

The third annual exhibition of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, which opened Wednesday, November 15, and ran through Sunday, November 19, was as fine a flower show as one would wish to see. It probably ranks as the largest and most successful show of the year. There were ninety-two classes and practically every one of them brought out competition. The arrangement scarcely could have been improved upon, and the average quality of the stock was right up to the top notch. Of course Milwaukee, like all western cities, is without the big, many-flowered chrysanthemum plants, for these are not to be seen except at the eastern exhibitions where the millionaires' gardeners compete, but when it comes to well finished cut blooms the Famous City takes no back seat; nor does it for its roses or carnations.

The new Auditorium is ideal for flower show purposes. Large enough, yet not too large; modern in arrangement and equipment, it affords every facility for the expeditious handling of exhibits and crowds—only the latter were not so large as would have been liked. The management was in the hands of an executive committee headed by H. V. Hunkel, president of the club, and composed of C. C. Pollworth, J. G. Heitman, W. Zimmermann, Arthur Leidiger, C. Dallwig, A. F. Kellner and Nic Zweifel. The setting for the show was planned by Mr. Kellner and the sodding on the concrete floor was put down under his direction. Overhead was a canopy of lycopodium roping. The grouping, with the elevated band stand and the flower booth in the center, made a delightful picture.

The Retailers' Exhibits.

The retail florists did splendidly. The management set aside $250 to be divided among them, not as compensation, for it would be inadequate for that, but as an evidence of appreciation—and eight exhibitors responded. Each one maintained a table during the five days of the show, most of them making daily changes and employing all the accessories that go to make these displays about the most attractive feature of the shows so far as the flower buyers are concerned. With eight tables and daily changes, all the fine flowers of the season came into use. The work was good, in every instance; in most instances it was excellent. The retailers exhibiting were: Walter M. Maas & Co., E. Welke Co., Currie Bros. Co., J. M. Fox & Son, M. A. McKenney Co., Wm. C. Zimmermann, Charles Dettman & Sons and Edlefsen-Leidiger Co.

The Roses.

From the point of view of the trade, probably the chief interest centered in the roses, which were staged Friday, November 17. The novelties came in for their share of attention. They included Sunburst, from E. G. Hill Co., and Double White Killarney and Killarney Queen, from A. N. Pierson. The contest, however, was for the Beauty premiums. There were four splendid vases of 100 blooms each, so closely matched that, though many tried, few of those who know roses were able to guess the order in which the judges would place the ribbons. In the end, Holton & Hunkel Co. won out, followed by Bassett & Washburn, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and A. F. Amling Co., in the order named. The Amling Beauties were a little too open, the Poehlmann flowers a little too tight. The Holton & Hunkel roses all were in exactly the right condition and the exhibitors from out of town found they had real competition on their hands in every class where the Milwaukee flowers were entered. The judges were Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill.; J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., and Otto Speidel, of Oconomowoc. The awards on roses were as follows:

Fifty Beauties—Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, first; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, second; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, third; A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill., fourth.

One hundred White Killarney—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Twenty-five any other variety—Holton & Hunkel Co., first, on My Maryland; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second, on Maryland.

The Carnations.

The carnations preceded the roses by one day, being staged November 16. The quality of the stock was something notable, there being absolutely not one poor vase in the several dozens shown. The average quality was what one would expect of February rather than November. White Wonder was head and shoulders above the other whites. Gloriosa showed up well and apparently Enchantress, though still the most largely grown variety, has a rival here. Bonfire was fine, but Beacon and Victory are the standard reds at Milwaukee. C. C. Pollworth Co. showed a red seedling that stood up so boldly that its owners are encouraged to go ahead working up stock. The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, had the misfortune to have its flowers heat in transit, but nevertheless received six awards. Other growers who staged first-class stock were: Nic Zweifel, Burlington Floral Co., Manke Bros., Mueller & Schroeder Co., C. C. Pollworth Co., Northwestern Floral Co., Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and Paul E. Weiss.

The awards for carnations were as follows:

One hundred blooms white—Nic Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second; Burlington Floral Co., Burlington, Wis., third.

One hundred light pink—Nic Zweifel, first; Manke Bros., North Milwaukee, Wis., second; Mueller & Schroeder Co., Milwaukee, third.

One hundred Winsor shade—Burlington Floral Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

One hundred dark pink—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, second; Chicago Carnation Co., third.

One hundred red—Nic Zweifel, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Manke Bros., third.

Sweepstakes for best vase of blooms in the classes for 100—Nic Zweifel, silver cup.

Fifty White Perfection—Burlington Floral Co., first; Manke Bros., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty White Enchantress—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Manke Bros., second; Burlington Floral Co., third.

Fifty any other white—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty Victory—Nic Zweifel, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Chicago Carnation Co., third.

Fifty Beacon—Manke Bros., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty any other red—Nic Zweifel, first, on Bonfire; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, third.

Fifty O. P. Bassett—Mueller & Schroeder Co., first.

Fifty Enchantress—Manke Bros., first; Nic Zweifel, second; Mueller & Schroeder Co., third.

Fifty Winsor—Nic Zweifel, first; Northwestern Floral Co., Grosse Point, Ill., second; Herman Staeps, Elm Grove, Wis., third.

Fifty any other pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Burlington Floral Co., third.

Fifty crimson—Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, first.

Fifty white, introduction of 1911—Nic Zweifel, first; Chicago Carnation Co., third, both showing White Wonder.

Fifty Winsor shade, introduction 1911—Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, first; Chicago Carnation Co., second, both showing Gloriosa.

Fifty dark pink, introduction 1911—Manke Bros., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second, on Washington.

Fifty red, introduction 1911—Nic Zweifel, first, on Bonfire.

Certificates of merit for novelties—Two to Chicago Carnation Co., its seedlings; to W. T. Symonds, Decorah, Ia., for seedling No. 7.

Chrysanthemum Cut Blooms.

Not often does one see better finished cut blooms of chrysanthemums than were staged at Milwaukee. For instance, in the class for forty white there were three splendid vases of Eaton, C. C. Pollworth Co., Poehlmann Bros. Co. and E. G. Hill Co. winning in the order named. Pollworth had a grand lot of Golden Wedding, but the judges placed it second to Poehlmann's Chadwick in the class for forty blooms of any variety. Elmer D. Smith had a splendid vase of Enguehard, defeating Hill's Wells' Late Pink.

The only novelty in mums, aside from a Mount Greenwood seedling, was Chadwick Supreme, from A. N. Pierson. The strong point about this variety is that it comes in after all the other pinks are gone, when it sells better than the finest pinks do earlier.

The following were the awards on cut blooms of chrysanthemums:

Forty blooms, any variety, any color—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first, with Chadwick; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second, with Golden Wedding; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., third, with Bonnaffon.

Forty blooms, white—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Eaton; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second, with Eaton; E. G. Hill Co., third, also with Eaton.

Forty blooms, pink—Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., first, with Dr. Enguehard; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Wells' Late Pink; Mt.

Forty blooms, yellow—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first, with Golden Chadwick; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Golden Eagle; C. C. Pollworth Co., third, with Golden Wedding.

Twenty blooms, white—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Lynnwood Hall; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Chadwick Improved; Burlington Floral Co., Burlington, Wis., third, with Eaton; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, fourth, with Seedling No. 2.

Twenty blooms, pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first, with Maud Dean; Herman Schwan, Milwaukee, second, with Balfour; Herman Staeps, Elm Grove, Wis., third, with Maud Dean; E. G. Hill Co., fourth, with Miriam Hankey.

Twenty blooms, yellow—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Golden Wedding; Herman Staeps, second, with Golden Wedding; E. G. Hill Co., third, with Yellow Eaton; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, fourth, with Golden Eagle.

Twenty blooms, any other color—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Glen View; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Glen View; Elmer D. Smith & Co., third, with Glen View.

Twelve blooms, yellow—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Golden Chadwick; Elmer D. Smith & Co., second; E. G. Hill Co., third, with Golden Chadwick.

Twelve blooms, pink—Elmer D. Smith & Co., first, with Dr. Enguehard; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, second, with Dr. Enguehard; C. C. Pollworth Co., third, with Maud Dean.

Twelve blooms, white—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Chadwick Improved; Elmer D. Smith & Co., second, with Naomah; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, third, with Seedling No. 2.

Twelve blooms, any other color—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Glen View; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Glen View.

Twenty varieties, one of each—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; E. G. Hill Co., second; Elmer D. Smith & Co., third.

Collection anemone varieties—Fox Point Floral Co., Milwaukee, first; E. G. Hill Co., second.

Collection pompon varieties—E. G. Hill Co., first; Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, second.

Collection single varieties—E. G. Hill Co., first; James Livingston, gardener for Fred Vogel, Jr., Milwaukee, second.

Miscellaneous Cut Flowers.

There were superb Marie Louise violets from Watertown, Wis., and the Easter lilies were so uniformly good that the best the judges could do was to split the money equally between the four exhibitors. Fine antirrhinum also was shown and the valley was excellent, although not well staged. The awards for miscellaneous cut flowers were as follows:

Orchids—James Livingston, Milwaukee, first.

Double violets—Loeffler & Benke, Watertown, Wis., first; Albert Loeffler, Watertown, second; Charles Oehlenschlaeger, Oconomowoc, Wis., third.

Lily of the valley—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, second; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, third.

Fifty Easter lilies—Premium divided equally between Holton & Hunkel Co., C. C. Pollworth Co., the Mitchell Street Greenhouses and Ben Gregory.

Antirrhinum—Mueller & Schroeder Co., Milwaukee, first; Gus Pohl, Milwaukee, second.

Chrysanthemum Plants.

On chrysanthemum plants C. C. Pollworth Co. was the principal exhibitor, although some good plants came from Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, Ill. Good groups were staged by Plocienniczak Bros., John C. Rost and Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. The following were the awards:

Specimen plant, white—Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second.

Specimen plant, Pink—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Otto Eggebrecht, Milwaukee, third.

Specimen plant, yellow—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Vaughan's Seed Store, second.

Specimen plant, any other color—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Specimen plant, single variety—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Ernst Praefke, Milwaukee, third.

Specimen plant, anemone—Vaughan's Seed Store, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Specimen standard—C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twenty-five single stems—C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Group arranged for effect, to cover 150 feet—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Plocienniczak Bros., the Mitchell Street Floral Co., Milwaukee, second; John C. Rost, Milwaukee, third; Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, fourth.

Three specimen standards—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Vaughan's Seed Store, second.

Miscellaneous Plants.

This was purely a florists' flower show and it was stronger in miscellaneous plants than in any other feature. Hardly ever is there so comprehensive a showing of the kind of plants the visitor can find on sale in any flower store. The palms and ferns were fine commercial stock and the displays were all local except three groups from Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, one of araucarias, one of Phœnix Roebelenii and one of Cocos Weddelliana, the latter two including all sizes. There were groups of palms from five exhibitors, including Holton & Hunkel Co., Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Currie Bros. Co., A. F. Kellner Co. and Jacob Freytag. Groups of ferns were even more numerous and included some specially well arranged lots of Boston and its sports from Pollworth and Holton & Hunkel and some excellent Cibotium Schiedei from Currie Bros. Co. Groups of araucarias were shown by Pollworth, Holton & Hunkel, Edlefsen-Leidiger, Currie and Jacob Freytag.

In flowering plants, geraniums were particularly well shown; Heitman & Baerman, Plocienniczak Bros., Walter H. Hummel & Co., Thomas Griebler and Otto H. Eggebrecht all had good groups. There were three good lots of cyclamens, from Carl Meier, Fox Point Floral Co. and Charles Kitzerow. Begonias were notably numerous. J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan, included La Patrie in his lot, but all the others were Lorraine type. The exhibitors included J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, Fred Vogel, Jr., C. C. Pollworth Co., Jacob Freytag and Plocienniczak Bros.

The following were the awards on palms, ferns and miscellaneous plants:

Boston fern—Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second.

Sport of Boston—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, second; A. Dettmann & Son, Milwaukee, third.

Six Cibotium Schiedei—Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Collection of ferns, fifteen varieties—August F. Kellner Co., Milwaukee, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Group of Bostons, 150 square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Group sports of Boston—C. C. Pollworth Co., first.

Group of palms to cover 150 square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., second; August F. Kellner Co., third; Currie Bros. Co., fourth.

Fifty any other variety—Bassett & Washburn, first, on Rhea Reid; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second, on My Maryland; Holton & Hunkel Co., third, on Maryland.

Fifty White Killarney—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Adam Zender, third.

Twenty-five Richmond—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Twenty-five White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Twenty-five Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twenty-five yellow—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first, on Mrs. Ward; C. C. Pollworth Co., second, on Mrs. Ward.

Twenty-five any other variety—Holton & Hunkel Co., first, on My Maryland; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second, on Maryland.

The Carnations.

The carnations preceded the roses by one day, being staged November 16. The quality of the stock was something notable, there being absolutely not one poor vase in the several dozens shown. The average quality was what one would expect of February rather than November. White Wonder was head and shoulders above the other whites. Gloriosa showed up well and apparently Enchantress, though still the most largely grown variety, has a rival here. Bonfire was fine, but Beacon and Victory are the standard reds at Milwaukee. C. C. Pollworth Co. showed a red seedling that stood up so boldly that its owners are encouraged to go ahead working up stock. The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, had the misfortune to have its flowers heat in transit, but nevertheless received six awards. Other growers who staged first-class stock were: Nic Zweifel, Burlington Floral Co., Manke Bros., Mueller & Schroeder Co., C. C. Pollworth Co., Northwestern Floral Co., Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and Paul E. Weiss.

The awards for carnations were as follows:

One hundred blooms white—Nic Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second; Burlington Floral Co., Burlington, Wis., third.

One hundred light pink—Nic Zweifel, first; Manke Bros., North Milwaukee, Wis., second; Mueller & Schroeder Co., Milwaukee, third.

One hundred Winsor shade—Burlington Floral Co., first; Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

One hundred dark pink—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, second; Chicago Carnation Co., third.

One hundred red—Nic Zweifel, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Manke Bros., third.

Sweepstakes for best vase of blooms in the classes for 100—Nic Zweifel, silver cup.

Fifty White Perfection—Burlington Floral Co., first; Manke Bros., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty White Enchantress—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Manke Bros., second; Burlington Floral Co., third.

Fifty any other white—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty Victory—Nic Zweifel, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Chicago Carnation Co., third.

Fifty Beacon—Manke Bros., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Nic Zweifel, third.

Fifty any other red—Nic Zweifel, first, on Bonfire; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, third.

Fifty O. P. Bassett—Mueller & Schroeder Co., first.

Fifty Enchantress—Manke Bros., first; Nic Zweifel, second; Mueller & Schroeder Co., third.

Fifty Winsor—Nic Zweifel, first; Northwestern Floral Co., Grosse Point, Ill., second; Herman Staeps, Elm Grove, Wis., third.

Fifty any other pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Burlington Floral Co., third.

Fifty crimson—Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, first.

Fifty white, introduction of 1911—Nic Zweifel, first; Chicago Carnation Co., third, both showing White Wonder.

Fifty Winsor shade, introduction 1911—Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, first; Chicago Carnation Co., second, both showing Gloriosa.

Fifty dark pink, introduction 1911—Manke Bros., first; Chicago Carnation Co., second, on Washington.

Fifty red, introduction 1911—Nic Zweifel, first, on Bonfire.

Certificates of merit for novelties—Two to Chicago Carnation Co., its seedlings; to W. T. Symonds, Decorah, Ia., for seedling No. 7.

Honorable mention to A. N. Pierson, Inc., for Chrysanthemum Chadwick Supreme, scored 85 points.

Local Hospitalities.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club invited all the trade visitors to participate in a Bohemian night, Saturday, November 18, at the St. Charles hotel, when about ninety sat down to further the feeling of good fellowship and to listen to good talks from well known men. C. C. Pollworth, as toastmaster, bade all a hearty welcome and assured the guests that the local boys were greatly pleased to have so many trade visitors to the show. George Asmus, president of the S. A. F., as the first speaker, made a strong plea for the support of the society. Richard Vincent, Jr., president-elect of the S. A. F., proved by what he saw and heard during his recent travels abroad that the United States will in a short time rank first in floriculture. P. J. Foley patted the florists on the back by telling what good fellows they are, and asked all to come to Chicago in August, 1912, to the S. A. F. convention. In a few well chosen words W. R. Pierson explained why the florist's business is more of a profession than a trade and therefore should command the respect of the public at large.

President H. E. Philpott, of the Chicago Florists' Club, sprung a complete surprise by presenting President Hunkel, for the Milwaukee Florists' Club, with an ivory gavel ornamented with ribbons and properly inscribed. This was getting even for the silver loving cup the Milwaukeans presented to the Chicago Club last month. Mr. Philpott also urged all to attend the S. A. F. convention in Chicago next year, and promised all a glorious time.

Harry Balsley called attention to the carnation and rose convention which takes place at Detroit in the early part of next year and asked all to come. Others who responded were A. C. Kohlbrand and John P. Degnan. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" the party left the hotel in a very cheerful mood.

CINCINNATI.

Attendance the Weak Point.

The Cincinnati flower show, last week's report of which covered all the show from a trade standpoint, continued through the week and was a success in every respect except attendance, which was decidedly disappointing.

Table decorations were the feature November 16. The prizes were awarded to Tromey's Flower Shop and Edith F. Kyrk. November 18 bride's and bridesmaid's bouquets were on, the premiums going to Hardesty & Co., first, and Edith F. Kyrk. Handle baskets also were shown, the awards going to Hardesty & Co., Edith F. Kyrk and Tromey's Flower Shop in the order named.

Ellis Woodworth, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., had a pretty trade display of his line of boxes. He emphasized particularly the new corrugated plant box, which attracted quite a good deal of attention.

Wm. Murphy's splendid work as superintendent of the show is worthy of all praise. Milton Americana Alexander, of New York, acted as auctioneer on Saturday evening.

The smoker that C. E. Critchell, P. J. Olinger and Charles H. Hoffmeister arranged at the Bismarck was successful. About 150 sat down to the lunch. President Gus Adrian welcomed the guests. The toastmaster, Charles H. Hoffmeister, introduced the following speakers: President-elect R. Vincent, Jr., of the S. A. F.; President H. E. Philpott, of the Chicago Florists' Club; R. Witterstaetter, city; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis; Otto Koenig, St. Louis; Geo. R. Gause, president of the Indiana State Florists' Association; A. C. Kohlbrand, vice-president the Chicago Florists' Club; Walter W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; Ernst Rieman, Indianapolis; Henry Schwarz; Ellis Woodworth, who responded to the toast "My Old Kentucky Home;" I. Rosnosky, Philadelphia; J. W. Page, Hampton, England; Guy W. French, of Morton Grove, Ill., and D. Rusconi.

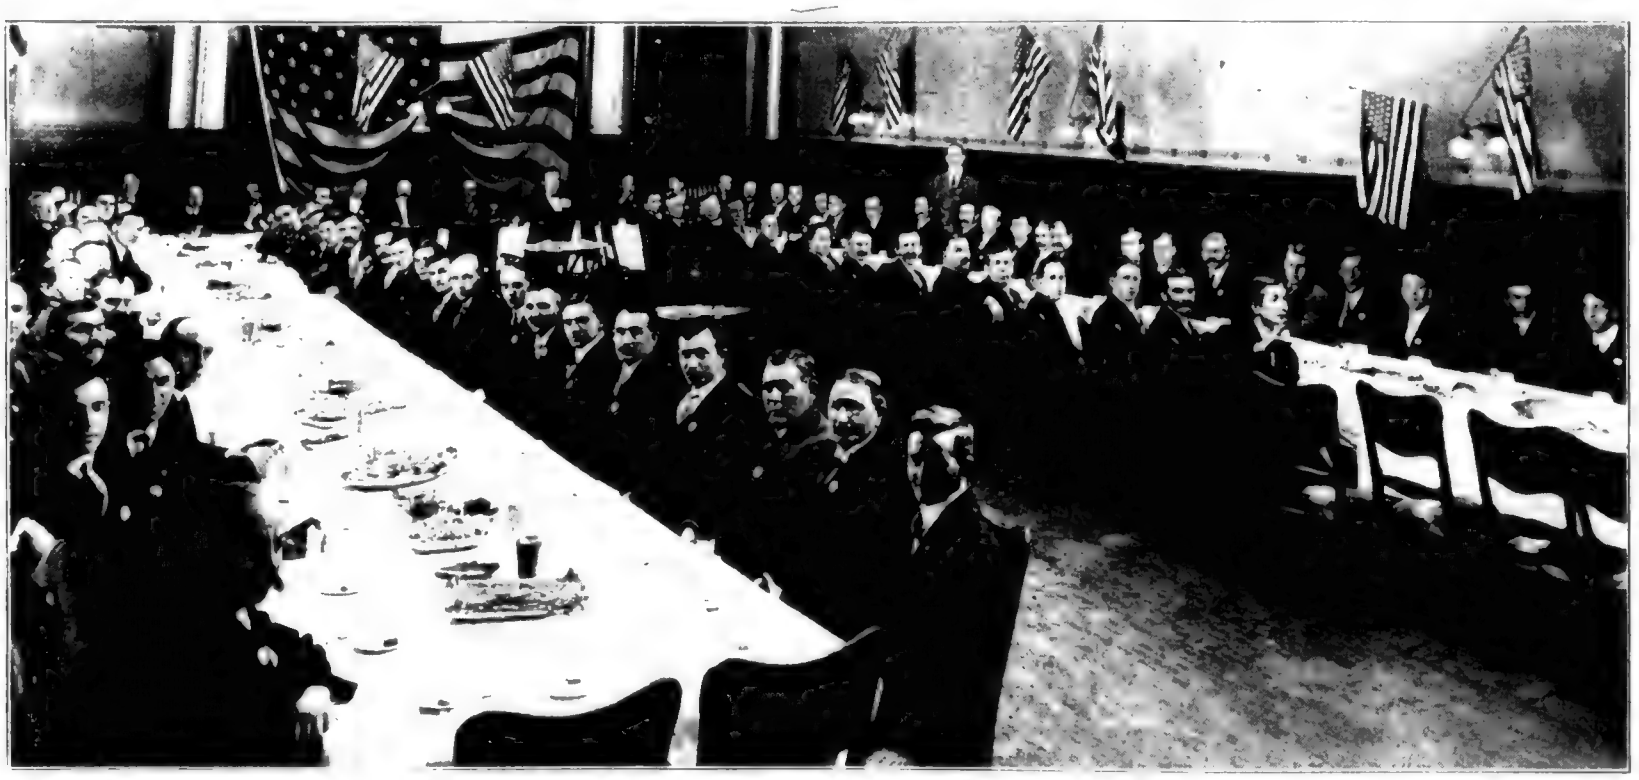
Honorable mention to A. N. Pierson, Inc., for Chrysanthemum Chadwick Supreme, scored 85 points.

Local Hospitalities.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club invited all the trade visitors to participate in a Bohemian night, Saturday, November 18, at the St. Charles hotel, when about ninety sat down to further the feeling of good fellowship and to listen to good talks from well known men. C. C. Pollworth, as toastmaster, bade all a hearty welcome and assured the guests that the local boys were greatly pleased to have so many trade visitors to the show. George Asmus, president of the S. A. F., as the first speaker, made a strong plea for the support of the society. Richard Vincent, Jr., president-elect of the S. A. F., proved by what he saw and heard during his recent travels abroad that the United States will in a short time rank first in floriculture. P. J. Foley patted the florists on the back by telling what good fellows they are, and asked all to come to Chicago in August, 1912, to the S. A. F. convention. In a few well chosen words W. R. Pierson explained why the florist's business is more of a profession than a trade and therefore should command the respect of the public at large.

President H. E. Philpott, of the Chicago Florists' Club, sprung a complete surprise by presenting President Hunkel, for the Milwaukee Florists' Club, with an ivory gavel ornamented with ribbons and properly inscribed. This was getting even for the silver loving cup the Milwaukeans presented to the Chicago Club last month. Mr. Philpott also urged all to attend the S. A. F. convention in Chicago next year, and promised all a glorious time.



Harry Balsley called attention to the carnation and rose convention which takes place at Detroit in the early part of next year and asked all to come. Others who responded were A. C. Kohlbrand and John P. Degnan. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" the party left the hotel in a very cheerful mood.

TORONTO.

The seventh annual Ontario Horticultural Exhibition was held in the St. Lawrence arena, November 14 to 18. The flowers and plants exhibited were, in number, twice as great as in other years. Lack of room and proper facilities for display, including heating, prevented a show of even greater magnitude. An avenue of chrysanthemums and bay trees extended from the entrance door to the rear of the building. In the rows were about forty pots of bush mums that were the best ever grown or shown in Toronto. Among the leading prize winners in this class were Sir H. M. Pellatt, E. F. Collins, J. Boston and D. Robertson, all of Toronto.

The cut mums were enormous in size. The class for twenty-five blooms shown in a vase was well filled. The Dale Estate and R. Jennings, of Brampton, made an excellent showing. The groups of mums and orchids, backed by ferns, palms and other foliage plants, were excellent. T. McVittie, gardener for Sir H. M. Pellatt, won first for the best group of mums and plants. Thomas Manton, Eglinton, took first for the best orchid group, and E. F. Collins, of the Allen Gardens, won out in the single and pompon chrysanthemum group.

The display of roses was large and the quality excellent. Dale Estate showed Mrs. Ward, the first time it has been seen here. Violets and valley were shown in abundance. On the latter, the Toronto Floral Co., Bedford Park, Ont., secured first prize, although this is the first year the firm has ever grown this flower.

The class for funeral designs was well filled. C. E. Lewis, Toronto, secured first prize with a wreath of orchids, white mums, valley and maidenhair fern. A. S. Jennings & Co., Toronto, captured second place with a cross of nice workmanship. The winning bridal bouquet was by Thomas Manton. First prize for the best presentation basket went to one made of Golden Wedding and pompon chrysanthemums. The decorated tables attracted a lot of attention and great interest was taken in the competition.

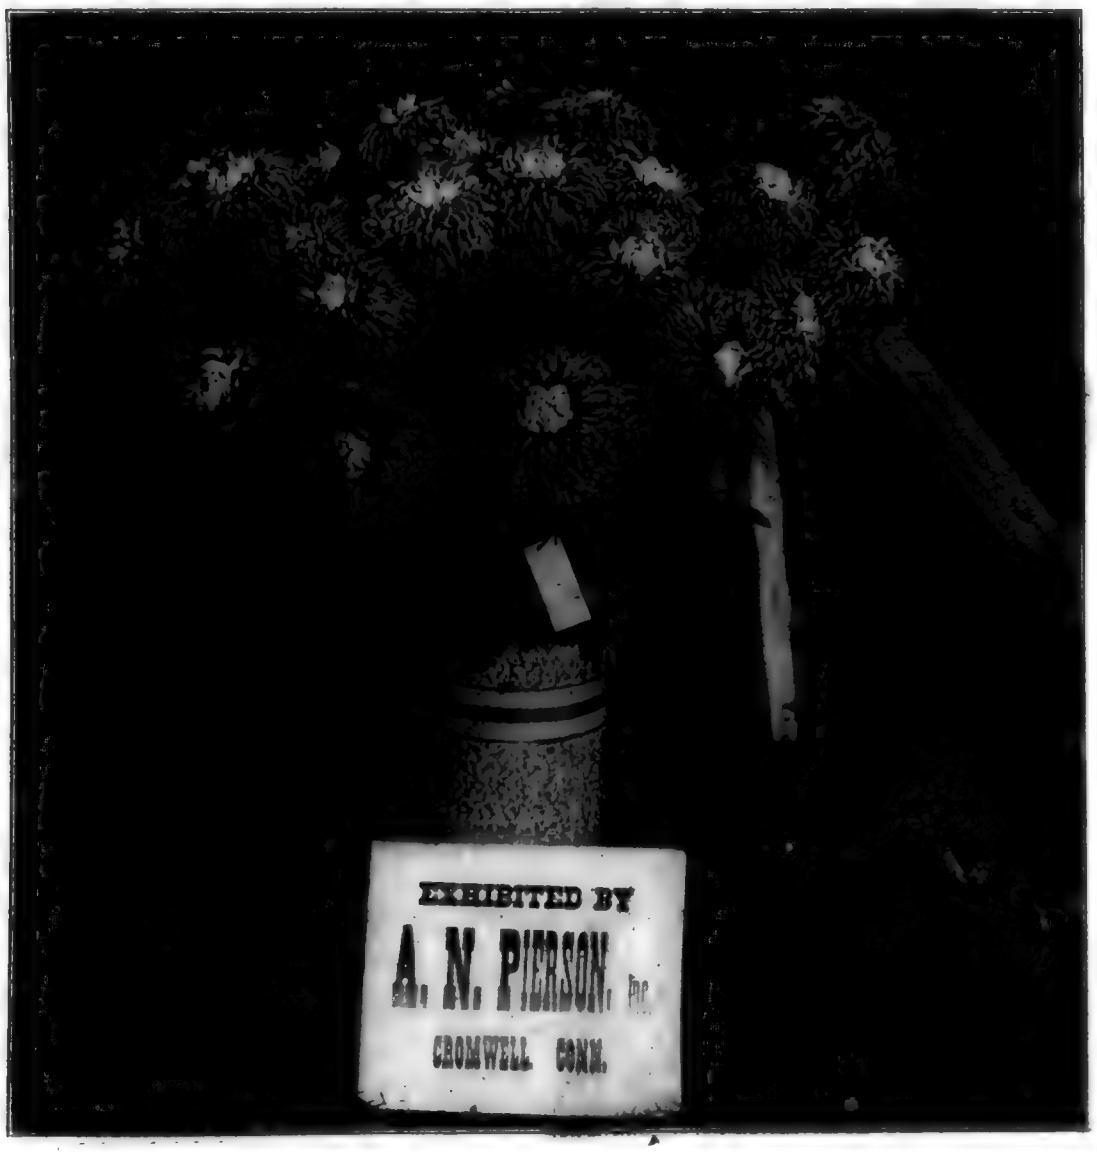
The awards on cut blooms of chrysanthemums were as follows:

Twenty-five blooms, not less than twenty varieties—Dale Estate, Brampton, first.
Twelve distinct varieties—Dale Estate, first.
Twenty-five Eaton—R. Jennings, Brampton, first; Dale Estate, second.
Twenty-five, any variety—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; A. S. Jennings, Toronto, third.
Twelve, one variety—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second; Iler Wilson, third.
Six distinct varieties, never before exhibited in Ontario—A. S. Jennings, first; W. H. Foord, Deer Park, second.
Six white—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; H. F. Jennings, Weston, third.
Six pink—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second; Iler Wilson, third; A. S. Jennings & Co., fourth.
Six yellow—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Iler Wilson, third; H. F. Jennings, fourth.
Six crimson—T. Jennings, first; W. H. Foord, second; H. F. Jennings, third; R. Jennings, fourth.
Six any other color—Dale Estate, first; A. S. Jennings & Co., second; R. Jennings, third; W. H. Foord, fourth.
Vase of single chrysanthemums arranged for effect, with any foliage—R. Jennings, first; G. D. Manton, Eglinton, second; H. T. Jennings, third.
Vase of pompons—H. T. Jennings, first; R. Jennings, second.
Twelve blooms, not less than six varieties, entries confined to exhibitors with not more than 5,000 feet of glass—A. S. Jennings, first; Geo. Mills, Toronto, second.

The following were the awards on cut blooms of carnations:

Twenty-five white—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Iler Wilson, third.
Twenty-five red—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second.
Twenty-five light pink—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Iler Wilson, third.
Twenty-five pink, darker than Winsor—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Iler Wilson, third.
Twenty-five crimson—Dale Estate, first.
Fifty blooms, any variety—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second.
Fifty blooms, any variety, with any foliage, arrangement to count—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second.
One hundred blooms, any variety—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second.

The awards for cut blooms on roses were as follows:



Twelve white—Dale Estate, first; Toronto Floral Co., Davisville, second.
Twelve pink—Dale Estate, first; Toronto Floral Co., second.
Twelve red—Dale Estate, first.
Twelve light pink—Dale Estate, first; Toronto Floral Co., second.

AT FAIRMOUNT PARK.

That the people love flower pictures is shown in the large crowd that visited Horticultural hall, Fairmount park, Philadelphia, on the second Sunday in November, when the annual chrysanthemum show was opened to the public. Workmen had been busily employed for the three previous days in preparing the east end for the visitors. Immense rhododendrons, azaleas and palms in tubs had been rolled back against the wall to form the background for the flower picture. Then came the staging, broad at the top, with narrower steps to the ground. Last, and most difficult of all, came the arrangement of the chrysanthemum plants themselves. Oglesby B. Paul said: "The pinks and whites must go at one end, the yellows and golds at the other." To this primary rule was added a determination to avoid flatness and to bring out the best colors advantageously. Xavier E. E. Schmitt grew medium sized plants of some eighty or ninety varieties, for medium sized plants combine better in flower pictures than do mammoth specimens. He then arranged them with exceeding care, studying the height of the different plants with regard to their relative positions. This secured the undulating or wavy effect desired, which, used in combination with a study of color, produced the dazzling picture that delighted the throng.

The exhibition was confined to the eastern or Schuylkill river end of Horticultural hall. The entrance is from the main doorway directly into the exhibition conservatory. On the right a magnificent flower picture of the queen of autumn clad in yellow, orange and gold; on the left, a softer but no less beautiful picture of the queen clad in pink and white. The pathways between are filled with graceful plants, mostly yellow and white chrysanthemums, some pink, scattered among palms and ferns, the effect preparing the eye, as it were, for the beauty beyond. The other pathway, that enables the visitors to return, is bordered entirely with green, save one little patch of color, single flowers, I think, of white and pink, a rest to the eye after the gorgeousness of color.

The success of this Philadelphia park show is only partly explained by the fact that it is free—the people's own—for who would go away out to Fairmount park in chill November unless there was something to see? There is something to see, well worth seeing. It has been so for the last eleven years and is now generally known. Something that can be seen nowhere else, a picture on a magnificent scale, where the result is secured by the sacrifice of the individual perfection to beautiful combination. Phil.

GLADIOLUS NO. 312.

W. A. Pryal, in his article, "Gladiolus Topics," in The Review of November 16, says of P. O. Coblentz's Gladiolus No. 312, that it has been catalogued by two growers or dealers as Grenadier. Now, right here we are up against the very trouble which was one of the reasons for the formation of the American Gladiolus Society. Mr. Coblentz used to call it Emma, but issued no catalogue. Last year a seedsman, having purchased from Mr. Coblentz his stock of this variety, catalogued it as Velvet King. This seems to me unfortunate and all the more so as the name does not fit the flower, which is not very velvety. It is also a little too much like the name Scarlet Velvet, under which name I have for several years advertised another variety in a rather widely circulated catalogue.

The variety No. 312, under whatever name it goes, is an excellent one and does not, in this climate, show any of the faults mentioned by Mr. Pryal. It is not a bit "like Brenchleyensis" except in having a bright color. The flower is large and well opened instead of being nearly closed, like Brenchleyensis. Among the nearly white sorts, Silvretta is worth noticing, the flower being large and of the Nanceianus form, set on the stem much in the same way as Mrs. Francis King, which it much resembles in habit.

It seems to me that Peace is bound to come to the front as a white, in spite of the small spot of color in the throat. In form, substance, stem, vigor and productiveness I think it leads. I have none to sell. George S. Woodruff.

SCALE ON NEPHROLEPIS.

What is the best way to get rid of scale on the nephrolepis type of ferns, in pots and planted in beds? What is the best feed for them in bright weather? L. M.

Spraying with extract of tobacco, in the proportion of one part of the extract to fifty parts of water, will help to keep down scale on nephrolepis, but if the plants are badly infested with the insects it will take some time to get rid of them, using the spray about twice a week. The safest fertilizer for these ferns is manure water from either cow or sheep manure. This may be given once a week to plants that are thoroughly rooted, but should not be given to newly potted stock, or to any plants that are not well established.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

WHERE VERSES PAY.

It is axiomatic that "there is no money in poetry," but a versicle florist says he has used the following lines in local papers for several seasons and it always has paid—the verses never fail to bring results:

YES—
Your table will be richly spread
With turkey, pie and berries red,
Pudding, doughnuts, apples sweet
And everything that's good to eat.

BUT—
There's one important item yet,
The centerpiece; now don't forget,
But come around Thanksgiving day
And buy your wife a nice bouquet.

FOR A FIREMAN'S FUNERAL.

The recent funeral of the deputy chief of the fire department at Waterbury, Conn., called for about the largest display of designs ever seen in the city. The tribute of the members of the department was a massive arch of white roses and white carnations over a Bible, with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums at the base. The piece stood five feet high and was also five feet wide at the base. It was made by G. T. Ryan.

VAPOR ON SHOW WINDOWS.

So many inquiries have been received of late regarding vapor and frost on flower store show windows that the following information is given on the subject:

The steaming of the windows in any store is due to the moisture in the atmosphere becoming condensed. This condensation is brought about by the vapors coming in contact with the window glass, which is colder than the interior of the room. In a flower store the air is unusually damp; therefore we all experience much trouble with frost on our windows, especially during the coldest days, just when a pretty window, with its flowers and plants, would appeal strongly to the passer-by. Layer after layer of this moisture freezes on the window, and it is soon coated with ice, especially at the bottom, the moisture running down the glass.

One way of preventing the steaming is by causing a passage of air on the inside of the window, close to the glass. This may be accomplished with small ventilators at the top of the window or just below the glass, in the frame, if there is one.

A solution of two-thirds alcohol and one-third glycerine, applied lightly to the glass with a sponge or cloth, will prevent the freezing of the moisture, but florists have found this a nuisance also, as the window is not clear when coated in this manner.

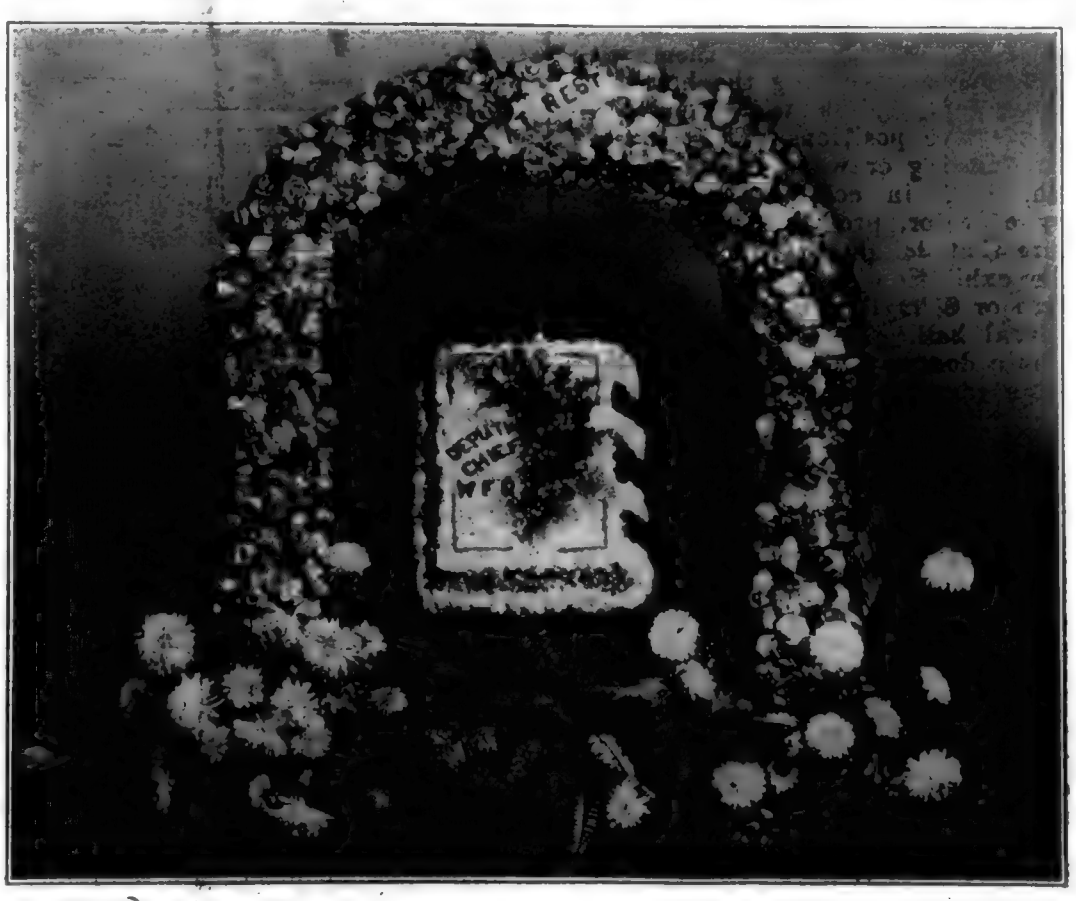
After much experience, it has been found that the best remedy is cold water applied freely to the glass. Take a small watering can or sprayer and flow some cold water down the inside of the window. Doing this once or twice a day, usually toward evening, will be sufficient. If your window is so constructed that water can not be applied freely, then wipe off the steam with a sponge or cloth saturated with cold water.

It has been suggested that the only sure remedy for the trouble we experience in winter with frost on the glass, is to have the window constructed the same as a florist's refrigerator door; that is, two lights of glass with an air space between. This might or might not be practical with a large window. In the first place, the space between must be perfectly air-tight, and even then, in time, the glass inside will get dirty and will have to be cleaned. Still, never having had any experience with a window so constructed, I do not want to condemn this method entirely. Does any reader know? Exchange of experiences is invited.

In a previous issue A. E. P. said: "I believe that the following remedy will do the business in a satisfactory manner, as I have seen the principle tried to perfection a number of times. Jewelry and other stores are using it with great success and no doubt it will do the same for florists' windows. The only objection that I can possibly see is that it might interfere with some of the decorations, but that should be easily remedied. The idea is simply this: To install a small electric fan where the current of air created by it will sweep across the inside of the window, and if the window has not become coated with ice it will clear in a few minutes and remain clear. I know the annoyance caused by windows becoming coated and I believe that a sure cure will be a welcome guest in any store, so I gladly give this to you to hand out to our brother florists through the columns of The Review. I have received many valuable helps from its columns and feel in duty bound to contribute anything of value to others in a like manner."

The Review will be glad to publish letters from others, telling how they overcome this difficulty.

WATERING PLANTS IN STORE.



Will you kindly tell me the best method for the care and watering of plants, such as kentias, nephrolepis, adiantums, Asparagus plumosus, etc., that are kept inside the store, where the average daily temperature is about 60 degrees at the present time? M. F.

It is not easy to lay down rules for the watering of plants, whether they be kept in a store or in a greenhouse, but none of the plants mentioned should be allowed to become really dry at any time, and the only way to avoid such a condition is to examine the plants carefully each morning and to water all those that are dry, giving water enough to moisten the soil all through. The kentias may also have their leaves sponged off occasionally with clear water, in order to remove the dust that will settle upon them in the store. The temperature maintained, 60 degrees, would be a satisfactory one for the plants mentioned. W. H. T.

SPANISH IRIS.

I have a lot of Spanish iris, imported. Would you kindly advise me what treatment to give them and when is the best time to force them into bloom?
F. B.

Place the bulbs in flats or the bench of a cool house. The former method of culture is to be preferred. Flats 4 x 12 x 24 inches will hold fifty to seventy-five bulbs, giving the larger bulbed varieties more space than the small ones. Keep in a frame or cool bed until well sprouted, but do not cover with ashes or soil, as these iris start to grow quickly. When the growths are two to three inches long, if in flats, move them in batches to a cool house where they will get full sun. A temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night is about right. The latter figure should not be exceeded, as iris cannot be forced hard, like some other bulbs. Water freely and feed regularly when the flats are full of roots. Spanish iris can not be had in good condition before the last part of March and you should allow six to eight weeks after housing until they flower. Of course, later in the season they come on more quickly. C. W.

MUM MRS. DRABBLE.

The man who names the chrysanthemums never took lessons of the expert who sticks the titles on the sleeping cars, else so fine a flower never would carry the name of Drabble—it would have, instead, some gently rolling word suggestive of purity of color, perfection of form and great size, for C. H. Totty, the new president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, says Mrs. Drabble is unquestionably the chrysanthemum novelty that shows the greatest advance for the present year. He describes it as follows in a letter written November 18:

"Mrs. Gilbert Drabble is a white, with whorl florets, and is a variety that will next year be head and shoulders above any white in its type. It is an entirely different style of flower to the splendid William Turner, but as an exhibition white I can say that it will beat everything when it is well grown. This variety has won first prize for the best bloom at the Paris show, was voted the best flower in the Crystal Palace national chrysanthemum show, also at Birmingham and several other big English shows. The novelty that showed the greatest advance for the year is unquestionably Mrs. Gilbert Drabble."

CHRYSANTHEMUM RAMAPO.

Chrysanthemum Ramapo was certificated in New York. It is a seedling of Appleton and to my mind will undoubtedly take the place of that variety. It is the same color, shows the same easy growth and the foliage is right up to the flower, but it never under any circumstances shows the objectionable top-knot so common to Col. Appleton. Ramapo will take a place in the list of standard yellows, when it is better known. Charles H. Totty.

SULPHUR ON PIPES.

Please tell me whether it would be advisable to use sulphur on the pipes where miscellaneous pot plants, ferns and bulbs are grown in one house, and carnations, chrysanthemums and plumosus in another. W. G.

The use of sulphur on the pipes is not to be recommended in a house of assorted plants, from the fact that the fumes of sulphur are highly injurious to many plants. This method is an old-fashioned remedy for mildew and also for red spider, but there are safer treatments for both these troubles.

W. H. T.

ERRATIC TEMPERATURES.

We have a house that is newly planted. It is partly planted with lettuce and partly sown with radish seed, and there is also some stevia in it. One night the temperature got down to 32 degrees and the next night it was 78 degrees. In a carnation house one night the temperature was 46 degrees and the next night it was 64 degrees. What I want to have published is, which of these temperatures did the most injury to the plants in question?

O. S. M.

Even after making every allowance for rather wide fluctuations in temperature outdoors, your range of extremes are such that no plants will grow properly in them. A little frost will ruin stevia and if your thermometer recorded 32 degrees, the wonder is that your plants were not killed. Lettuce succeeds best in a night temperature of 40 degrees. The same heat suits stevia.

Chrysanthemum Ramapo.

Radishes like a little more heat than lettuce and should be at the warmest end of the house. I would keep the night temperature from 40 to 45 degrees, as near as possible.

Carnations succeed best in a night temperature of 50 to 52 degrees. The Enchantress and Lawson varieties do well at 48 degrees, but if you can manage to hold it from 50 to 52 degrees your plants will do well. The higher temperatures are much more injurious than the low temperatures for these and all other plants. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Hardy Liliums.

The bulbs of the bulk of the liliums which are grown outdoors do not arrive until November; the Japanese sorts do not come to hand, as a rule, until early in December. It is often necessary to protect the ground with strawy manure or leaves, to exclude frost until these bulbs arrive. It is a great error to delay planting until spring, as no matter how carefully they may be stored, they will fritter away much of their strength before that time.

The most common mistake made in planting liliums is not getting them sufficiently deep in the soil. There are a few small-bulbed varieties which do well covered not more than six or seven inches, but such sorts as auratum, speciosum, tigrinum, Brownii, Henryi, excelsum, Chalcedonicum, superbum and others should be planted a foot deep. It pays to dig the soil deeply for them, but never use any fresh manure when doing so. A cushion of sand below and over the bulbs is beneficial, and while the liliums named can be grown well in clumps or nursery rows, they are in nearly every case seen at their best in soft, deep soil, such as is found in properly prepared rhododendron beds. Plant any liliums out as soon as possible after arrival, for, if not already emitting roots, they will speedily do so if placed in the soil. If, perchance, the ground is frozen hard and planting can not be done, it is a good plan to pot up the bulbs singly and store them in a cold pit over winter.

Primulas.

Thanksgiving is a trifle early for primulas, but some are already flowering nicely, and if kept on a light, sunny bench, they will be in good shape toward the end of the month. If any of the plants of P. Sinensis have been potted too high and are wabbly, use some short stakes to steady them. Do not try to force any of the primula family into flower, for you will only ruin them. All are cool subjects and succeed best in a house with a minimum temperature of 45 degrees, grown well up to the light and supplied with plenty of fresh air. As the pots will now be quite well filled with roots, some feeding should be given the plants. This may be either in the form of liquid manure once in four or five days or chemical top-dressings once in ten to fourteen days, always remembering, however, that primulas will not stand as heavy doses of manure as do such robust subjects as chrysanthemums, callas or geraniums.

Bouvardias.

Bouvardias seem to be under a temporary cloud, the larger and showier flowers being more in favor. This is to be regretted, as there are few winter flowers prettier than bouvardias, whether in a cut state or in pots. A few specialists still plant them and find a good sale for the flowers, particularly around the holidays, and more country florists might well try a few of them, as their culture is easy and a renewal of their popularity is sure to come again soon. In order to have a good Christmas crop, a temperature of 60 degrees at night should be given them. If in benches, it may be necessary to spray occasionally, as mealy bug is partial to them. The finest of all bouvardias, and one procurable over the longest season, is Humboldtii. Its large, delicately scented, jasmine-like flowers may be had for six months in the year, and where only one variety is grown it should be Humboldtii.

Callas.

The callas, whether grown in pots or benches, will now be flowering freely and their roots will have ramified through the soil until it is a veritable mass of them. To keep them in vigorous health and to secure an abundance of good spathes, feed them freely. Cow manure water is good; so are such chemicals as Clay's fertilizer and Bon Arbor in dry form, while fine bone is excellent. Many of the finest callas it was ever my privilege to see had fortnightly top-dressings of bone, and the way the roots devoured the bone and the plants flowered was something of an eye-opener. Callas, of course, are easy subjects to grow and every grower knows that they like feeding, but few realize how much they need. Try the bone top-dressings and note how your plants revel under the treatment. More and more growers are discovering the value of the Godfrey calla. Some there are who have entirely discarded the old variety, and no wonder, when they can get treble the flowers from the newcomer. Those who have not yet secured it should do so. This is one of the most useful florists' flowers sent out in years.

Deciduous Shrubs for Forcing.

Such deciduous shrubs for early forcing as Azalea mollis, lilacs and deutzias, if they have not been pot-grown, should be potted and stood on the floor of a cool pit, where they will make quite a few roots before they are wanted for forcing. As a rule the demand for these is not robust until the middle of March, and Easter is the season when they sell the best. It is much better to pot all this class of stock now, rather than wait until they are to be started.

Pansies.

The ground will probably soon freeze up for the winter. It is not well to give pansies any covering until the ground is hard. No good, but possibly considerable harm, may be done by premature mulching of these and many other plants. A light covering of leaves would be the ideal protection, but these are not always procurable and are hard to hold in position. Meadow hay or straw, laid on just thickly enough to hide the plants from view, makes a good mulch. Some brush or old corn stalks, dropped here and there, will prevent the covering from being blown away. Where plants are to be wintered in coldframes, a light covering of perfectly dry leaves, after the frost has tightened the ground, with sashes placed over them, is all that is needed. Avoid too much covering; it is more liable to be harmful than beneficial. Such coverings are all right where it is desired to exclude frost from the ground, but it is quite the reverse in the case of pansies and other hardy plants.

Freesias.

Keep the earliest batch of freesia plants in a night temperature of 52 to 55 degrees and give them plenty of water, with liquid manure twice a week. If the bulbs of these freesias were planted early in August, it should be possible to get a fair proportion of them in flower for Christmas. It is certainly worth a little extra trouble to secure this, as prices are then fully double what they are at any other time.

DETROIT.

The Market.

The Detroit market has been in good shape for the last week and good stock of all kinds has been cleaning up well. Chrysanthemums are all being taken up as fast as they come. Chadwick, Maud Dean, Dr. Enguehard, Timothy Eaton, Nagoya, Bonnaffon and all the other varieties due at this season are with us and they are all in grand shape. Pompons and singles are popular and the supply of these is increasing every year. Mrs. Helen H. Newberry, Fred Pautke's new pompon, which is a late white, following Diana, is in the market and is a great addition to the family. This pompon is extremely late and can be held for Christmas, on the plant, in good shape. Mr. Pautke and Fred Breitmeyer are handling this variety and are introducing it to the trade this season.

Carnations are fine this year and the light colors are cleaning up well. The dark carnations do not sell so well and sometimes it is necessary to force a sale on them. Lilies are coming in limited quantity and are slow sale, owing to the large number of mums in the market. Paper Whites and Romans are in and go toward making a good assortment for the retailers to set before their customers. Double violets are fine and selling well again after a slump at the beginning of the season. Single violets grown in Mt. Clemens by Fred Breitmeyer and Robert Klagge are certainly fine, but the retailers complain that there are not enough of them to take care of orders.

Roses are fine and in good supply. White Killarney and Killarney, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Melody, Aaron Ward and Bon Silene are all to be had and as the crops are just coming in we have a good outlook for Christmas. Beauties are a little off crop, but the growers report the buds are all set for Christmas and we should have a good supply of these also.

Taking everything into consideration, the trade in general here is in good shape and we all hope that conditions will remain the same all through the season.

Various Notes.

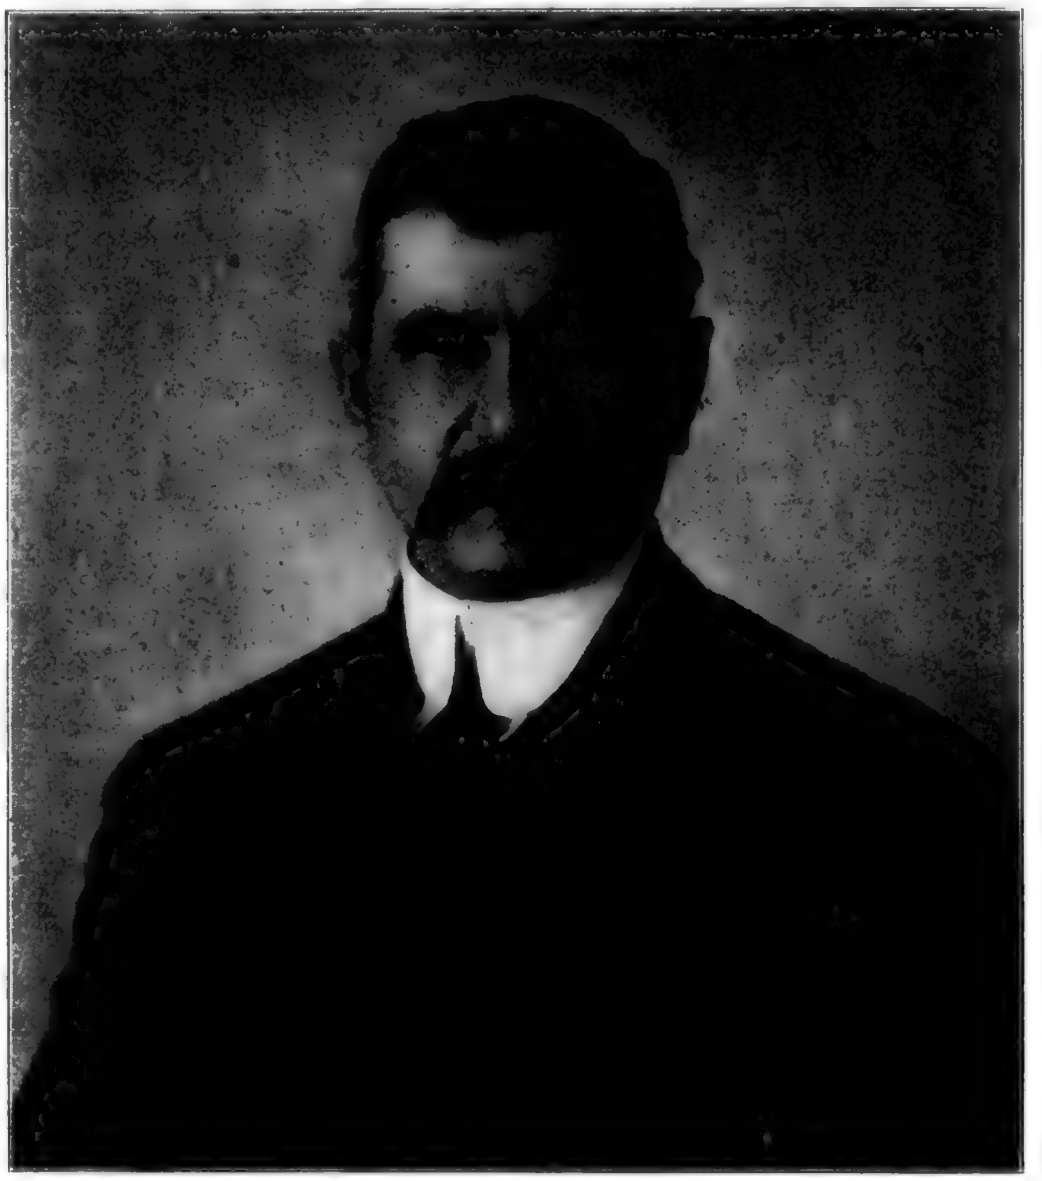
There was a well attended meeting of the Florists' Club this week. The show committee reported and, on the whole, it was considered by all that the show was a great success when the late start is counted. Everybody received a vote of thanks, with special thanks for Frank Danzer and A. Sylvester. Preparations are well under way for the rose and carnation show in January.

In last week's report concerning the flower show, the writer failed to mention the table decoration executed by Harry Rackham. Coral colored pompons were used in a way to attract much attention.

E. A. Fetters purchased a Cole 40, seven-passenger touring car last week. Mr. Fetters' family consists only of three, but he is kind to his friends; hence the seven-passenger car.

Carey-Fells, the latest retail store to open here, report business beyond all expectations.

Visitors during show week were George Heinl, of Toledo; J. A. Bissinger, of Bay City; Mrs. Freeman, of Toledo; Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer's.



Since the founding of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange this firm has been compelled by the increase of business to put on more help at regular intervals. The latest but by no means least important member of the company is Robert M. Rahaley, Jr., born Saturday, November 4.

Philip Breitmeyer was laid up for several days with neuralgia. H. S.

DENNIS CONNOR.

D. T. Connor, or Dennis, as he is known to the greater part of the florists all up and down the eastern edge of the United States, was born in a little town near West Grove, Pa., in 1861, and it was the most natural thing in the world that, having reached the dignity of his first pair of long pants, he should hunt up a job in the florists' business—all West Grove is floriculturally inclined. Dennis found his first job at the establishment of Dingee & Conard Co., beginning when he was only 14 years old. His first term there was for seven years, and later he came back for a postgraduate course of two years. Starting as a boy, he ended as assistant propagator, and anyone who knows the precision with which propagation is carried on at West Grove knows that Mr. Connor must have become master of his profession or he would have had no part in this work.

Leaving West Grove, "the hero of this tale," as the "Who's Who" writers say, had his try at the west, but he got no farther than Ohio, which really isn't west at all, so it is not to be wondered at that he soon was back at Lansdowne, where for a couple of years he was in charge of the Samuel J. Bunting place. By this time Mr. Connor thought he had a pretty thorough horticultural training, and he had; it only needed a trial of business on his own account to be complete. But Mr. Connor found the boss has his cares as well as the foreman, and he was willing to consider some of the good offers that came his way. In 1901 the Lord & Burnham Co., New York, concluded to open a Philadelphia office and picked Mr. Connor as the man to put in charge. He held the job ten years, covering eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia. At first it was slow work, but the business of building greenhouses was just beginning to develop and so thoroughly did Mr. Connor master the details of the subject that it got so that no one in that territory would undertake an important greenhouse project without discussing it with him. As a result of these friendly conferences, the sales of Mr. Connor's office in 1910 footed such a prodigious number of thousands that he don't mention the subject for fear of being thought a boaster—which he is not.

And now Mr. Connor has gone west again, this time to Chicago, but he is going back to Philadelphia in a few days to establish an eastern office for the Foley Mfg. Co., a matter which has been under consideration by the western builders for a long time.

There are thousands of florists who know Mr. Connor and know him well, but, while he knows all about the florist's affairs, few know of his. He travels so much that many think he must be a bachelor, but the fact is that at 5024 Pine street, in Philadelphia, there is a wife and six children with whom he spends every moment not devoted to business. Also at Boise, Idaho, there is a brother who also is well known in the trade, although it is only in the west, for he has not been east in years. This is Hugh Connor, who is one of the owners of the Boise Floral Co.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Cold weather has set in, with ice and snow, and winter seems here to stay. Stock is much scarcer than it has been, so there are no accumulations. However, there is still an abundant supply of everything except Beauties, which are not only scarce but poor in quality. Richmonds are fairly good and are sometimes used in place of Beauties. Other roses are all in good condition and fair supply, except My Maryland, which is a minus quantity. Carnations are much improved and are quite plentiful at this writing. There is a great demand for this particular flower this time of the year.

Chrysanthemums are not arriving in great quantities of late, but the pompon varieties are flooding the market in yellow, bronze, orange, red and white, and are finding a ready sale; in fact, the demand is so great that they sell in advance of their arrival.

The price of violets has advanced since the cold weather set in. They are first-class in quality, so there is no falling off in the demand.

Purple and white lilacs have put in their appearance and it seems good to see them this early, although they are not in great demand and the price is high. Sweet peas, in pink, lavender and white, are on the market and they are excellent in quality; yet they, too, are away up in price, so are not going at any great rate of speed. Valley keeps coming in well and is a great seller.

Begonias and primroses are coming in more plentifully and bring a fair price.

Bronze galax is exceptionally scarce, and at times we have to fall back on the green galax, leucothoe and boxwood for making up wreaths. The latter three are quite abundant. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are plentiful, as are hardy ferns.

Prepared purple beech branches and bronze and scarlet oak leaves are used a great deal with chrysanthemums of all colors for centerpieces, etc.

Various Notes.

Peter Hess, of Brightor, will discontinue his duties with Granger Hollister December 1.

Thomas Cogger, formerly of this city, spent a few days in town recently.

The Florists' Association will hold a smoker early in December.

An exhibition of fruit and flowers was held November 16 to 18 at the Chamber of Commerce. The following amateur and professional florists contributed to the flower exhibit: H. E. Wilson, E. R. Fry, Geo. T. Boucher, Fred Schlegel's Sons, J. B. Keller Sons, Chas. Suhr, Vick & Hill Co., Mrs. N. S. Kimball, Salter Bros. and George Eastman, the last named having sent a large bunch of magnificent roses from his private conservatory. The committee for the arrangement of the exhibit consisted of John Hall, Charles Vick, R. G. Phillip and John R. Fry.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Association the speaker, Chas. S. Zoller, paid a beautiful tribute to the late James Vick, the pioneer florist of Rochester. George Arnold, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced the season's program as follows: December, "The Chrysanthemum," by C. B. Ogston; January, "Perennials," by J. M. Keller; February, "Annuals," by George Arnold; March, "Roses," by Lawrence Cotter, of Jamestown; April, "Pruning," by John Dunbar. A display of flowers will also be held at each meeting.

Miss Guggleman has entered the employ of the Rochester Floral Co., filling the place made vacant by Miss M. Bradstreet.

J. B. Keller Sons are producing some good valley this month.

Salter Bros. have a clever display of Cibotium Schiedei ferns in their upper store.

Paper White narcissi have made their appearance in H. E. Wilson's stores.

The Maurer-Haap Co. reports that its bulb and nursery business is far ahead of last year. The new storage shed which is being erected is just about halfway completed.

William Ehmann, of Corfu, N. Y., is growing some excellent sweet peas, which are finding ready sale in Buffalo and Rochester. E. C. A.

Herkimer, N. Y.—W. D. Snell says he has no kick coming, the season having opened up well.

OBITUARY.

William H. Moon.

William H. Moon, of Morrisville, Pa., died suddenly of apoplexy in Trenton, N. J., Saturday, November 18. He went to Trenton that afternoon and was taken ill on the street, calling a young man who was passing to assist him to his physician's house, a few doors away. He died soon after reaching there.

William H. Moon was president of the large and successful nursery company which bears his name. He was 62 years of age. He started as a nurseryman in a small way, with four acres of land, twenty-five or thirty years ago. The business prospered and later was incorporated under the name of William H. Moon Co. The nursery now covers a large acreage. Mr. Moon is survived by two sons, Henry T., who has charge of the nursery and of the shipping department, and Edward, who has charge of the catalogue and sales departments, with offices in the Stephen Girard building, Philadelphia; and by two daughters. Mrs. Moon died four months ago.

John Siebenthaler.

In the death of John Siebenthaler, of Siebenthaler avenue, Dayton, O., which occurred November 16, there was removed one of the most widely known nurserymen in the state of Ohio. He had been ill for several months, being afflicted with Bright's disease. He was 57 years of age and the burden of years made it difficult for him to combat the dread disease, which had been perceptibly preying upon his system for a long time. During the two weeks prior to his death he was unable to leave his room. His demise was hourly expected for several days.

Having been engaged in the nursery business practically all his life, he was brought into actual contact with many people and his death is greatly deplored by hundreds of friends who knew and appreciated his worth. He had for years been an active and enthusiastic member of the Montgomery County Horticultural Society and had labored diligently for its welfare. He is survived by four sons, Wilbur, Clarence, John and George, and one daughter, Mary.

Frank Kleinhans.

Frank Kleinhans, of Kleinhans Bros., florists and nurserymen at St. Louis, Mich., died at his home Saturday, November 18, after an illness of three weeks. The business will be carried on by David Kleinhans, the surviving brother.

John J. Fonta.

John Jules Fonta, superintendent of Audubon park, in New Orleans, La., died at his home, 6030 Hurst street, in that city, on Friday, November 10, at the age of 76 years. He was a native of Varilhes, France. As a youth he studied botany in his native town. Some few months after graduation from the Government Horticultural College of France he came to America, and first located at New York. He remained in that city a short time, and in 1869 removed to New Orleans, where, after a while, he started his business career as a partner with M. Ory, and they were highly successful. During the New Orleans Centennial Exposition it was Mr. Fonta who furnished the great palms for the Horticultural hall, for which he received the first prize. At the close of the exposition he was appointed superintendent of Audubon park. Besides his widow, whom he wedded over forty-three years ago, he is survived by one brother and two sisters, living in France.

Mrs. J. Odgers.

Mrs. J. Odgers, proprietor of the Maquoketa Greenhouses, at Maquoketa, Ia., died on Tuesday, November 7, of heart failure. The surviving members of the family will continue the business, at least for some months.

Edouard Andre.

The death is reported of M. Edouard Andre, editor of the Revue Horticole and for fifty years a member of the staff of that excellent French publication.

M. Edouard Francois Andre was born at Bourges in 1840, and was the son of a horticulturist of that town. In his early youth he chose the profession of horticulture, and had the inestimable advantage of an early technical training, both in his father's establishment and at Angers, under M. Leroy. In 1859 he went to Paris and spent a year of study in the Museum of Natural History. In 1860 Andre became head gardener to the Ville de Paris, a post which he held for eight years. Here his aptitude for landscape gardening found large scope, and he has left an enduring monument of his skill in many of the great parks, particularly in the Parc des Buttes, Chaumont.

With this wide experience gained at Paris, M. Andre entered the competition organized by the town of Liverpool for the laying-out of Lord Sefton's estate of 370 acres as a public park. Andre was placed first in the competition, received the prize of 300 guineas, and was entrusted with the execution of his plans. This work lasted for five years, and the park was opened in 1867 by Prince Arthur. Monuments to his skill are to be found in all parts of Europe, in Holland, Denmark, Russia, Austria, Bulgaria and Italy.

Many literary distinctions were achieved in his long and industrious lifetime, but perhaps the greatest of all which fell to M. Andre was his appointment to the Professorship of Garden Architecture at l'Ecole Nationale d'horticulture of Versailles when, in 1892, the chair—the first of its kind—was established on his behalf. M. Andre was a corresponding member of the Royal Horticultural Society of London, Officer of the Legion d'honneur, and he held many distinguished orders. He was interred October 28, at La Croix (Indre-et-Loire).

In summing up the work of this distinguished man, the Gardeners' Chronicle, London, says one cannot find a fitter expression than that employed by the Revue Horticole: "Andre gave to the landscape art a new impulse, and by precept and example formed a new school. He devoted his life to the advancement of horticulture. He brought great honor to the name of Frenchmen throughout the civilized countries of the earth."

Adrian, Mich.—William Wickham, formerly in business as a florist and gardener at 84 Vine street, now has charge of the greenhouses at Oakwood cemetery.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Girard, O.—James Knapp is building a greenhouse, 26x100 feet, on the Seaburn farm.

Framingham, Mass.—S. J. Goddard is building an addition to his greenhouses, on Main street.

Chillicothe, Mo.—R. L. Isherwood has been holding an exceptionally successful chrysanthemum show at his greenhouses.

Concord, N. H.—G. J. Benedict has installed a new heating system and made other improvements in his greenhouses, at 25 South street.

Brighton, Mass.—Chas. E. Holbrow's new, up-to-date office is rapidly nearing completion. He expects to do an extensive retail business this winter.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Lord Plant Box Co., formerly known as Lord's Frost-Proof Plant Box Co., has removed to 524 Andrus building, in this city.

Freeport, Ill.—The damage done at the John Bauscher plant when the water tank fell has been repaired. The new tank has a capacity of 260 barrels.

Norristown, Pa.—A valuable horse owned by Wm. R. Yeager became uncontrollable recently, while Mr. Yeager was driving it, and dashed into a sand pile. One of the animal's fore legs was broken. Mr. Yeager was thrown to the brick-paved street and was considerably bruised, but was able to attend to his duties as usual on the following day.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—J. L. Dillon has installed a water tank, with a capacity of 20,000 gallons, at his Fifth street greenhouses. With the help of this new tank, which is of steel construction and stands on a 25-foot tower, Mr. Dillon will have a sufficient water supply for his entire range, when that part on Normal Hill is moved to the Fifth street location.

Mount Sterling, Ky.—John Corbett has again taken possession of his greenhouses, which were leased for a time to Graser & Humphreys. He has remodeled the place, making it one of the best establishments of its kind in this part of the state, and will conduct a general florists' business. His range contains 10,000 square feet of glass and he is planning to increase that area.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Atlanta Floral Co., of which A. Borg and Ivar Erickson are proprietors, has remodeled the store at 41 Peachtree street, transforming it into a most attractive and convenient establishment. The firm's greenhouses, on East Fair street, which are under the management of Mr. Erickson, have also been improved and enlarged. Mr. Erickson is an expert grower and has received diplomas from botanical gardens in Paris, Berlin and London.

Woburn, Mass.—Edward Aylward, of J. J. Aylward & Co., in this city, and Miss Margaret J. Lynch, of Lowell, were married November 12.

Northboro, Mass.—R. E. Wadsworth & Co. are installing two new boilers and building a 65-foot chimney at their greenhouses on Pleasant street.

Benton Harbor, Mich.—Thomas Heaven, of the River View Greenhouses, has purchased the flower business of Undertaker A. J. Youngs.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Judge William J. Vesey has announced the marriage of his daughter, Sarah Waterhouse Vesey, and Cecil Alviere Max.

Jamestown, N. Y.—At the Lake View Greenhouses, where Lawrence Cotter is superintendent, rapid progress has been made in the work of rebuilding the big boiler house destroyed in the recent fire.

Falls City, Neb.—Bert Simonton and Harry Pence, proprietors of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, gave an opening the other day, providing a free bus between town and greenhouses and giving each of 200 visitors a fern as a souvenir.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The Saltford Flower Shop has a Ford motor wagon for rapid delivery and adds to the advertising value of the car by distributing post cards that carry a cut of the auto and uniformed messengers, with the inscription, "At your service."

Sterling, Ill.—A recent hail storm broke a considerable amount of glass in the greenhouses of the Sterling Floral Co. and J. A. Swartley & Sons. As the weather was rapidly becoming cooler at the time, there were fears that the plants would be greatly damaged by the exposure before the repairs could be completed. Swartley & Sons have finished a new greenhouse.

Brookline, Mass.—F. E. Palmer has bought a fine tract of land consisting of twenty-five acres within easy access of town and expects to remove the greenhouses there eventually. He is making a nursery to supply his landscape department. Stephen Quinn will soon celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of James Quinn's establishment, which is being well kept up by him.

Salem, Mass.—H. T. Conant & Co., the Essex street florists, will be obliged to remove from their present location, on account of a change of ownership. They have therefore secured a 10-year lease on a piece of ground a few doors away, and are building a store there. Behind the new store is some vacant space which will be covered by the Conant greenhouses, and a barn in the rear will be transformed into a boiler house.

Fessenden, N. D.—Richard Olson has erected a greenhouse here and is in business as a florist.

Greenfield, Mass.—Frank J. Yetter, the Main street florist, is building a large greenhouse on the site of the old Temple house, on Davis street.

Green Bay, Wis.—William Van Langenduck, a florist employed by Charles De Clerc, was operated upon for appendicitis a few days ago at the St. Vincent hospital. His condition shows improvement daily.

Paxton, Ill.—The Addems-Morgan greenhouses have lost glass by hail several times this season. November 11 the breakage was small, but the temperature was far below freezing at the time the hail fell.

Sharon, Pa.—The boiler house at the greenhouses of John Murchie, on South Irvine avenue, has been destroyed by fire. The loss was between $1,300 and $1,500, with no insurance. Preparations were made for rebuilding at once.

Kansas City, Mo.—Charles R. Fuhlbruegge, formerly of Winona, Minn., and later of Minneapolis, is now a member of the firm of Henry Kusik & Co., which has started in the wholesale cut flower and supply business here.

Atlantic, Ia.—The Atlantic Greenhouse Co., which removed its range a few months ago to Ninth and Linn streets, has completed the work of rebuilding and has also added some new houses. Manager C. Olson and his assistant, J. W. Camblin, deserve great credit for the present fine condition of the establishment. Mr. Olson is figuring, also, on the erection of one more house, for violets.

Florence, S. C.—DeWitt House, proprietor of the Florence Nursery, which is located on the east side of South Dargan street, directly across the road from Mount Hope cemetery, has just completed a new iron-frame greenhouse, 65x150, and will handle a complete line of flowers as well as nursery stock. He has also opened an uptown flower store in the Central hotel building.

Carthage, Ill.—Professor Robert C. Crum, formerly connected with the public schools here, but now principal of the high school of Raton, N. M., has purchased the greenhouses of S. T. Stone and will return here to take charge of them. The greenhouses are being removed to Mr. Crum's property on West Locust street, where he will conduct them on a commercial basis. He is not only an expert botanist, but also has some practical knowledge of flowers. His family have already arrived here and will reside during the winter at the home of Mrs. Crum's mother.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
Officers for 1912: President, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; vice-president, August Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill.; secretary, John Young, Bedford Hills, N. Y.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
Annual convention, Chicago, Ill., August 20 to 23, 1912.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE only reason that no reply can be given to A. J., who asks about Spanish iris, is that there was nothing about his letter by which his identity could be ascertained.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

AFTER swinging around the circle of the fall flower shows, Richard Vincent, Jr., president-elect of the S.A.F., has returned home declaring that he has "more friends than any other man in the United States."

SINCE cut flowers as a rule were in full crop just before the middle of November, one would be justified in predicting only moderate cuts for Thanksgiving and another full crop just in time for Christmas.

IF B. P., who asks about Enchantress carnations, recalls that there was nothing about his letter by which he could be identified, it will explain his failure to receive a reply. Anonymous inquiries can not receive the attention that would be freely given if the writer's full name and address were signed.

THE EARLY BIRD.

The first 1912 calender arrived November 21, from the land of galax and leucothoe. It was sent by the North Carolina Evergreen Co., F. M. Richards, manager, and is not only handsome but shows, if this is any indication, 1912 is to be a big year.

SIM URGES CO-OPERATION.

Knowing full well the interest you always have taken in sweet peas, I hope if space permits you will insert in the columns of your valuable paper this letter to the members and friends of the National Sweet Pea Society of America.

Plans have been made to hold our annual meeting and exhibition jointly with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, July 13 and 14 next. As president of this society it is my desire that this should be the finest show of its kind ever held. Features are already assured which have never before been attempted. If you have a piece of land available where you could grow some sweet peas for this show you would be helping, at slight expense, a good cause. A committee is now at work on a preliminary schedule which should be ready for distribution about December 1, so that those interested may have ample time to study the features for which they wish to compete. There will be special prizes for seedsmen, gardeners, commercial growers, retailers, amateurs, school children and school gardens. In behalf of the Sweet Pea Society I would like to have you stir enthusiasm in your vicinity. If you could get the cottagers and schools and your local paper interested it would mean for you increased business in time to come. We have already received the support and coöperation of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, the gardeners of Lenox, North Shore, Bar Harbor and other places. There is no doubt as to the outcome of this event, but every little done now means a much greater success. Trusting you will act favorably in this matter, I am,

Respectfully yours,
William Sim.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

"Rather looks as though it was time to lay off for a couple of years." The speaker was the manager of probably the most successful flower show of the season and the idea he expressed is pretty much the idea of all those who handled the large volume of work that was necessary for the shows—the public response was not enough to make the work worth while. Just where the trouble lies can never be settled, but the fact remains that from the point of public attendance and gate receipts none of the principal shows this year can be called successes. The people can not be expected to attend where they are given little to see, but some of the shows this year were a first-class success artistically and from a trade standpoint, and yet the people did not respond. To many it appears that the only trouble is that the interest has waned and that an entirely new plan of holding exhibitions will have to be evolved before the people can be won back; that the shows are an old story and that the story must be made new again before a big show can be self-supporting.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A change for the better was apparent Monday morning, November 20, but there is little cause for felicitations over the business for the week ending November 18. The hot weather at the close of the preceding week, followed by the sharp cold wave, produced conditions which operated to depress the market all through the week. The way the hot spell made the Bonnaffons jump was something the growers long will remember. It brought in enormous quantities of this most popular of chrysanthemums; quantities so great that, in spite of excellent quality, some of the houses found it impossible to effect a clearance at any time during the week, even though prices were made in accordance with buyers' ideas. The glut of chrysanthemums had the effect of depressing prices on all other flowers. The only exceptions were Beauties, which were scarce and advanced steadily. Orchids to a less degree were in request and values firmed up. Single violets also showed an advancing tendency, but carnations suffered from the oversupply of mums, as did roses, double violets and the many miscellaneous items now in stock. Extremely large quantities of flowers were moved, but the average prices were so low that on the whole the week was a disappointment to growers and wholesalers.

Order here all the KILLARNEYS You need for your Thanksgiving trade

We never have been so well fixed on Roses as we are this season, and a fine crop is on just right for Thanksgiving. You can get here all the Killarneys you need—and those who know the market recognize that, length for length, our Killarneys carry the finest heads of any roses to be had.

Buyers should bear in mind that our prices are NOT higher than others ask for the same quality of stock, if they have it. While we are strong on the "special" grade, by far the greater part of our supply is "select," and we can do as well for the buyers who use medium-priced stock as we can for those who want only the longest stems.

MUMS

A Large Supply of Fine Stock.

Many growers say they will be cut out of Mums before Thanksgiving. Not so with us. Order here and be safe. We shall have from 20,000 to 25,000 for Thanksgiving week—the largest supply we ever have had. All the best late varieties. Don't forget, you can get here—of us—all the Mums you need. We shall be glad to be called on to fill your orders.

VIOLETS

We handle the cream of the doubles—the "specials" now offered here are quite in a class by themselves. Also can supply fancy, fragrant singles. Can furnish any quantity for Thanksgiving.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are coming in heavily, and the quality is right up to the high standard that has made our stock noted for its superior shipping qualities. Send along your orders and we will take the very best of care of you.

We handle the finest Orchids coming into the Chicago market and can fill all orders.

Order VALLEY of Us

If you have had any difficulty getting your Valley orders filled, it was because you didn't order of us. Always plenty of Fancy Valley here.

HEADQUARTERS FOR EASTER LILIES

We always have Easter Lilies, every day in the year, and the finest there are—home grown—they go out in perfect condition.

CHICAGO

Long Distance Phone, Central 6004

The opening of the present week showed a stiffening tendency, the supplies of stock being greatly reduced. Practically everything was shortening up, the general impression being that it was more the result of growers holding back for the anticipated good Thanksgiving than because of any sharp reduction in production. Beauties are scarce and prices have been advanced. The quality of such Beauties as arrive is uniformly high; there can be no complaint on this score. There are scarcely any short Beauties and orders for medium lengths are harder to fill than orders for the extra long stems.

While roses are less plentiful, there is no difficulty in filling orders and the general impression is that there will be adequate supplies for any possible Thanksgiving demand. It is figured that chrysanthemums are so nearly at the end of their season in this market that a part of the Thanksgiving demand usually going to chrysanthemums will this year be turned to roses. The Chicago market never had better roses than it has this year. Little short stock is now coming in but any other grade can be had in quantity up to 4-foot stems. Richmond is in good crop and will take the place of the shorter grades of Beauties. Mrs. Ward sells on sight.

There are good supplies of carnations, mostly white and light pink. When orders for red are received it frequently calls for some chasing to locate the stock, and neither are there many dark pink. The average quality of carnations is all that could be desired and the production steadily is increasing. It is not figured that there will be any scarcity for Thanksgiving.

The quality of violets is excellent and they are selling better than heretofore, though no high prices are being made. Singles have been on the short side, which has turned part of the demand to the eastern doubles. Sweet peas are slightly more plentiful, principally pink and white. Stevia has come in, as well as Paper Whites and Romans. Bouvardia is popular. Gardenias are scarce. The orchid crops are lighter than they were and prices have advanced. Some of the wholesalers predict that from now on prices will be good enough to compensate for the low rates which prevailed during the oversupply in the east. The quality of the cattleyas is fine. There is plenty of valley and an increased supply of Easter lilies. Growers evidently plan to bring in plenty of lilies right after the mums go out. Callas also are plentiful. All greens are abundant.

Various Notes.

Carl N. Thomas rejoined the forces of the A. L. Randall Co. November 20 and surprised his associates there by the announcement of his marriage, November 16, at Bradford, Pa., his bride being Miss A. Annette Jones. They have taken up their residence at 1375 East Fifty-seventh street. Mr. Thomas spends his summers at the old family homestead at West Springfield, Pa.

F. F. Benthey has been having a decidedly uncomfortable time with a boil, the first one in his long life; but this one made up for all deficiencies by taking a position which reminds one of the truant schoolboy who found it convenient to eat off a shelf.

John Kruchten points to daily arrivals of Hilda rose, probably the only lot now reaching this market.

Charles Erne now is salesman for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

The funeral of the late G. H. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., held November 16, was largely attended, many in the trade being present. The pallbearers were John Zech, of Zech & Mann; A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan & Sperry; F. F. Benthey, of Kyle & Foerster, and Frank Ayers, with C. W. McKellar, all old business associates.

Percy Jones reports the arrival of the first Romans early last week.

George Scott, one of the old-timers in the flower business, but for some years engaged in another line, is again with E. F. Winterson Co.

Clifford Pruner has returned from a good trip as far west as Denver for E. H. Hunt. A. F. Longren, also traveler for Hunt, is in to help handle the holiday rush.

Wm. Dittmann, New Castle, Ind., is shipping Beauties to Kyle & Foerster. W. P. Kyle, who was at New Castle recently, says Mr. Dittmann is home again and enjoying good health.

N. J. Wietor made a thorough inspection of the greenhouses of Wietor Bros., Sunday morning, and came back to the store Monday highly elated with December prospects.

A. C. Kohlbrand, with the E. C. Amling Co., visited at his old home in Cincinnati last week, attending the flower show there.

J. P. Risch, of Weiland & Risch, has been on the sick list for several days, suffering with a severe cold.

Frank Ayres has returned from Texas.

Tim Matchen reports the return of Peter Reinberg and Mayor Harrison from Duquoin, November 19, laden down with quail.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The market shows decided improvement for the week ending November 22. The supply of flowers has increased, but the demand for them has increased even more than the supply. Prices have advanced on cattleyas, on Beauties and on violets, strong evidence that the social season has opened in earnest.

Chrysanthemums still are the leading flower. Some select Golden Chadwick, with Golden Eagle and a few others, bring $3 and occasionally $4 a dozen. These are the exceptions. Really fine stock can be had for $2 to $2.50 a dozen. The best chrysanthemums sell far more readily than ordinary blooms. Bonnaffon is undoubtedly the leading variety. Yellow pompons are preferred to other colors in that class.

Violets continue scarce and in active demand; $1.25 to $1.50 is the price on the best, both in singles and in doubles. Cattleyas have shortened, with prospects of a fortnight's scarcity; $7.50 to $9 is the ruling price. Beauties are exceedingly fine. Strong demand has advanced them to $4 to $5 a dozen in the face of a good supply. There is no especial change in the other roses, excepting that they are selling better. The poorer grades benefit most by the improvement.

The carnation situation is brighter. Prices are unchanged, but the average figures are better than a week ago. Valley has been quite shy, at times unequal to the demand. Gardenias and sweet peas are good stock. The abundant supply of Easter lilies and the moderate supply of callas is in excess of requirements. The out-of-town demand is strong.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The opening of the French Opera House, November 14, marked the inauguration of the social winter season and much is expected from this by the different florists. If the attractive custom of carrying a few flowers is kept up by the ladies occupying boxes on opera nights, it means surely a boon for all the storekeepers in the florists' line. Several hundred expensive bunches and corsages were furnished by the leading florists and added greatly to the beautiful and dazzling spectacle.

The convention of the National Bankers' Association in the Crescent City, during the present week, is calling for many decorations, some of them on an elaborate scale, with an additional demand for high grade cut flowers. Many receptions for both day and evening, as well as some weddings, are scheduled on the social calendar for the season and an optimistic view on the part of the florists in general is prevailing.

The landscape gardeners are kept quite busy at present with the sowing of English rye or winter grass, and the planting of bulbs and annuals. Both of these bloom here outdoors during the winter months, and, with the carpet-like, beautiful lawns, give to our gardens a charming, spring-like appearance. Since the beginning of this month we have had all kinds of sudden changes in the temperature, ranging from 85 to 33 degrees, but no damage to plants was done, all the tender ones being housed.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held a highly instructive monthly meeting November 16, at Kolb's German Tavern. President Claude Ory and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their respective places and there was a large and enthusiastic attendance. C. R. Panter, as chairman of the show committee, brought in a verbal report, stating that the Truck Farmers' Association had appointed a committee of five, that the Shippers' Association will do the same at its next meeting, during this month, and that all the different committees will meet together shortly and the results of that meeting will be brought before the members of the society at its next meeting, in December.

Dan Newsham and John Bollwinkle were elected members of the society.

Richard Eichling, foreman of U. J. Virgin's nursery, read a paper on "A Few Foliage Plants for the Wholesale and Retail Market," describing in brief the profitable culture of such plants as Areca lutescens, Livistona rotundifolia, Latania Borbonica, dracænas and crotons. He exhibited Areca lutescens, Dracæna fragrans and four varieties of crotons, all in perfect condition.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., Harry Papworth, president, had an elaborate exhibit of greenhouse-grown chrysanthemums, which attracted a great deal of attention. Most noteworthy among them were perfect blooms of Beatrice May, Colonel Appleton and M. Loiseau Rousseau. Harry Dressel, the expert rose grower for the same firm, showed some fine vases of American Beauty, Bridesmaid, Bride, Kaiserin, The Queen, Mrs. Roosevelt, Chateau de Clos Vougeot, and a vase of twelve varieties of imported and domestic new roses, especially grown for trial purposes. Mr. Dressel has been highly successful in growing roses under glass since taking charge of the Metairie Ridge Nursery rose houses.

J. A. Newsham exhibited a fine specimen of the butterfly orchid from Guatemala.

Otto Kronmueller and Thomas F. Kearney, with the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, were visitors at the meeting. R. E.

The Market.

Business might be better, and it is getting better. Weddings have been numerous of late. The football game between the Georgetown and Virginia Universities, November 18, caused a big demand for flowers. The rah-rah boys cleaned out all the yellow mums in town for their sweethearts and relatives. The coming Army and Navy game is expected to help some more.

Violets are good and going well. Mums may be somewhat scarce this week, as efforts will be made to avoid cutting, so as to supply the Thanksgiving demand. Orchids are improving in quality and the supply is sufficient, although good Trianæ is bringing $7.50 to $9 per dozen, and small "Percies" sell for 35 to 50 cents. Valley is all right. The demand for roses is growing and their quality improving.

Various Notes.

store, known as The Flower Shop, at 1100 Connecticut avenue.

During the last week Gude Bros. Co. furnished decorations for seven weddings. Notable among these were the decorations at the Roosevelt-Bayne wedding, a prominent society event.

Another matrimonial event of special interest was the marriage of Miss Marie Gude, daughter of Adolph Gude, and Mr. De Shields, a newspaper man. The latter took place at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, which was decorated with 800 mums, seventy-five palms and ten cases of smilax, also other flowers. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. She was preceded down the aisle by the flower girl, Miss Louise Gude, William F. Gude's daughter, who scattered pink roses in the bride's path. Local florists in large numbers attended the wedding. The young couple have received many congratulations and good wishes, besides handsome gifts.

Gude and Marche are having their stores painted in preparation for the winter trade.

Marche has been quite busy of late supplying decorations for several business openings and on funeral work.

Z. D. Blackistone reports that his business during the week since his opening shows an increase of 100 per cent over the same week last year. He wishes to acknowledge with thanks the good wishes of many friends in and out of the trade. A number of floral gifts were presented to Mr. Blackistone during the week, notable among them being handsome offerings from Mr. and Mrs. George Field, G. G. Cornwell & Sons, S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Harry Ley, the Washington Florists' Exchange, Theodore Diedrich, Adolph Bowdler and H. C. Summers, all of Washington; also from Edward Reid, of Philadelphia. The employees of the Blackistone establishment presented their chief with a handsome desk set of brass.

W. R. Smith has improved so that he is able to sit in a rolling chair and move around the hospital.

Trade visitors here during the week included Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Dykes, with Jansen, New York.

Manager McKissick, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., says that when their projected new building in H street is ready next year, on the site of the present office of the Columbia Nursery Co., Pennock-Meehan Co. will carry on hand large stocks of smilax and other bulky goods, for which they now have little room. H. C. H.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business last week was extremely quiet, but the present week starts out with an improved tone. The bulk of the smaller grade chrysanthemums are now, fortunately, out of the way and the arrivals are nearly all good stock. Leaders among mums are Intensity, Bonnaffon, Shrimpton, Maud Dean, Eaton, Yellow Eaton, Jeanne Nonin, President Roosevelt, Nagoya and Patty. Prices do not show much change. In exceptional cases $4 per dozen has been paid for crimsons for the football games, but the average for good flowers is much below this. Roses are shorter in supply, with prices well maintained. Carnations are averaging a little better, but no fancy prices are obtainable while mums are so abundant.

Violets are selling at higher rates, the football games having called for large quantities. The Harvard-Yale game November 25 at Cambridge will cause a heavy run on these and crimson mums. Paper White narcissi are abundant. Some Soleil d'Or also is seen, as well as Roman hyacinths. There still is plenty of cosmos, but it sells slowly. Pink antirrhinum is in strong demand; other colors do not sell so well. Marguerites are scarce. Valley sold a little better last week, but still is too plentiful. Lilies and callas are each selling fairly well. Some mignonette is arriving, but the quality is poor as yet.

Gardenias are more plentiful, but the call is uncertain. The cattleya supply is steadily declining and prices are a little better. There is an abundance of cypripediums, dendrobiums, phalænopsis and yellow oncidiums. There is a better demand for both asparagus and adiantum. Plant trade is picking up nicely.

Various Notes.

Arthur Robbins, for eight years with Penn and later in charge of the flower stand at Back Bay station, H. Lerner and A. I. Caplan have opened a new flower store at 169 Tremont street, under the title of the Flower Growers' Exchange. The store is attractively fitted up and a fine line of choice flowers is carried. Being in the heart of the shopping district, a big business should be done. Mr. Robbins is well pleased with trade up to date.

Wm. E. Turner, G. P. Russell and Alex. Woburn, all of Woburn, have splendid single violets now at the Boston Coöperative Market. Mr. Porter, in addition, has excellent sweet peas.

Thomas F. Galvin disposed of over 70,000 violets November 18, for the Princeton-Yale football game at New Haven.

Perry E. Green, of Quincy, is specializing on Cosmos Lady Lenox. Yellow pompon mums also are selling well.

F. H. Houghton had a big wedding order for November 22, having, in addition to bouquets, the bride's house and the Old South Church to decorate, which he did in his usual artistic manner.

H. F. Calder, of Norwood, who is one of our double violet growers, has, in addition to Lady Hume Campbell, a fine lot of Swanley White.

The Boston Flower Growers' Sales Co. has special extra salesmen and business is increasing satisfactorily.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, has a fine lot of the beautiful late pink mum, Patty, for which Thomas Pegler finds a quick sale.

A. F. Coolidge, at the Boston Coöperative Market, is having a big demand for nephrolepis, also Bonnaffon mums, which are of fine quality.

Edgar Bros., of Waverly, have the finest Intensity mums I have seen this season, which have sold as high as $4 per dozen.

Wilfred Wheeler is away on a trip to Bermuda for his health, but will be home in time for Christmas.

Harvard, a new crimson scarlet mum from E. D. Smith & Sons, was before the Boston committee of the C. S. A. November 18. It is a big advance on Shrimpton and the color is just what is needed by Harvardites.

Thomas Roland has work well advanced on his new 600-foot greenhouses at Revere. Painters are now busy on the roofs. Mr. Roland is cutting a fine lot of gardenias and cypripediums.

has no trouble in selling his mums, which include excellent flowers of Intensity, Shrimpton, Roosevelt, Enguehard and Bonnaffon. He also has Soleil d'Or narcissi.

Paul E. Richwagen, of Needham, is making a big strike on pink snapdragons, which are sold almost before his boxes are opened.

The annual election of officers of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held December 19. Two field days are planned for December.

Peirce Bros. were first in the market with stevia, which they now have in quantity. In mums, their Roosevelts are extra good. They are also getting a big lot of high grade carnations, which are all sold through the Flower Growers' Sales Co.

John McKenzie, of Cohasset, at the Boston Coöperative Market, has sweet peas, Paper Whites, carnations and mums, all of good quality.

Thomas Capers, of Highlandville, is an excellent carnation grower. His specialties are Winsor, Beacon, Queen, Fenn, White Enchantress and Fair Maid.

Wm. Patterson, of Wollaston, is the king of the local growers of bachelor's buttons. He also has fine wallflowers.

Herbert L. Cox, of Winchester, is a grower of Princess of Wales violets who is this season having extra success with them.

The W. W. Edgar Co. is already in the market with well flowered poinsettias.

Eaton mums are not so much in evidence as in former years, but S. J. Reuter & Son have both the yellow and white varieties of grand quality.

McAlpine's Killarneys and Aaron Wards, grown at Exeter, N. H., are a revelation to flower buyers. This new and enterprising rose grower has already secured an enviable reputation.

Business is excellent with H. M. Robinson & Co., and they are anticipating a big Thanksgiving trade. Shipping trade is heavy.

HOLLY-HOLLY-HOLLY

I have just returned from a two weeks' trip through the Holly sections of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and have contracted for my supply for the season of 1911. I expect to have several cars of very fine, dark green, well-berried Swamp Holly. I will have it packed as usual in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and guaranteed as represented. My first car will arrive in Philadelphia about December 1st. I filled all orders received last year and gave entire satisfaction and I hope to do so again this season. My price this year on orders received up to December 1st is $3.00 per case. After that date, at market price, which I am quite sure will be higher on account of scarcity.

HOLLY WREATHS
My Holly Wreaths will be made of the very finest selected dark green Holly on 10 inch hoops, and will be well-berried $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to quality.

LAUREL WREATHING
My Laurel Wreathing will be made of the brightest Swamp Laurel that it is possible to secure, in 50-yard lengths. Price, 2½c and 3c per yard.

MISTLETOE
My Mistletoe, from North Carolina, will be extra selected and full of berries. Per case, $3.50 to $5.00, according to quality.
Lycopodium, in 10-yd. rolls, 5c to 8c per yd.

I make a specialty of the above and guarantee all goods as represented or money refunded. Cash must accompany all orders.

week, and he must continue to look. One consolation, however, is that the florist is not the only complaining citizen, for the ode from other business men is sung to the same tune as that of the florist. There are not too many mums on the market. Carnations, though not abundant, are of sufficient supply to meet demands. Roses of all varieties are plentiful and of fine quality. Lilies are cropping well, but only a small portion of the supply finds a place in the market. In fact, stock of all kinds is excellent, and the great need now is buyers. There will be a generous supply of everything for Thanksgiving.

Various Notes.

In this column last week it was stated that the terrific wind storm of November 11 and 12 did much damage to local greenhouses. Since that writing it has been learned that there is one who suffered greater loss than those mentioned. The entire plant of William Phebus, proprietor of the Westwood Floral Co., seemed to be a chosen victim of the wind. His stock, including many valuable varieties of flowers, was killed and what represented more than $2,000 and a summer's labor is now a mass of withered, frozen plants. Mr. Phebus had prepared for a drop in temperature, but had not counted on the accompanying gale. Not one of his six greenhouses was spared and not less than 300 panes of glass were ripped out, leaving the icy blasts to sweep through the houses. Because of the danger of flying glass, Mr. Phebus was unable to save any of his stock. He stated last week that he had just cleared himself of debt and was in a position to make money. Today he is left practically penniless, with scarcely enough funds to repair the damage done by the storm. The Dayton florists are showing Mr. Phebus that their hearts are in the right place by doing all they can to assist him at this time.

Mrs. Young has been suffering a great deal with lumbago during the last week.

William Huston, shipping clerk for the Miami Floral Co., who has been quite ill for the last two weeks, is back at his old stand again.

The Miami Floral Co. is cutting some elegant roses, the kind of flowers that suit the most critical; but they find the market quite slow, especially when the abundant supply is taken into consideration, as only a small portion of the stock finds buyers. R. A. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A pretty thorough cleanup was made Saturday, November 18, thanks to horse show, football, grand opera and the charming weather. The week end left a clear field for Monday, and improvement must of necessity characterize the cut flower trade until after Thanksgiving. Prices were barely steady and no influence seems to effect the present level of values.

The shipments of roses, with the exceptions of American Beauties and the new varieties of this season's introduction, continue larger than the market can absorb. Of chrysanthemums there seems to be no end. Some grand stock is arriving. The specialists' best bring from $4 to $6 a dozen, but great quantities of splendid stock sell at from 25 cents each, down to $1 a dozen. In large quantities as low as $5 per hundred has secured what in other years brought $10. The many grades, the fluctuations in price, and the general excellence of the blooms were never more striking than this season. The abundance will show no decrease before Thanksgiving.

American Beauties are advancing and in wide demand. These, with violets, orchids and gardenias, are in evidence at the horse show, where society this week is on exhibition. Orchids are selling well and are comparatively scarce. The best hold easily at 75 cents, and in small quantities at $1 each.

The New Haven call for violets raised the price to 75 cents per hundred November 18. Specials sold at $1. The regular shipments sold at from 50 cents to 60 cents. Many thousands of sport lovers attended the Yale-Princeton game and the exodus of yellow mums and violets all through the day, from the Grand Central station, presented a moving picture of bloom and beauty which only can be seen here once a year. Violets are back again this week to a lower level and will not be likely to touch $1 again before Thanksgiving.

The best gardenias are up to $5 a dozen. From now on there will be no shortage.

Carnations are doing some better this week and there was room for improvement. Seldom did they go above $2 per hundred and the bulk of the arrivals sold at from $1.50 down. The quality is now at its best and finer Enchantress have never been seen here. Valley holds at $2 to $3 per hundred, and lilies in large supply have backed up again to 5 cents and under. There seems to be little demand for bouvardia or sweet peas. White lilac has returned and the daisy supply is increasing.

The green goods men are busy. Lots of wild smilax is arriving and its use in the large decorations is universal.

annual meeting at the office of its secretary, W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., the first Monday in December.

The indications are for a spirited contest for the various offices of the New York Florists' Club at its December meeting.

Alfred Wright, a well-known gardener in England, was a visitor at the bowling alleys, November 17, the guest of W. E. Marshall.

The Revere Rubber Co. will have an exhibit in the Fifth Regiment armory in December, and at Baltimore at the meeting of the State Horticultural Society. In February a large display will be made in Chicago in connection with the exhibition of the Hardware Board of Trade and this will remain for the S. A. F. in August.

George B. Dorr, of Bar Harbor, Me., was a visitor last week, the guest of Arthur T. Boddington.

Christmas orders are coming in rapidly from all over the country. The basket men have had a prodigious season. There are many novelties this year. Business seems to be excellent in all the smaller towns and cities.

There seems to be a splendid revival in that part of the trade represented by the various bulb and seed houses and a remarkable cleaning up of stocks of every kind. It is the exception to hear a pessimistic utterance from any of them as to either the present or the future. The outlook is bright, and advance orders for spring planting are away above the average. The catalogue constructors are busy now daily until "the wee sma' hours."

The Brooklyn wholesalers of cut flowers seem hopeful and philosophical. While all have felt the strenuousness of the season to date, there is no menace to them in the outlook. The Brooklyn field is growing rapidly. The wholesale cut flower houses there are Bonnet & Blake, the Greater New York Florists' Association, and W. H. Keubler. Messrs. Stone and Hanig also list themselves as wholesale florists. Harry Crawbuck is the green goods king of the city of churches. Merritt is the supply man and Wiles of the Woods has a great stock of foliage always on hand.

The retail trade in Brooklyn is satisfactory. Weddings, dinners and funerals have been numerous this fall. A splendid Thanksgiving and Christmas business is expected. There has never been an exception to the rule. Philips, Wilson, Zahn and Masur all report a big fall business.

L. C. Bobbink, of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, says shipments of nursery stock are enormous this fall and the use of bay trees and boxwood by the big hotels shows no diminution.

J. Austin Shaw.

Wertheimer Bros. say they never have had so successful a season as the present. They introduced an unusual number of novelties this year and practically all caught on. The sale for holly berry chiffon has been so large they have been compelled to withdraw it from sale.

NEW CASTLE, IND.

Our roses are still holding their own, the South Park Floral Co. having captured two prizes at the Cincinnati show.

Benthey & Co. are putting much vim into the local retail part of their business. Ernest Bender, an expert designer, is looking after this feature of the work.

P. J. Olinger has a splendid crop of carnations this season. Large consignments of them are being daily shipped to his Cincinnati store.

J. P. Braselmann, advertising manager for Heller Bros. Co., has tendered his resignation. He takes charge of a newly created department of the J. Horace McFarland concern, at Harrisburg, Pa.

Peter Weiland is already cutting liberally from his new place, west of the city. His roses, carnations and sweet peas are in good condition and give promise of an excellent winter output. He contemplates opening a store in the near future.

for a proposed city hospital, was adopted by the young ladies of the town last week. Roses, mums and violets were secured at the South park greenhouses and were sold to the people of the city. Dainty flower girls in autos visited the various shops, where many bouquets were disposed of to the workmen. The plan was quite successful, nearly $200 being realized in one day. J. M. L.

E ROSES FOR 1912

having to buy just two or three kinds of roses and are they do have to pay more for them.
ake to the fact that novelties are going to be very much in going into the newer meritorious introductions.
offer than our list for 1912.

DOUBLE WHITE KILLARNEY

(The Budlong Strain) 1912

With its stronger, more vigorous growth, larger and heavier flowers, double the petalage and purer white, is a tremendous improvement over White Killarney, and is sure to be a money-maker not only for winter forcing but for summer growing. We recommend it as being the very best commercial white rose today. As a summer rose, it is such an improvement over Kaiserin that some of the larger growers are going to discard Kaiserin for Double White Killarney.

DOUBLE PINK KILLARNEY

(SCOTT)

A more vigorous grower than Pink Killarney, heavier bud, about double the petalage, a trifle lighter in color, a good all-year-round rose, particularly during the summer.

Grafted, $20.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1,000.
Own root, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1,000.

MELODY, MRS. AARON WARD AND LADY HILLINGDON

Three fine yellows, very different in character, color and form, but all three are splendid roses.

Melody—Own root stock, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1,000.

Mrs. Aaron Ward—Grafted, $20.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1,000. Own root, $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1,000.

Lady Hillingdon—Grafted, $25.00 per 100; $200.00 per 1,000. Own root, $20.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1,000.

DOUBLE WHITE KILLARNEY AND KILLARNEY QUEEN

Grafted, $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1,000; $600.00 per 2,500; $1,100.00 per 5,000.
Own root, $25.00 per 100; $60.00 per 250; $200.00 per 1,000. Deliveries during March.

KILLARNEY QUEEN

(The Budlong Strain) 1912

Is about three shades darker than Pink Killarney, and during dark and cloudy weather the color does not fade, but remains a bright, deep, rich pink. It is of very much more vigorous growth than Killarney, even a stronger grower than Double White Killarney. Flowers are about twice as large as Pink Killarney, about the same petalage and borne on tremendously heavy, long stems, larger and heavier foliage. Many consider this rose in the American Beauty class, its habit, growth and size are so vigorous and far ahead of Pink Killarney.

SUNBURST

ow, a 1912 introduction, of golden golden yellow, extremely brilliant in ed bud of good size, the largest of n long stiff stems. March deliveries.
r 100; $300.00 per 1,000.
er 100; $250.00 per 1,000.

MRS. TAFT

(PRINCE DE BULGARIE OR ANTOINE RIVOIRE)

The new French rose, a beautiful shell pink, splendid foliage and stem. A rose in a class by itself, destined to be one of the best commercial roses.

Grafted, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1,000.
Own root, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1,000.

The Market.

Just at this time the chrysanthemum has the place of honor everywhere flowers are disposed of, but the showing of potted mums is nothing striking, although good. Cut blooms, however, are magnificent. The price remains at reasonable figures, as the stock is all local grown.

The demand seems about the same as last year, as general business conditions are similar. Paper White narcissi are coming in, and both local grown and shipped stock are showing the improvement that would be expected at this season. Taken altogether there is little, either in supply or demand, to excite much comment. This autumn had its quota of good weddings and the usual afternoon functions, while the local funeral demand has been rather quiet, with two or three exceptions.

The azaleas made their long trip in much better shape than last year and the indications are that they will bring better satisfaction in consequence.

Trade conditions incline toward the normal, but this certainly cannot be said of that which has passed for weather in Kansas since the first week of November. About the worst example of its behavior was one day which started in peacefully at 7:00 a. m. with a temperature of 64 degrees (the previous day reached 72 degrees in the shade), slid down to 24 degrees at 11:00 a. m. and fell to 14 degrees at 7:00 p. m., with a 40-mile wind to help it through the thin places in the greenhouse defenses. By 7:00 a. m. the next morning, it had found the 10 degree mark, with the wind still helping. Since that time the weather man has dipped up tempest and sunshine with a happy irregularity that has caused the greenhouse man to oscillate between ventilators and boilers much more than was good for his peace of mind. In spite of the weather peculiarities, however, the various greenhouse establishments show the autumn work well in hand, with prospects excellent for fine Christmas stock, including a good crop of carnations.

Various Notes.

A. Goldenberg was here recently with his smile and order book. He reports nice conditions in the south, and rather favors the opinion that bulb buying is more sensible than last year.

The Bixby Greenhouses have installed a new boiler and changed from hot water to steam heat. They report results highly satisfactory.

Norval Kline, of Hutchinson, Kan., was in the city on business recently.

The Blake Co. is trying out a Honeywell generator on the hot water system, and it promises to be of marked assistance.

Mr. Brackenberry, recently with Kellogg, of Kansas City, Mo., is now in the store of Chas. P. Mueller.

The Culp Co. has installed new oil burners in its greenhouses, barely getting them attached in time for the recent severe cold snap, which put them through a pretty severe test. They demonstrated the fact that their capacity was only limited by what the boiler would stand, and as the oil is cheaper and easier handled than any other fuel that can be secured here, the experiment will be watched with some interest.

Mr. Bidleman is installing burners of a slightly different design, which promise to render efficient service.

Chas. P. Mueller had the decorations for an elaborate church wedding last week.

The Scottish Rite Masons laid covers for over 1000 members at their fall reunion banquet, the decorations being palms and mums by the Culp Co.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

When Richard Vincent, Jr., president-elect of the Society of American Florists, was in Louisville November 15 on his swing around the circle, the Society of Kentucky Florists arranged for the delivery of his stereopticon lecture, "The Bulb Fields of Holland," at the Zion Reformed church, where the public was admitted without charge.

After the lecture the florists gave a supper for their guest, at the Louisville hotel. August R. Baumer, chairman of the committee of arrangements, acted as toastmaster and many felicitations were exchanged.

BROCKTON, MASS.

There are now four flower stores on the main street here. In addition to W. W. Hathaway, who is near the Times office, there are Reed, Jahn and Andrews. The latter is located near the corner of Crescent street. All seem to be doing well.

W. W. Hathaway has had good fall business. He carries a fine line of pot plants, also flowers of every kind. His carnations from Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, and mums from Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, are noteworthy. Rose Lady Hillingdon proves a good seller.

DISEASED LETTUCE.

In one of our greenhouses we have a bed of lettuce which seems to be diseased. On many of the plants the bottom leaves look as if they were frozen, and die off. Is there anything I can do to prevent this? We use both cow and horse manure. Please let us know what to do. J. G.

I think your lettuce has the disease that is troublesome to many lettuce growers; that is, the fungous disease which spreads over the ground and rots the stalk just above the ground. I would suggest that you ventilate freely and do not wet the leaves of the lettuce when watering. Just water between the plants and not too frequently; do not water until necessary and then only where they need it. In parts of the bed where the plants are dying out, pull them up and dust some air-slaked lime over the soil. Keep the ventilators open a little every day and as long as possible. H. G.

MUSHROOMS IN OLD TUNNEL.

I shall be grateful to you if you will give me a little information. I am thinking of attempting to grow mushrooms in an old tunnel, but do not know what ventilation is needed. I would use the tunnel for a distance of 100 to 500 feet. Is a little water in the tunnel any drawback? Is manure mixed with sawdust or wood-shavings suitable to use for this crop? A. E.

Manure mixed with sawdust or shavings would not be good for mushrooms, and water in the part of the tunnel you propose to use would be undesirable. You would also need ventilation, as the mushrooms require fresh air. Considering everything, I would hesitate to advise you to try mushrooms in the tunnel, unless you have had some previous experience with them. I do not think, from your letter, that you have a desirable place, although you might make the needed changes. Why not try the experiment on a small scale first and visit someone who is growing mushrooms in your vicinity? H. G.

ASHTABULA, O.

Damage to over $300 was done to the greenhouses of Gallup Bros., on Woodman avenue, as a result of the heavy fall of snow and the severe cold snap which Ashtabula suffered last week. Fifteen tons of snow accumulated on the roofs of the houses and the wind was strong, so that the glass covering half a house caved in. The snow was cleared out as soon as assistance arrived and a heavy canvas stretched over the smashed roofing. In this way the remainder of the crop was saved. A hurried order was sent to Conneaut for material to rebuild the house. The houses are owned by Charles H. and Edward P. Gallup, lettuce growers. While the damage done was costly enough, they are congratulating themselves that more lettuce was not destroyed. It was probably the timely action of spreading the canvas that saved the crop.

Every greenhouse in Ashtabula suffered from the effects of the snow. Griswold's and Rogers' plants at the west end were scenes of some destruction, although there was no extensive damage done at either place. Lettuce growers say that the snow fell in such a quantity and did not melt for so long that the pressure on the glass was extremely heavy. The accident at the Gallup houses was the first one of the kind ever to happen in Ashtabula, which is considered quite remarkable considering the amount of glass which the city supports. The loss is felt more keenly just now on account of the scarcity and high price of lettuce.

WAKEFIELD, KAN.

After rather a discouraging season, with an extremely hot, dry summer and a period of rather dull business in the early fall, there is now a great improvement in trade. The change from mild to cold weather was accompanied in this vicinity by one of the worst blizzards ever seen here so early in November. The mercury dropped to 3 degrees above zero, and the Manhattan Agricultural College reports a loss of $300 in plants. There was no snow. Mums are plentiful. Carnations are on the short side, but give promise of a good crop for the holidays.

Mrs. Carrie Collins, of Manhattan, has entered the florists' trade. She has built a greenhouse and will grow carnations and bedding plants for the local market.

E. F. Walter & Son, of Junction City, have installed an oil burner in one of their hot water boilers and are experimenting with oil as fuel. So far, they say, the results are satisfactory. They report that trade in cut flowers shows a good increase. P. R. W.

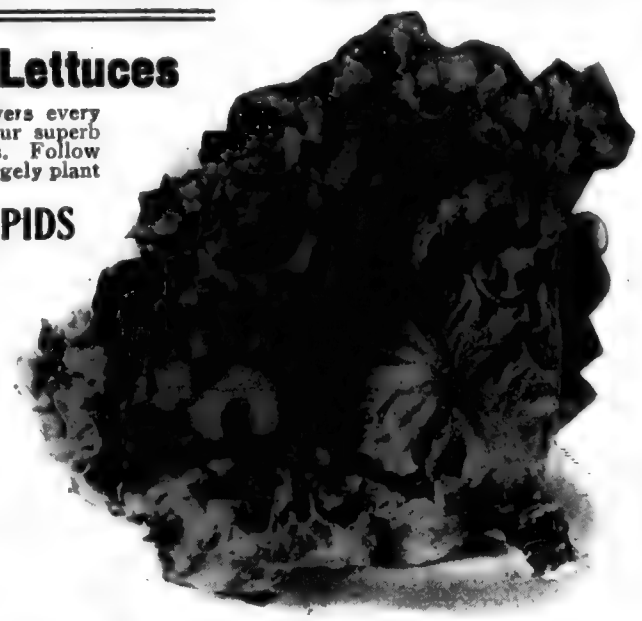
Livingston's Forcing Lettuces are giving better satisfaction to more growers every year. The uniform product raised from our superb strains is sure of a ready market at top prices. Follow the example of the most successful, who largely plant "true blue" seeds.

Superior Strain GRAND RAPIDS



is selected with special care for greenhouse growers. Sure cropper of heavy plants. Handsomely curled, crisp and tender. Sells on sight. Oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 40c; lb., $1.60, postpaid.

LIVINGSTON'S BON TON

is finest for local markets. Prominent white midribs make it very brittle. Some growers say it is earlier than Grand Rapids. Oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.85, postpaid.

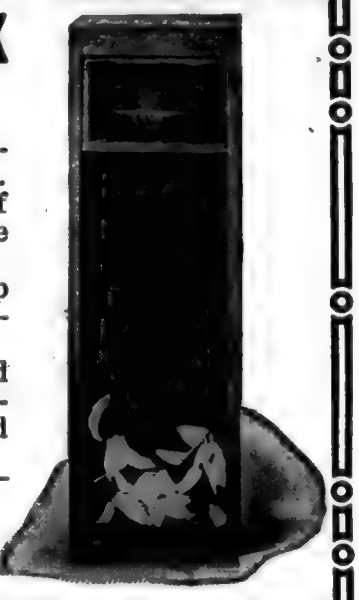
Patent Applied For

SEFTON'S POTTED LIVE PLANT BOX

(MADE OF CORRUGATED FIBRE BOARD)
FROST PROOF



Designed to carry a live plant in absolute safety regardless of the position box is placed in or how roughly handled.

Whether right side up or up side down, the weight of the pot and earth rests on the inner construction of the box and cannot in any way injure the plant.

Used for express shipments and city deliveries. Ship Winter or Summer in safety. A new field open to florists—develop a mail order business.

These boxes are made in any size to fit different sized pots as well as different lengths of plants. When requesting prices, furnish us with outside dimensions of pot and length of plant above pot.

THE S. S. Amerika, from Hamburg, which arrived at New York November 12, brought the following consignments of valley pips: Maltus & Ware, 190 cases; Hagemann, W., & Co., 255 cases; to order, 106 cases.

THE Robinson Seed Co., of Waterloo, Neb., will install a new electric plant, of twenty-five kilowatts power, to be used partly for operating machinery and partly for lighting. The plant will occupy a new cement block building, near the engine house.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co. recently concluded an essay-writing contest, having offered $1,000 split up into fifty-five prizes for the best letters on "Why Burpee's is the largest mail order seed firm in the world." There were several thousand answers, the jury of award being composed of the editors of three farm papers.

NOVEMBER 11, at Rocky Ford, Colo., there was another severe snow storm and the temperature dropped to 16 degrees below zero. Most of the crops have been harvested, but there are a few still in the pits, which were covered and protected. Fear is expressed that the severe cold may affect the germination of some of the cucumber crops in that vicinity, also in the vicinity of Ordway, and that it will also affect the germinating qualities of the late crops of water melon in Kansas and Oklahoma and the crops of pumpkin and squash in Nebraska that had not been seeded prior to the cold weather and which may make considera-

THE Hall Seed Co., of Louisville, Ky., has been incorporated, with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are E. C. Foltz, W. P. Hall and W. P. Bunton.

WALDO ROHNERT, Gilroy, Cal., will have 1,800 acres under seed crops for 1912. His representative, Fred H. Hunter, is in the east on a contracting trip.

CANNERS are making a great to do about the scarcity of peas for seed. In pushing up their prices for the 1912 pack they emphasize the increased cost of seed and the impossibility of procuring all that they would like to have.

WHAT are the prices of seeds, anyway? On many items the sellers will not let go of more than a limited quantity at prices accepted from regular customers, nor in many cases do they care to sell to transient trade at the long prices one hears quoted as the current values.

THE Bain-McLees Seed Co., Little Rock, Ark., has been organized to engage in the wholesale and retail seed business. R. M. Bain, Jr., has long been the manager of the Modern Gin and Compress Co., and David McLees has for a long time been with the Charles Leifer Seed Co. The new company has not yet secured a building.

ment Station, Columbia, Mo., and Purdue University, La Fayette, Ind., are in operation. These laboratories are established and maintained for the purpose of furnishing information as to the quality of agricultural seeds.

Samples may be submitted to the Seed Laboratory, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to the nearest branch laboratory, where they will be identified, examined or tested, according to the request accompanying them.

1. Identification of seeds of weeds and crop plants.
2. Examination for the presence of adulterants or dodder.

All samples sent for these purposes will be examined at once and a report sent by mail (or by telegraph at the expense of the receiver).

3. Test for mechanical purity.

This involves the determination of the percentage by weight of—

a. Pure seed (the kind being examined).
b. Foreign seed (all seeds not of the kind being examined).
c. Sticks, stones, dirt and chaff, and the identification of the weed seeds present.

These tests require considerable time and can be made only by experts. The facilities of the seed laboratory will permit not more than five (5) such tests to be made for any one firm or

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs,	335 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs,	200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs,	100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants	2.50 each individual in any one calendar month. These tests will be made and reports sent as promptly as possible and in the order in which the samples are received.

4. Test for germination.

This test is made to determine the percentage of seed which will germinate under favorable conditions. The seed of cereals, clovers and many vegetables can be easily tested without the use of special apparatus. Some seeds, however, including a number of the grasses, are more difficult to test, requiring exact conditions of temperature and moisture.

Samples will be tested for germination in the order in which they are received, and not more than ten (10) tests for germination will be made for any one firm or individual in any one calendar month.

E. Brown, Botanist in Charge.

Always mention the Florists' Review when writing advertisers.

Years ago, when our derby hats were lined like a baby's coffin and as heavy as lead, many men were as bald as an ostrich egg. People attributed it to brains and called it venerable. Fact is that too much hat caused the baldness, and lack of brains caused too much hat. In those days they reasoned wrong and permitted the style of hats to create a hothouse for dandruff germs; and today the average barber wants to dose his customers with a mixture of cheap whiskey and hair oil, as a sure cure for dandruff, to guard against the bald head. When you have trouble, get at the bottom of it—that's where to begin the fight. In lily bulbs, much of the trouble can be avoided by making a good beginning—getting a solid foundation to start on—and that's Horseshoe Brand Bulbs. You can shop around all you want—the privilege is all yours; but when you have run the gauntlet you will find that it pays best to buy Horseshoe Brand Bulbs. They may cost a trifle more to begin with, but they cost less before you are through. Wait for The Horseshoe Brand Man, or write us direct.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston June 1912.

THE sudden death of Wm. H. Moon, Morrisville, Pa., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THIS week's obituary column contains a report of the death of John Siebenthaler, the well known nurseryman of Dayton, O.

THE White Elm Nursery, Oconomowoc, Wis., has the contract to plant 300 large American elms on Garden terrace, a new addition to Milwaukee.

THE dwelling on the grounds of the Humboldt Nursery Co., Humboldt, Ia., was burned November 15. Loss, $2,500; insurance, $1,000. The nursery is the property of M. E. Standra.

FRED D. CLAVEY, of the Ravinia Nursery, which formerly comprised 107 acres at Deerfield, Ill., has purchased an additional tract of eighty acres near that town. The price is said to be $12,000.

WINTER weather has interrupted nursery operations at many important centers. In general it has been a good season, but there yet remains much stock to get out should weather conditions permit.

THE Frisco railroad and the Missouri State Experiment Station are coöperating in running a horticultural demonstration train. There is a large attendance of fruit growers at every town in the Ozarks.

WHEN the railroads put into effect their new uniform classification, nursery stock will have to be described in bills of lading either as dormant or not dormant, the former of course taking the lower rate.

THE FREEZE AT ALTON.

Harry M. Burton, of the firm of Burton & Son, Alton, Ill., says that the early freeze-up is quite serious to the nurseries in taking care of their fall stock, which is being sold just now for planting. November 10 is the standard time for fall planting of trees in this section and the nursery was just getting out its first orders when the sudden drop in the mercury came. The Burton firm has many orders which, on account of the condition of the weather, it is impossible to fill. The nurserymen are hoping for more favorable weather to return again before the winter starts in to stay.

"You Have the FINEST CANNAS IN THE WORLD—I Congratulate You"

—commented the late Mr. Geo. H. Brown, Landscape Gardener, of U. S. Public Buildings and Grounds, Washington, D. C., on a recent visit here. These prices are for dormant roots, sound and in good condition. Order 250 or more of a kind at 50c per 100 less than prices here noted. 10% discount for November. We make this offer chiefly because we are short of room to store our crop. For May 1st we offer potted plants at $2.50 per 100 more than prices named for dormant roots.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held November 17, President Brunger in the chair, with a good attendance. Two honorary members were elected and two applications for membership received. The competition in roses for the prize offered by John Brunger was keen and a number of fine vases were shown. The prize was awarded to John Elliot, with a vase of My Maryland. A cultural certificate was awarded to Edward Trethewey for a vase of Wells' Late Pink chrysanthemum. Messrs. Scott, Brewer and Jamieson acted as judges. J. W. Smith was accorded a rising vote of thanks for the capable manner in which he had performed his duties as manager of the fall show. Next meeting will be carnation night.

ROCHESTER CLUB DOINGS.

At the meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association, November 13, Charles C. Zoller, who is said to have first brought to this country from France the autochrome plate now widely used in color photography, gave an interesting lecture during which he exhibited more than a hundred views of flowers and trees, most of which were taken in or about Rochester.

By the Lumiere process of color photography, by which the pictures were made, the most delicate colors of nature are reproduced and preserved with astonishing fidelity. Photographs taken in the parks, the greenhouses and private conservatories of Rochester were shown by Mr. Zoller, one of the most difficult subjects being the orchids at the Kimball conservatory and the rainbow at Niagara Falls, which was the successful result of fifteen attempts to photograph it.

There were photographs of a number of the most beautiful residences in East avenue as they appear in summer, surrounded by flowers and trees. The Willow Pond, Corbett's Glen and several views taken at last year's flower show were among the most interesting. Another unique photograph was that of the Bausch automobile that won the prize in the industrial parade in 1909. The car was photographed as it appeared in the parade, decorated with flowers the colors of which were accurately reproduced.

To make the meetings of the association more profitable, it is planned to have at each monthly meeting a paper on some topic of interest to florists. Arnold George is chairman of the entertainment committee and he has arranged the season's program as follows: December, "The Chrysanthemum," C. B. Ogsten; January, "Perennials," J. M. Keller; February, "Annuals," George Arnold; March, "Roses," Laurence Cotter, of Jamestown; April, "Pruning," John Dunbar. A display of flowers will also be held at each meeting.

PACIFIC COAST.

Sherwood, Ore.—A. I. Anderson, formerly a landscape gardener at Portland, has started a rose nursery here.

Portland, Ore.—George G. Willius has perfected a soil conveyor, for use in greenhouses, and is about to apply for a patent.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We are within a week or two of Thanksgiving and everything is assuming rather a holiday appearance. California red berries have made their appearance and help to brighten things somewhat. Yellow mums are the most popular flowers now, and never before have they been so good or so cheap at this season. The weather has been perfect for their development and, although the prices at which they have been sold are not as high as we could wish, still the growers have done well with them. White mums are rather scarce and good stock brings a fair price, a little better than last year. Inside carnations and roses have made no change either in quality or price since last week, and until we get something different from this beautiful, balmy weather we need look for no particular change for the better. Poinsettias are coming up from the south in large quantities and, although the public has not become used to them yet, they make a beautiful showing and remind one that the holidays are near at hand.

Various Notes.

Eugene Horn, well known to the gardening fraternity of Portland, Ore., is in town, with the intention of permanently locating here.

John Young, formerly proprietor of the Dwight-Way Nursery, of Berkeley, Cal., and more recently a resident of northern California, is in town again.

Charles Bagnall is with the Epstein Floral Co., on Geary street.

J. R. Lewis is no longer with the Thorsted Floral Co., at their greenhouses at Fruitvale, Cal.

The California Evergreen Co. has moved its store from Twelfth street to San Pablo and Fifteenth streets, Oakland. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions show a slight improvement over the last report, yet there is a laxity compared with former years. The proximity of Thanksgiving day increases the inquiry for yellow mums, as well as the usual football games of the week ends. Mums are showing more quality and quantity as the season advances Roses and carnations are equal to the demand. Local violets and valley are unusually scarce. California violets are poor. Cattleyas are plentiful in the extreme, with a small demand.

There is a scarcity of potted blooming plants. Cyclamens and mums are the only available stock. Out at the greenhouses everything is taking on a Christmas hue. Poinsettias and Lorraines are in fine shape. Stock seems to be plentiful and everyone is looking forward to a good business.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The quantity of stock on hand is large and good sales are unable to entirely clean up the market. All flowers of real quality sell. It is the poorer grades generally that accumulate. The out-of-town demand is good.

The chrysanthemums are better in quality than at any time this season. The largest are bringing fair prices, while the culls sell below normal. Enguehard, Bonnaffon, Chadwick and Bird are the most popular varieties.

The carnations, too, are the best they have been this season. The color is good and the stems are longer, while the supply is on the increase. It might also be added that the prices on the best of this line are moving upward to where they should be. With roses the same is true for last week as was true for every week for some time. Pink roses clean up quickly and more might possibly be used, while the whites are sometimes not entirely cleaned out at the end of the day's business. Other lines, including longiflorums, callas, valley, double and single violets, pansies and stevia, are all more or less important factors. New bronze galax has been added to the green goods line.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell's new bronze galax came in last week, just as he was selling his last cases of the old crop.

J. M. McCullough's Sons Co. has been receiving excellent callas for the time of the year, from Geo. Corbett, the College Hill grower.

L. H. Kyrk was the first to get in stevia. He is enjoying a good run on his pansies.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange reports an excellent demand for longiflorums. C. H. H.

The Market.

Business for the last two weeks has kept the boys fairly busy, but I think I am safe in saying that it is not up to last year. Mums, of course, hold full sway and are bringing about the same prices as in former years. The weather has stood by the florists the last two weeks, being cloudy and cold and thereby extending the mum period somewhat and relieving the glut which we no doubt would have had in the event of seasonable weather. However, the weather is hard on the coal pile and November is breaking a record here for its clouds and cold, the temperature falling to 10 degrees above zero several mornings.

HOLLYHOCKS FOR THE WEST

Now ready. Splendid field-grown plants from the famous Chater's strain of double Hollyhocks, in separate colors, as follows: White, canary yellow, apple blossom, peach blossom, scarlet, rose, deep red and brown-black. These are from seeds sown early in the spring and given space in the open. They are simply perfect, strong plants, which will flower heavily next year, yet I can send fine sizes for mailing if desired. I will deliver to customer by express at $5.00 per 100, assorted or choice. Sample plants on application. Other hardy plants.

Carnations are improving right along and will soon be at their best. Roses show the effect of the continued cloudy weather, although some fine ones are being shown. Violets are good, but there are not enough as yet to meet the demand. Paper Whites and callas have also put in an appearance, as have a few sweet peas. Stevia will arrive next week, so there is quite a variety to choose from.

All in all, things are looking a little brighter than they did a few weeks ago.

That "No flowers, please" notice at the announcement of deaths is getting too "all-fired" frequent. One florist had over $30 worth of work countermanded a few days ago, to say nothing about the rest of the boys. It seems to be becoming a habit.

Tri-City Club Meeting.

The November meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held Thursday evening, November 16, at the home of Superintendent C. O. E. Boehm, Davenport, and was largely attended, all but two of the members being present. The boys went out to the park in the afternoon so as to be able to better judge the different chrysanthemums on exhibition, and a finer sight never met their eyes. Thousands of flowers of all sizes and colors filled the large conservatories, some ninety different varieties being grown here. Mr. Boehm keeps the varieties as up-to-date as possible and this is where the boys get an idea as to the merits of the newer varieties. The best thing the writer can say about the show at the park is that it is up to the high standard that has been set ever since Superintendent Boehm took charge.

"Carnations, Indoor Culture and Hybridizing" was the evening's topic and A. Anderson, of Moline, who has been decidedly successful along this line, gave as interesting and instructive a talk on the hybridizing of carnations as had ever been heard by any of the members present. It was, no doubt, the best lecture ever given by any member of the Tri-City Florists' Club and a vote of thanks was given Mr. Anderson for his valuable paper. Mr. Zimmerman, of the Rock Island parks, was admitted to membership. He is a bachelor, so this brings the Florists' Bachelors' Club up to six.

Ewoldt Bros. exhibited some choice Shasta carnations, and Mr. Anderson showed some of his choicest seedlings, among them a red that is without doubt the finest carnation ever seen in this part of the country. Mr. Anderson says he will take $40,000 for it.

After the meeting the club adjourned to the dining room, where a fine, large, hot supper was waiting for the boys, —and say, talk about your feeds!— well, the way the boys handled their knives and forks would make one think they hadn't had anything to eat for a month, and I know won't want anything for the next three days. If the boys were to be the judges of good cooking, and we know they are good judges, Mrs. Boehm would be wearing a gold medal the size of a dish pan.

After the boys were able to get up and move away from the table, a social hour was spent in telling ghost stories, and Uncle John, who had been the sexton of a cemetery in his early days, told the banner ones. Half afraid to go home, the club adjourned after one of the most pleasant meetings ever held.

The next meeting will be at the home of John Staack, of Moline, Ill., Thursday, December 14. T. E.

Lockport, N. Y.—The veteran, Thos. Mansfield, is recovering from what threatened to be pneumonia. His son Will has charge of the business and is producing some first-class stock.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

THE NEW YELLOW FORCING ROSE SUNBURST

This magnificent, giant yellow rose has been tested for three years in our benches; it stands head and shoulders above all other sorts of its color and will rank with American Beauty and the Killarneys in value and grandeur—because

It has a long, pointed bud, which can be cut tight for market. It is pre-eminently a long-stemmed rose. The stem is always stiff. It is free in bottom breaks. Is extraordinarily vigorous and healthy. Belongs in the class of Big Roses. Its keeping qualities rank with the best. Buds shipped from Richmond last December opened up perfectly in both Philadelphia and New York, where it scored 90 before the Florists' Club.

The color is orange-copper or golden orange and golden yellow, all intense shades, extremely brilliant in effect.

Come and see it growing; we have 8,000 of it benched.

Does splendidly out of doors; will rank high as a bedder. At the Chicago show, 1910, it was awarded the silver cup for the best new rose never before exhibited, and the judges unanimously gave it honorable mention additional. Has created a sensation wherever shown.

Raised by M. Pernet-Ducher, from whom we bought the American rights.

We have divided our stock with Mr. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., to give eastern growers a chance to see it growing. Will be distributed March 1 in America by C. H. Totty and The E. G. Hill Co. Mr. Pernet will distribute same date in Europe.

The American price is $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000 (own roots); $5.00 per 100 additional for grafts

The Market.

Last week's trade was all that could be desired. Chrysanthemums are abundant everywhere, but there is a ready sale and good prices are paid for good stock. White and yellow are the favorites among the colors; clear pink is in demand, but bronze and red are not much wanted. The blooms throughout are of good substance this year.

Roses were heavily in crop during October, but at present are accumulating energy for Christmas. Carnations remain short-stemmed and it seems to be difficult to bring them to standard conditions. However, the plants are full of buds and plenty of healthy foliage, promising well for the holidays. A few sweet peas are to be had and find a ready sale. A larger number of growers are producing peas in quantities this season and from the present outlook there will be a bumper crop of flowers.

Various Notes.

The ladies' bowling team was entertained in Washington, Thursday, November 16, by Mrs. George H. Cooke. Among those present were Mrs. James Boone, Mrs. F. C. Bauer, Mrs. J. J. Perry, Mrs. L. H. Klein, Mrs. H. J. Quick, of Baltimore, and Mrs. George Cooke, Mrs. Schaffer, Mrs. Simmons, and Mrs. Mayberry, of Washington.

The Market.

Trade has been about all we could ask for the last two weeks. There has been a great deal of funeral work that has used up lots of stock, and two new opera houses opened up and called for a quantity of fancy stock.

Mums have been in full blast for the last two weeks and a great quantity has been moved. There are quite a few of the later varieties coming in and we can almost see the finish on them, as the next ten days will see the most of them cut. Carnations are coming fine, but the quantity has not increased much. Maybe this is a good thing, as they have been cleaned up at all times.

Roses are fine and about enough to go the rounds, and violets are in fair demand, but the supply is limited. Sweet peas are coming in and are finding ready sale.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business generally is considered off, but a majority of the florists report fair trade, mainly because of the number of coming-out functions and fall weddings. Providence has for several years been growing in the importance of its florists' business at this period, when the chrysanthemum is queen. But the lovers of this flower have not yet come to the realization that to get a big flower one must expect to pay a big price—$4 a dozen retail is the limit, with few purchasers at that price; $2 a dozen is about the extent of the popular pocketbook. Carnations and roses are plentiful and move regularly, but meet no great demand.

Various Notes.

Mr. Geller, of the Geller Florists' Supply Co., New York, was a visitor here last week.

Thomas Kennedy, for many years manager of the Buxton Greenhouses, at Bridgeton, Burrillville, has opened a flower store in the Ward building, Main street, Pascoag.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., has been on a visit to New York for several days.

Miss Ella Maillous has opened a flower store at 99 Main street, Woonsocket.

Louis Reuter, of Westerly, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Robert Frame has commenced the erection of a small greenhouse at 180 Gibbs street, Newport, to cost $450.

William Doel, of the Pascoag Greenhouses, Broad street, Pascoag, reports a good business this fall.

Edward F. Healy has filed a suit in the Superior Court against George Johnson to recover damages under an alleged breach of contract. Mr. Healy claims that he was employed as manager of the forestry department January 1, 1911, for George Johnson & Son, at a salary of $20 per week and ten per cent of the net profits received from forestry work. The term covered by the agreement was two years. The defendant later refused to retain the plaintiff, he says, in his employ. Damages are laid at $2,500. W. H. M.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Conditions in this market last week were only fair and business as yet is not what it ought to be. The recent cold weather had a tendency to shorten up stock, and Beauties are showing the effects of the cloudy days. Carnations are not more than enough to go around, and some few sweet peas are to be seen, but not enough to speak of. Mums are in full blast now and are moving well, particularly the medium sizes. There is some little call for violets this week, but orchids are a little short.

Various Notes.

Among the Indianapolis florists attending the Cincinnati show were Albert Pittet, Otto Laurence, Fred Hukreide, Oliver Steinkamp, Albert Marshall, C. R. Green, George Wiegand, Homer Wiegand, John Hartje, Irwin Bertermann, John Bertermann, Clarence Thomas, Henry Rieman, Ernst Rieman and Adolph Baur.

Among the Indianapolis exhibitors at the Cincinnati show was Henry Rieman, who won the silver cup for seedling chrysanthemums with White Ball. Baur & Steinkamp received a certificate on their new red seedling carnation, St. Nicholas, and Hartje & Elder exhibited a number of their seedling pompons.

A. C. Kohlbrand, with E. C. Amling, of Chicago, dropped off in this city while en route home from the Cincinnati show.

The Smith & Young Co. has opened its wholesale store at 134 North Alabama street. Herman Junge, who is in charge, has been on the sick list.

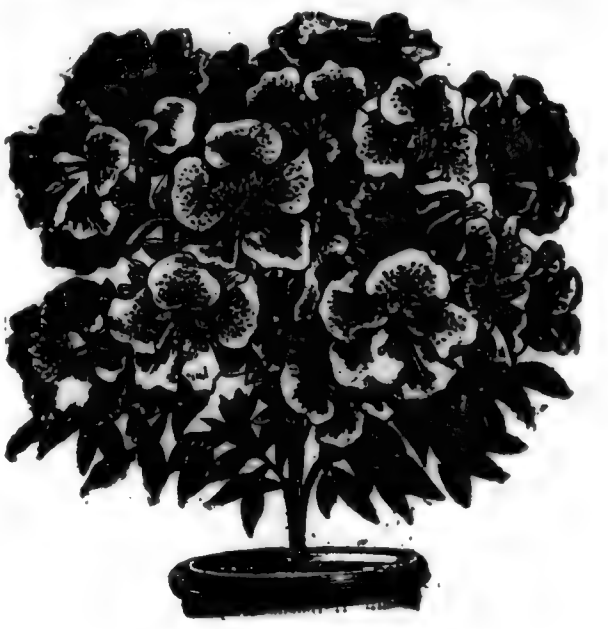
PREPARE FOR THE HOLIDAYS!



SEVENTY-FIVE CASES of Holiday Azaleas for Christmas, Kentia Palms, Latania Borbonica, etc., and to make the importation complete—a whole consignment of our so well-known specialty, the Araucaria Robusta Compacta, Excelsa Glauca and Excelsa, just arrived per S.S. Menominee October 23, from Belgium. These, together with the already immense stock of Holiday Plants, will place the so well-known firm of Godfrey Aschmann in first rank in importing, growing and shipping of Holiday Plants.

CHEAP

GOOD

RELIABLE

Therefore, don't be deceived—be on the lookout! Buy only from the man who is well known to be in a position to give you GOOD BARGAINS AND GOOD STOCK.

ARAUCARIA EXCELSA

With Xmas approaching there is always a big demand for Araucaria Excelsa. What looks nicer at Xmas time than an Araucaria properly dressed up with a nice pink, red or lavender ribbon, tied around the plant about half way up? It is a good keeper and keeps its beautiful evergreen foliage (tiers) green and perfect for years; when all other plants are withered, the Araucaria is in full glory, admired by all in the family. We are well prepared for the Araucaria orders and are the leaders, as we have always been for the last 25 years. 6000 can be seen in our greenhouses all sizes and prices. 5¼ to 5½-in., 3-year-old, 12, 15 to 20-in. high, 3 to 4 tiers only 35c, 40c and 50c; 6-in., 4-year-old, 20, 22, 25 to 30-in. and over in height, 4 5 and 6 tiers, 60c, 75c $1.00 to $1.25; specimen plants, 7-in., 30, 35 to 40-in. high, 5 to 6-year-old, 6, 7 to 8 tiers, green from bottom up, at a bargain price seldom offered; just look, only $1.50 to $2.00. Worth double. Will you let such a bargain pass unnoticed?

AZALEAS

We have 1000 ready, forced by ourselves into bloom for Xmas. Vervaeneana, Simon Mardner, Mme. Petrick and Deutsche Perle. If you want any in bloom for Xmas, please order them in time.

What F. J. Michell, of the well-known Seed House, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, said:

"Have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me—I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Azaleas, Ferns and other plants of all sizes and prices than are at Mr. Aschmann's."

Leader in Azalea Indica, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, Palms, Etc.—Lead you into wealth.

CAN HANDLE LARGEST ORDER ON SHORT NOTICE

Now is the time to force Azalea Indica for Christmas. Deutsche Perle, full of buds, at 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Simon Mardner, early, deep, double pink variety, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Vervaeneana, large, double variegated, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Mme. Petrick, pink, double flowers, full of buds and never fails to bloom, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

Easter Varieties. Mme. Van der Cruyssen, pink (very scarce this fall in Belgium), 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Niobe, double white. We have a large stock of this, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Helene Theleman, light pink, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. President Oswald de Kerchove, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. Schryveriana and Empress of India, large, double variegated, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Professeur Wolters, 50c, 60c, 70c, $1.00 to $1.50. Simon Mardner, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. Vervaeneana and Apollo, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00; dozen or 100 at same prices. Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana, Deutsche Perle, smaller size, 40c, 50c up to $2.00. Also a few more of the best varieties.

Just Arrived with the azaleas a fine consignment of Latania Borbonica, in first-class condition. Perfect foliage, 8 good leaves—height given in consular invoice, 35 to 40 inches, fit for 7 and 8-in. pots, $1.50 to $2.00. Combination Latania Borbonica (3 plants), 6-in. pots, 25 to 30 in. high, forming a bush of about 14 leaves, which give them an attractive appearance, $1.00 to $1.25.

We have the stock—the best obtainable in Belgium—of Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca; short, bushy jewels—none better in the world. 6-in. pots, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 4-in., 25c.

Kentia Belmoreana, which came on the same steamer as azaleas, are potted off combination plants (made up with 3 plants), 22 to 25 inches high, having 12, 13 to 15 leaves to a pot (in 6-in. pots), 50c, 60c, 75c to $1.00, according to height; still larger sizes, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50; single plants, 5 leaves, 22 to 25 in. high, stocky 5¼ to 5½-in. pots, only 50c, worth 75c.

Sago Palms, ready now, 6, 7 to 8-in. pots, 9 to 13 leaves, 12c per leaf.

Asparagus Plumosus, 2½-in., 3c; 3-in., 5c; 4-in., 10c and 15c.

Leader in Ferns—Scottii, Scholzeli, Whitmani and Boston. 6 houses stocked with them; 10,000 in all sizes and varieties now ready, never before better than this year; 5, 5½ in., 25c, 35c; 6 and 7-in., as big as a bushel basket, only 50c, 75c to $1.00. Scottii, Whitmani, Scholzeli, 4 in., 15c to 20c; fine to grow on. Giatrasii, 4-in., 20c; 5-in., 25c and 30c. Our ferns are all pot grown—not lifted from benches.

Ferns. Cordata Compacta, 4-in., 15c to 20c.

Ferns for dishes, big assortment, 2½-in. pots, $4.00 per 100; 3-in., $5.00 per 100.

Asparagus Sprengeri, large, 4-in. pots, 15c; medium, 4-in., 10c; 2½-in., $3.00 per 100.

Hydrangea Otaksa, pot-grown, 6-in., 25c, 35c to 40c; 7-in., 50c. Only pot-grown, will force successfully for Easter.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This is another of our specialties. We have a secret in growing them to perfection, only known to us, giving them a rich, deep color; stand shipping well, traveling 2,000 to 3,000 miles without the least bit of injury if properly handled. We have a big house full in No. 1 condition, 6 to 7-in. sizes, in bud and partly in bloom, ready for immediate sale or for the holidays. Everybody knows that last Christmas we had the best Begonia Gloire de Lorraine in the market. They were crackerjacks, indeed! We have the deep pink and the light pink (Lonsdale) varieties, 6-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00; 3-in., 12c to 15c. If you have room order now, because they are always scarce at Xmas.

Begonia Erfordii, newest improved strain. This variety is always in bloom during the whole winter, Xmas and Easter, 4-in. pots, in bud or bloom, 20c; 5¼-in., 25c to 30c.

Begonia Glory of Cincinnati, 5½ to 6 and 7-in. pots, 40c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 to $1.50.

Solanum or Jerusalem Cherries, our well-known prize strain, the multiflorum, 6-in., 25c, 35c, 40c to 50c. Never were so fine as this year, just right for Xmas; big plants, full of ripe red berries and with green berries ripening on.

Cineraria Hybrida, Aschmann's well-known strain, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100; 3-in., $5.00.

Primula Obconica, 5½-in., in bloom, 25c.

Primula Chinensis, John Rupp's best strain, 4-in., 10c; 5-in., 20c.

Shasta Daisies, pure white, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100; seedlings, $1.00 100.

PANSIES.

HOME OF PANSIES.

Our growing crops of pansies for seed were greatly admired by all florists who saw them this last summer. All said they were grand—some said they were the best they had ever seen. We reserved over 50,000 of our best for seed growing and they certainly were a pretty sight. We are improving on them annually, and have a fine lot of red, red shades and other crosses of our own origin and nearly all colors and shades found in pansies. We started a few for a test very early and they have surprised us as to coloring and size of flowers; showing improvement over parent stock. You cannot go wrong if you place your order with us. If, upon blooming, you are not perfectly satisfied I will return every cent you paid for them. I made this same offer last year and had not a kick and I am better prepared to make it now than I was then. Our plants are in excellent shape owing to the good growing weather this fall; they are twice as heavy as last year and too large to go by mail. Our packing is right, we land them safe in Louisiana, Florida, California and other distant points. Have a large stock, all strong, sturdy, field-grown. Am receiving numerous testimonials and now have a large list of annual customers. Our collection contains no black, unless so ordered. We have a good stock of black which we keep separate. We can also supply, separate, Masterpiece, Giant Mme. Perret and Giant Prize Trimardeau; also blood red and Golden Queen, separate. All at the same price, $2.50 1000; 5000, $10.00. Liberal count.
E. Rawlings, Wholesale Grower, OLEAN, N. Y.

50,000 pansy plants, Vaughan's International, cold frame grown, every one a perfect plant ready to transplant, 50c per 100; $3.00 per 1000. Ready now.
W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co., Princeton, Ill.

PANSIES—Continued.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. It contains over 75 varieties, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion. I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years. Special attention given to long distance orders and delivery in good condition guaranteed to any part of the U. S. Lightly packed and billed through at lawest rates. Samples of what others say—"Pansy plants arrived in best possible condition and as to quality, were strong, sturdy, well rooted. I have bought from you for the last 4 years and have never seen such a variety of colors. I used to buy the very best seeds and plants possible but I have never been able to procure anything to equal yours." C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo. "Your pansies were fine and were enjoyed by thousands of people from every state in the Union." J. C. Evans, Supt., Stratton Park, Colorado Springs, Colo. If you want more proof see testimonials in my previous advs. in Review. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed, sown thinly broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong with extra good roots. All varieties, mixed, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash.

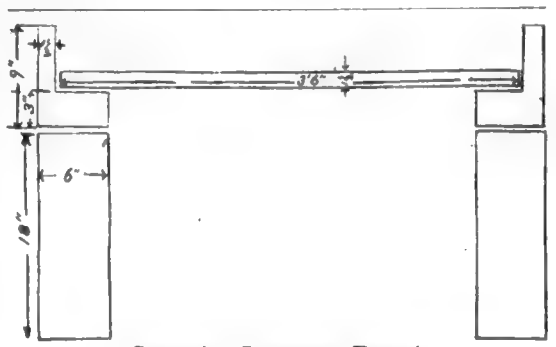
Rome, N. Y.—E. J. Byam has retaken his plant recently occupied by Kipp & Edwards. Jos. Watkins has been engaged as grower. The Humphrey Floral Co. is in charge of the Misses Humphrey, who report excellent business.

Geneva, N. Y.—Smith & Gannett expect to go into the growing of carnations more heavily next season, the soil being well suited to their culture. F. J. Welsh reports a busy season with funeral work. He grows bedding stock in quantity.



Auburn, N. Y.—Alfred Patrick & Sons are extending their nursery branch, being of the opinion there is more money in this direction than in adding to glass just now. J. Hicks & Son have had excellent results from the new rose house and find sale for all they can grow. Dobbs & Son have a modern plant, which they find is all they can profitably handle.

SNOW'S CONCRETE BENCH.

The florist who makes his own concrete benches, or is planning to do so, is naturally interested in the experiments of other florists in the same line of work, especially if these other florists not only built the benches, but began the undertaking by designing and constructing the molds or forms. Even if one person does not adopt another person's device in its entirety, he can generally obtain some helpful suggestion, at least, from the other person's method of procedure.

Among the florists who have done the job of concrete bench building from start to finish, from the planning of the first mold to the laying of the last slab, is Harvey B. Snow, of Camden, N. Y. Mr. Snow has sent a diagram of a cross section of his bench and the diagram is here reproduced, to illustrate Mr. Snow's description. He says:

"I have been interested in the articles on concrete benches in The Review and have built one this summer which seems to be entirely satisfactory. Perhaps others may be interested in our methods.

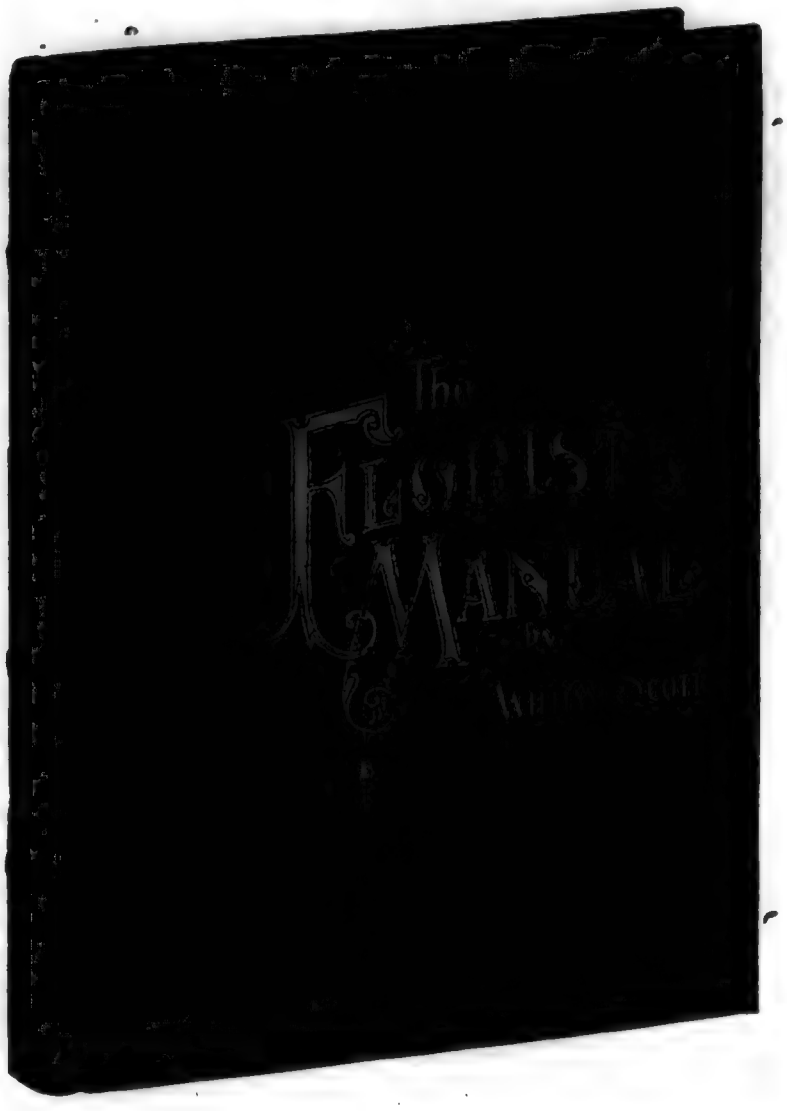
"First I built foundations, 8x10 inches square, on a grade the length of the house, placing them the length of the rail apart, which in our case was five feet five inches. Then I made boxes for the posts, 6x6x18 inches, inside measurements. The forms for the sides and rails consisted of boards of the proper length, attached at each end to wooden blocks of the desired shape. I made these blocks or end pieces from pieces of plank, 6x9 inches, by cutting a piece, 4½x6 inches, from one corner of them. The 9-inch side of these pieces was not boarded, as that side of the form was left open for the admission of the concrete. The slabs were made in boxes 1½x10 inches, and three feet six inches long. The end pieces were angles cast one and one-half inches thick, one side being five inches wide and the other six inches.

"In the posts coarse gravel was used. The rails were reinforced with buggy tire, put in edgeways. The slabs were reinforced with the common poultry wire. The forms were put together with screws, which permitted their being easily removed and refilled as soon as the concrete had set.

"The sketch shows the bench set up without the end piece in place. It has the advantage of being easily taken down and moved. The slabs will bear a man's weight in the center without breaking. I did the work myself and the cost for materials was approximately 20 cents per running foot of bench."

HE IS FROM PIKE COUNTY.

S. Bryson Ayres, of Independence, visited relatives at Louisiana, Mo., the other day and the Journal, of the latter place, took occasion to remark: "Bryson is now proprietor of the S. Bryson Ayres Co., wholesale florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, and has built up a big business. The company has 148,000 square feet devoted to the culture of sweet peas, in which the company has become famous. Mr. Ayres has propagated new varieties of sweet peas which have attracted the attention of Cornell University, which will carry on a line of testing these varieties. Bryson's many friends and relatives in Pike will be glad to hear of his success. If you can mention a line of human endeavor in which Pike doesn't get to the front, let us hear of it."



PLANTS FOR SMALL HOUSE.

I should be glad to have some suggestions which would keep me in greenhouse operations. I have a lean-to greenhouse twenty-five feet long and sixteen feet wide; walk with raised beds on each side. I would like to know what I can do with this outfit to produce a little revenue without too much technical knowledge. I have some call for a general line of house plants, and in the early spring season, raised some aster and tomato plants for sale. Is there anything that can be raised in my beds through the winter? I have a small hot water heater and can keep the house about 75 degrees at night. What class of small plants would it pay me to raise, either for flowers or for sale? Besides the above, would say I do quite a little in potted bulbs which will come in along January and February. While speaking of bulbs, would like to know if anything can be done with bulbs like this: Last year I buried my bulbs in pots and flats outside. This summer I found I had overlooked four or five boxes of bulbs, daffodils, which had been covered up all winter and summer. The bulbs seem hard and with plenty of roots. I brought in a few this month and they show some life, but do not seem to move at all beyond slight green tip. A. H. R.

If you could keep a night temperature as near 40 to 42 degrees as possible, single violets, such as Princess of Wales, would probably pay you as well as anything. You could, no doubt, sell these near home, as you could hardly expect to compete with the big specialists in the wholesale markets. You could follow the violets, which would be over by the end of March, with bedding geraniums, which you could winter in flats of sand, and also raise asters, tomatoes, lettuce, cabbage and any other plants for which you might find a call. Pansies also pay well. Planted in October, you could pick quite a lot of flowers through the winter and by lifting and planting a quantity in flats or baskets from the open ground or frames the last part of February, you could get them well in flower in April before the pansy specialists have much to offer. It would be better to stick to one or two varieties of plants rather than to grow a miscellaneous mixture in your house.

It is possible the narcissi may flower this season, although I have not had your experience with them. It would be better, however, to leave them outdoors or in a cellar covered up until they have sprouts a couple of inches long before trying to force them.

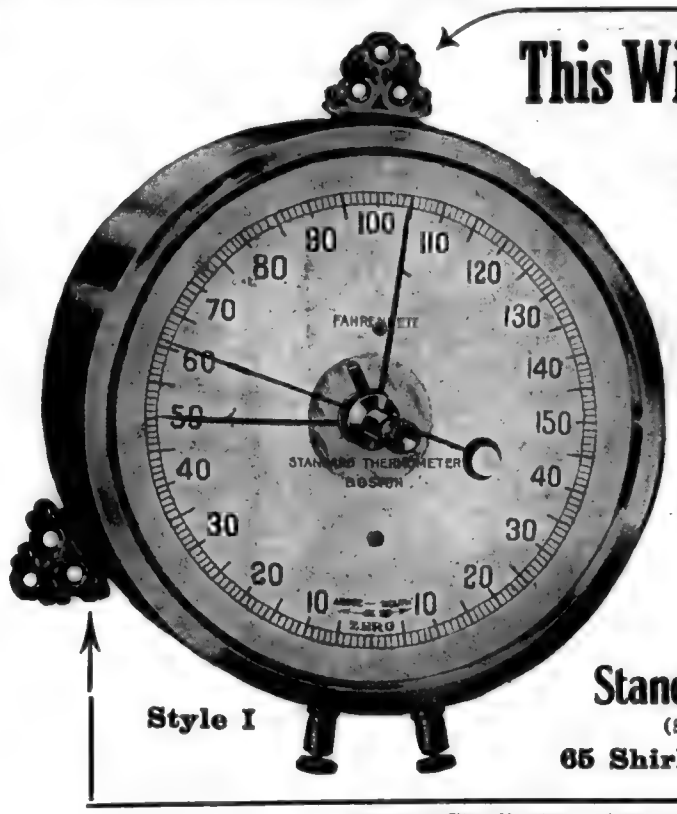
Greenhouse Heating.

It is just a matter of prudence to fill up any empty coal bins at once.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., has 15,000 tons of soft coal stacked in the open, covered with buckwheat coal to prevent slacking. This is carried merely as insurance against strikes or railroad blockades. Last season 8,000 tons of coal were burned to heat 900,000 feet of glass.

SLUGGISH CIRCULATION.

On page 94 of The Review of November 9 I noticed a query from H. E. H. regarding poor circulation in his hot water system. I would suggest that he tap a fitting at the highest point on the system and put in a pet cock to permit the escape of air from the piping. I had similar trouble in a house just built and relieved the situation in the way suggested. The inquirer will find the generators advertised in The Review to be quite helpful in sluggish systems.



K. G.

A PARTITIONED GREENHOUSE.

I am building a greenhouse, 10x20 feet, running east and west, with a partition eight feet from the east end. The temperature is to be 50 to 60 degrees in the larger room, 10x12 feet, and 60 to 70 degrees in the smaller section, 8x10 feet. The boiler shed is at the west end of the house. The other walls of the house are all exposed. The height of the walls is five feet; height to the ridge, seven feet ten inches. The house will be used for general stock, with space under the benches for mushrooms. How can I heat it correctly without pipes under the benches, which would interfere with the mushrooms? Will it be possible to run a portion of the pipes under one end of a bench for propagating purposes? Kindly advise me as to the proper number of pipes to be used and how to run them. The heater will have a capacity of either 250 or 300 feet of radiation. My location is southeastern Wisconsin.

U. W. I.

The following is perhaps the simplest method of piping the house so as to secure the conditions desired: A 2½-inch flow pipe could be carried under the ridge to the east end of the house, where it could feed two coils of four 2-inch pipes each. These could start at the middle of the east end and run along the end and sides of the house to the boiler room. One coil could be above the bench where mushrooms are to be grown, and the other could be underneath, where bottom heat is desired. The east room, 8x10, will have about one-half more piping than the other house, in proportion to its size, and this will provide about 10 degrees higher temperature. Run all pipes downhill and connect the expansion tank at the highest point of the system.

Style I

This Will Save Your Plants

It gives instant warning when the temperature in your greenhouses becomes too high or too low. It is also arranged with an indicating hand that correctly shows the actual temperature at all times. The two contact hands are set with the set-stud through the glass, one for high, the other for low, and, if desired, they will allow a variation of only two degrees. This

The Market.

The wholesale market last week was glutted with stock all through the week. The glut was mostly in the lower grades; still, the consignments were so large that some of the fancy stock, too, was left over and from the way the store men were buying it looked as though they, too, were having some dull days.

Arrivals of mums were heavy daily, with many of the late varieties coming in, such as Golden Wedding, White and Yellow Chadwick and Nonin. Fancy Bonnaffon and White Bonnaffon sold well. Some excellent Mrs. Jerome Jones and Yellow Jones were seen; also Eaton and Yellow Eaton.

Carnations are of excellent quality, with the price hardly over $2 per hundred. Enchantress and Beacon sell best. The market had an oversupply last week. Roses, too, are on full crop. Beauties have fallen off considerably of late in the fancy grades, but in Killarney, Richmond, Bride, Ivory and Maryland there are more than enough, with a great deal of it really fancy stock which would bring much better prices with the mums out of the way. In large lots, some of this fancy stock was sold as low as $5 per hundred. Violets have been and are in great demand, but stock has been scarce. One man said some time ago that this season would see a scarcity in violets from our Kirkwood growers. As yet no Paper Whites or Romans are being sent in. Valley is fine and sells well, also lilies.

Prospects for Thanksgiving look good, but chances are there will be a scarcity of stock, though this all depends upon the weather.

Various Notes.

Albert Gums, of the Angermueller force, reported for duty November 18, after a lay-off for a week on account of sickness.

Joe Hamerle leased the greenhouses of the Bentzen Floral Co. on Marcus street, and not the Brix plant, as was stated in the issue of November 9. It was Albert Hirlemann who leased the greenhouse plant of the Brix Floral Co., on Mead avenue.

which was on exhibition at the recent flower show was sold to the Archias Seed Store, Sedalia, Mo.

Himmer Bros. were the only exhibitors in the pomological section at the flower show. Their display consisted of a large basket of lemons grown in their greenhouse at Meremec Highlands. They were the largest ever seen here.

Grimm & Gorly, who bought nearly all the mum plants exhibited at the recent show, announced a flower show at their store all week, which attracted a great deal of attention from the public and crowded the store daily.

H. C. Irish, superintendent of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has returned from the south, where he went to attend the funeral of his mother-in-law.

Robert J. Windler, president of the St. Louis Florists' Club, says the next meeting will be a most important one. There will be an essay and a discussion which will interest the growers. Whom to recommend as state vice-president of the S. A. F. will also be decided at this meeting.

J. P. Beermaker, who manufactures Acme nicotine insecticides, says that the sale of his liquid and fumigating paper has greatly increased and that they are working overtime to catch up with shipping orders and local demand.

The big tent at the Missouri Botanical Garden was erected and filled with 2,500 mum plants, ready for the opening of the show November 13, when the great wind blew away the tent and demolished the plants. At the same time, the temperature fell below freezing and the entire exhibition was frozen.

consideration which they think will provide for all needs of the University of Illinois for the next fifty years. Messrs. D. H. Burnham and W. C. Zimmermann, members of a commission appointed by the trustees to recommend a scheme for the development of the campus, will visit the university in the course of the next two weeks to look over and discuss this new plan.

The buildings which were provided for in the latest appropriation, and for which locations are to be decided on in the near future, are a new armory, a stock-judging pavilion, additions to the greenhouses and a veterinary building. The appropriations for these buildings are, respectively, $100,000, $80,000, $50,000 and $5,000.

The new plan contemplates moving the horticultural group from its present location west of Wright and south of Davidson street to the present drill ground, and the location of the armory where the greenhouses are at present. Moving the horticultural group will not affect the work of the horticultural department seriously, but the orchard will have to be left in its present location for several years.

If this move is made and the armory placed in this plot, a parade ground 700 x 1,800 feet, extending to Fourth street on the west, and from Davidson street 1,800 feet south, will be provided for purposes of drill. It is planned to put the stock-judging pavilion in the present line of departmental agricultural buildings and at the end of Burrill avenue. This will leave the space between these buildings and the auditorium and between the proposed armory and greenhouses to provide for additional buildings in the future.

An Innovation in Steam Trap Design and Construction

are devoid of all unnecessary mechanism.

Every part designed, manufactured and assembled with the idea of permanence foremost.

Every tilt of the trap shows that it's working—draining every drop of condensation from the heating system and automatically returning it to the boiler—no pumps—no trouble.

Condensation is the purest kind of boiler feed water. Don't waste it. Return it directly to the boiler by "Detroit" Return Traps and prevent scale formation.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A large number of social functions, together with several large funerals, made quite a good week for the city trade, the result being that stock generally cleaned up nicely. Chrysanthemums, which have been so plentiful, will now begin to tighten up, as some of the growers are pretty well cut out. However, there will be enough left to last over Thanksgiving and indications are there will be more for that day than usual.

Stock of all kinds coming into the city is better, as a rule, than usual at this season. There is less rubbish among the chrysanthemums and roses. Valley and carnations are exceptionally good.

Beauties and cattleyas seemed to get scarce toward the last of the week and prices took quite a jump. Lilies are still too plentiful and it might be said there is a scarcity of nothing.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is cutting Bon Silene rose, which still seems to have a place, especially on debutantes' days.

The McCallum Co. is showing some fine Beauties these days.

Nature's Best Fertilizer is Sheep Manure

Sheep's Head Brand furnishes the valuable organic matter and humus necessary to grow crops. It improves the mechanical conditions of the soil.

Makes compact clay more open and porous, makes light, sandy soils more retentive of moisture, keeps soluble plant foods within reach of rootlets of growing vegetation.

Farmers, orchardists, florists, truck and market gardeners should send for our book "Fertile Facts" to learn how properly and most effectively to fertilize the soil.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been excellent since last report. There seems to be plenty of cut flowers, with the possible exception of carnations. Roses and mums are fine. Green goods are not any too plentiful.

Various Notes.

Royston & Fenton were so unfortunate as to be troubled with a leaky boiler November 12, during the coldest spell we have had this fall. The boiler leaked in two different places. They managed to stop the leaks temporarily by putting bran and malt sprouts into the boiler. The next morning the thermometers registered 16 degrees outdoors, but they kept their houses around 50 degrees. They waited for a favorable day and on Friday, November 17, they pulled the old boiler out and put in a new one, and had steam going by 10 o'clock at night.

Louis Fritsch has his new house about completed. He says business is good with him.

Austin Wallace has his carnations in condition. He carried over a half bench of carnations and they are doing fairly well. He finds a ready sale for his smilax.

John H. Brockmann, representing Arthur T. Boddington, New York city, called on the trade last week.

E. L. F.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The cut flower trade is fair, with the supply of flowers good. Mums are shortening up a little. Funeral work has been heavy of late. Carnations are coming into the market of good quality; these retail at 50 cents and 60 cents per dozen. Roses retail at $1 and $1.50 per dozen; mums at $2 to $3 per dozen. Paper Whites are now making their appearance, and retail at 50 cents per dozen. Bouvardia of nice quality is seen; it retails at 50 cents per dozen. Lilies sell at $2 per dozen. Candytuft helps out a lot.

Plants sell well at fair prices.

Nice window displays are seen these days in all of the uptown stores.

Stevia will be ready in a week or so.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

CLEVELAND

The Market.

While this market is, and has been, well supplied with mums, several growers and store men who are in a position to know say that there will be no further glut of this autumn flower. Some extra fine Golden Wedding, Chadwick, Golden Chadwick and Enguehard are arriving daily. Carnations are short in supply but of good quality. Maryland and the Killarneys are arriving in quantity equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

H. M. Walbridge has taken a position in the wholesale store of the J. M. Gasser Co. Mr. Walbridge has had about ten years' experience in greenhouse and store work, principally in the east, and should make a valuable man in his present position.

The McCallum Co. is receiving some extra fine sweet peas and seems to have plenty for all demands.

Wilhelmy Bros., who operate two retail stores, one on Detroit street and the other on Loraine avenue, will open another branch store at One Hundred and Fifth street, on Euclid avenue.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange says the new artificial hibiscus is well thought of by the store men and Mr. Smith anticipates a ready sale for it as a Christmas novelty. This firm is receiving Beauties from L. L. Lamborn, of Alliance, Ohio.

The Gasser Co., Rocky River, will build an addition to the greenhouses early next spring. Three houses 27 x 200, for carnations, will be built and this, with their present range, will give capacity for 50,000 carnations.

Jack Martin, representative on the road for the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, is visiting in this city.

The Florists' Club's bowling alleys have been replaned, new pins and balls put in and they are now equal to any alleys in the city. Come down and try them. F. A. F.

Gibson City, Ill.—Swan Peterson has exchanged his interest in the Swan Peterson Floral Co. for three sections of land in Grand Forks county, North Dakota. In the deal the greenhouse property was put in at $45,000 and the land in North Dakota at $76,000. The new owners of the greenhouse property are Hammond & Wadsley, of Grand Forks, who will take possession in a short time.

Advertising forms close

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Athens, O.—Simon Brouwer has purchased a Reo runabout and will use it in place of the horse that he recently lost. He will fit the machine with a body, so that it will serve also for delivery purposes.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

TIMELY ADVERTISING.

Retail florists frequently can take advantage of local events by means of timely advertising. For instance, when the grand opera season opened at Chicago the other day a florist who keeps up to the times had a good space on the theatrical page for the following:

FUNERAL WORK.

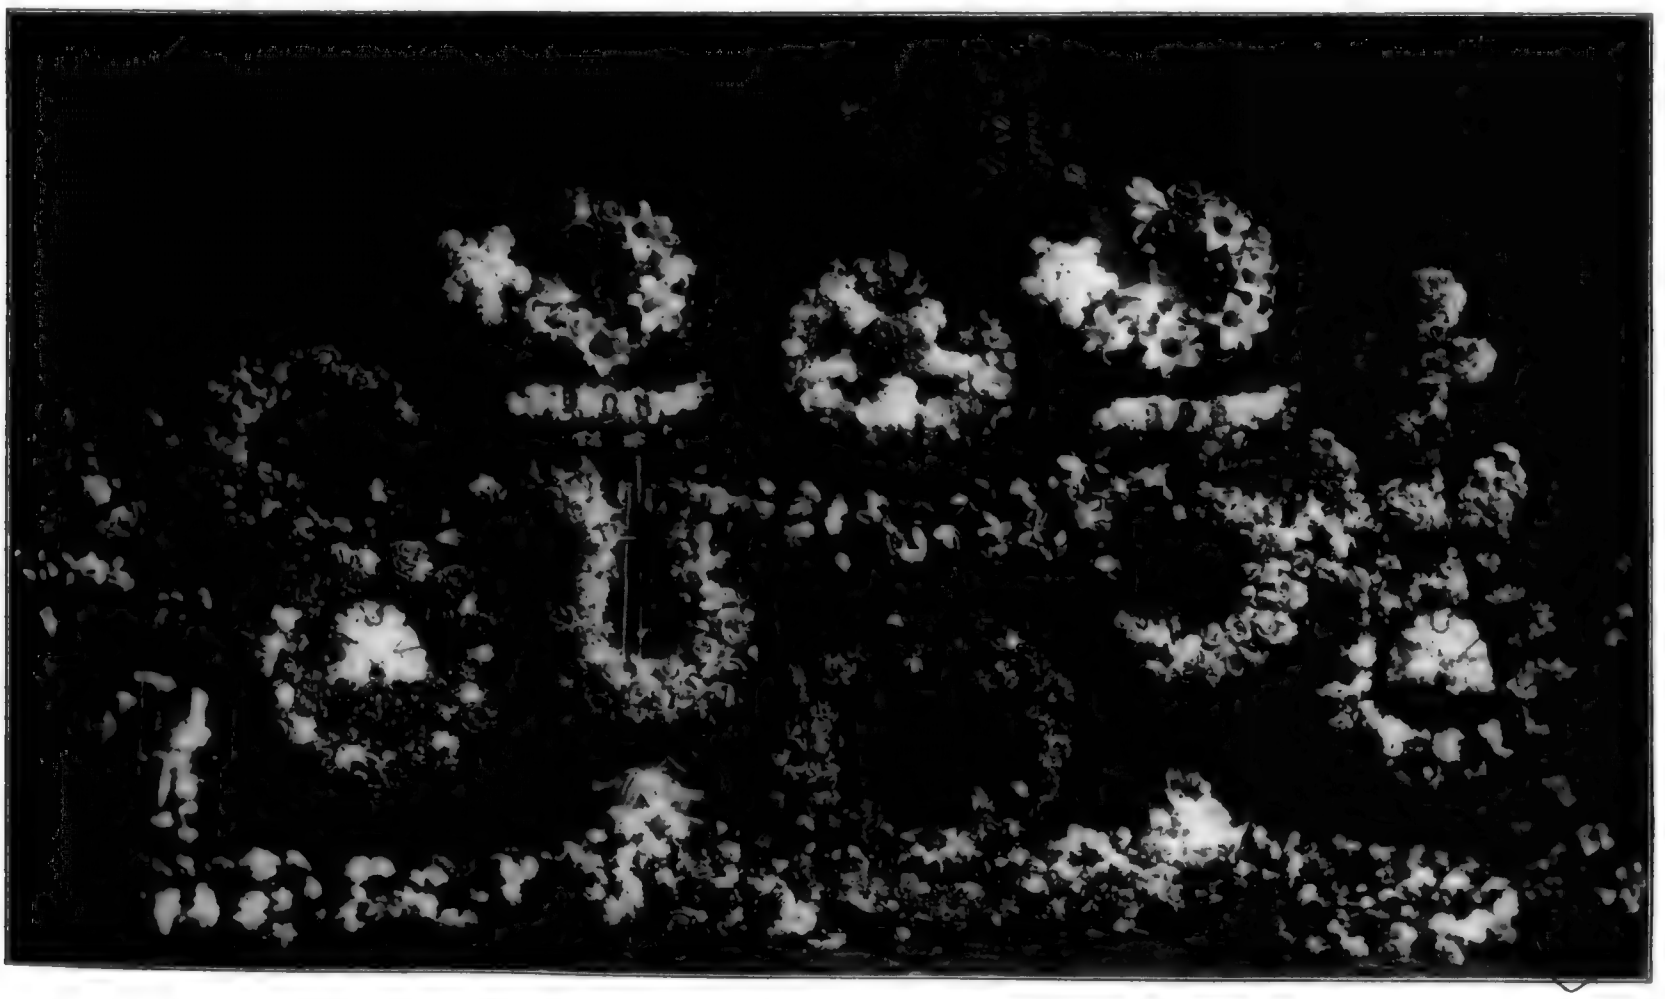
The accompanying illustration shows the designs turned out one day recently by G. Fred Bauerle, proprietor of the North Side Greenhouse and Garden, Lansing, Mich. The run of work was more than ordinarily heavy, because it was a double funeral and attracted much public attention.

"THROWING IN THE ART."

Policy in Prices.

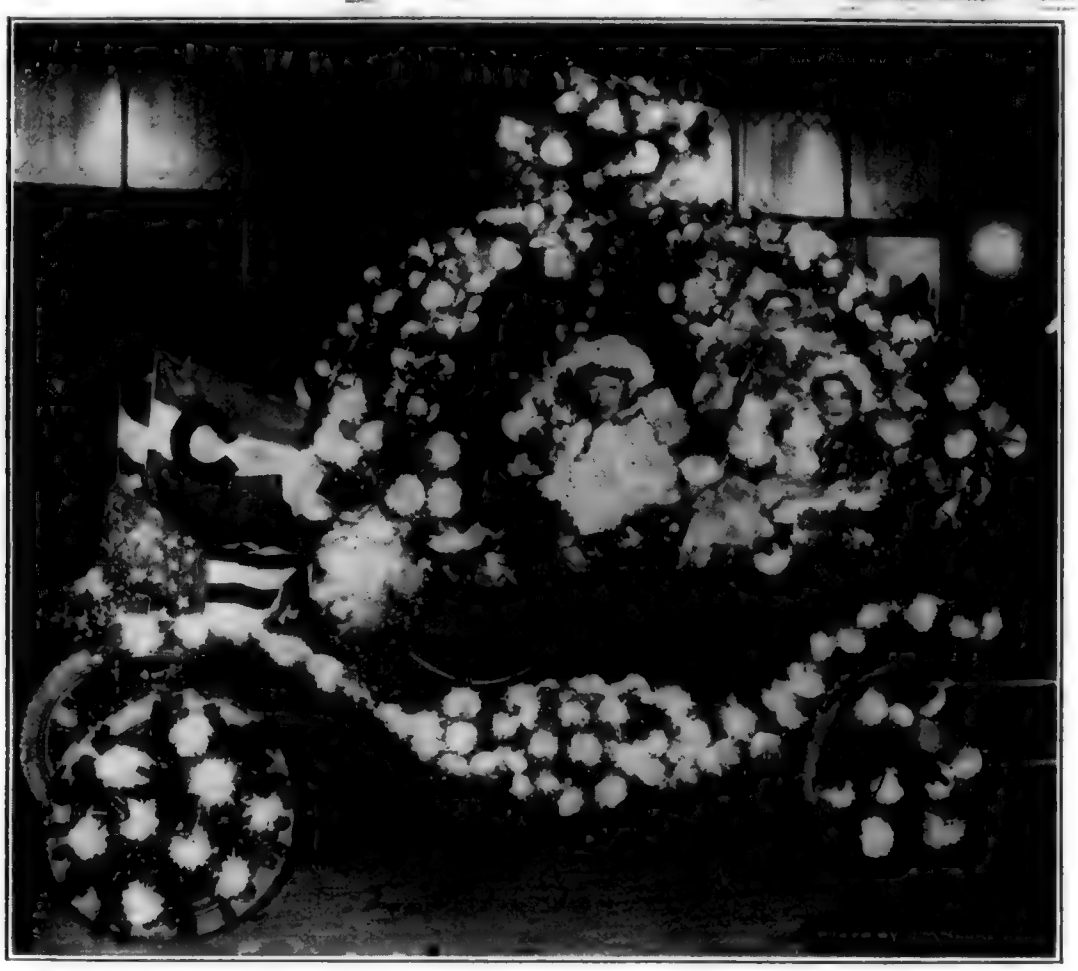
In The Review of October 19 there appeared an interesting article entitled "The Evolution of Retailing," in which the statements are made that the progressive policy of the merchant of today leaves the artist of yesterday in the rear—a standpatter, as it were, who, if he would gain trade, must "throw in the art"; that this progressive policy appears to be one of price cutting, liberal use of the advertising columns of the leading paper, of daily readjustment of prices according to the supply; that the spirit of enterprise seeks volume of trade along the line of department store methods, in order to work off the surplus of stock which faces the wholesaler ten months of the year. [The article did not say quite that; it merely called attention to the experiments some retailers are making along those lines.—Ed.] With part of the foregoing most of us can agree, but if this business of price cutting is followed out, where shall we land?

Overstocks and Price Cutting.



While the condition of being confronted continually with a surplus may be true of some few large trade centers, it is not generally the condition of the country at large. While department store methods seem to be the only relief in some cases of overstock, and while the supply must govern the price to a certain extent, it can not be an indication of the best trade conditions, as a steady diet. At the same time, the opposite practice of too much stiffness in price is a step back from progress. Where the price cutting methods of obtaining and holding trade prevail, there must be something radically wrong with trade in that vicinity. If growers can keep their heads above water on their share of the carnation profits when that article retails at 25 cents per dozen, we are from Missouri. Yes, we must admit that at that rate the art must be thrown in. But, even admitting that much, a great deal is implied, namely, that we must have the art.

The Main Object.



As to merchandising being the main object—why, bless you, why have we been operating these stores, and why have we employed all the fixings and artifices to help trade? Certainly not altogether for health or pleasure. If we go to following department store methods, it will not be long before we shall have to occupy half a block of rest rooms, libraries, check rooms and information bureaus to sell a dozen carnations at 23 cents. Where will this lead us? And on top of all this we are enjoined to throw in the art, which, after all, is equally valuable with the flowers themselves.

The Danger of Degeneracy.

And yet, after all is said and done, how much is there which affects the style of art in the selling of Beauties at $1.50 and carnations at 29 cents over the counter? If it should come to using hundreds and thousands of these same flowers at the same rate in decorations, we must charge for the art. In funeral work of any importance at all, throwing in the art comes to be a condition of no art at all. The thought, the pleasing power of a design, will count where it is talked up by the salesman. Of course, you can not expect customers to discover it themselves. You must point out and explain. Lay a dozen roses together artistically and another dozen of the same kind together indifferently, and demonstrate the difference. The customer can see and learn, and pay the difference, too, after a few demonstrations of this kind. It follows that where all the emphasis in advertising and merchandising flowers is laid on mere price of material, the value of arrangement will be lost sight of, of course.

The middle classes are our chief dependence after all. Dealers are responsible for general trade conditions and standards of taste in their vicinity. We are not caught in a deluge for the existence of which we are not responsible.

Some Axioms.

A few axioms derived from the foregoing statements:

There are congested districts about a few trade centers. They pour in quantities of stock which can not be disposed of, except at holidays, unless somebody resorts to serious price cutting. There are districts with good sized cities, which are natural distributing centers, without a wholesale grower or commission dealer. The methods of working off stock in a few crowded districts are by no means applicable generally.

There is this to be considered: The flower business is unique. It must maintain its æsthetic atmosphere. Degrade its ideals and you will have decay. Pure commercialism will destroy the love of flowers. They are luxuries and should not be subject to too violent change of price, as necessities are.

One relief for the surplus: Gain more flower buyers and stimulate heavier buying by confirmed buyers, through finer displays and intelligent advertising, rather than by continual price cutting. Gertrude Blair.

CEMETERY WREATHS.

We have a call for some wreaths of green and berries for cemetery decoration. What would you suggest as most suitable and enduring? Would the prepared magnolia be of any use?

—— L. J. B.

Wreaths of box, decorated with a few sprays of ilex berries, might answer your purpose, or holly wreaths would give satisfaction, but if you need large wreaths it would be best to make them to order. W. H. T.

DENVER AUTO DECORATIONS.

The accompanying illustrations show two prize winning automobiles which were in the parade held at Denver on Thursday, November 16, while the apple show and carnival were in progress. The first prize, $100, was awarded to the machine of the Park Floral Co. Yellow and white chrysanthemums were used, and a string of small electric lights around the main part of the car brightened up the dark places. The chauffeur's coat and cap were covered with mums, as were also the bonnets worn by the young ladies, two of the office employees, Miss Avery Edwards and Miss Lenore Williams.

The second prize, $75, went to the Denver Floral Co. The machine was quite appropriately decorated with branches of apple trees, laden with fruit. Yellow and white chrysanthemums and Asparagus plumosus completed the decorations. George Brenkert and Miss Hilda Gustafson were the occupants of the car.

FLORISTS BUT NO FLOWERS.

The last number of The Review was particularly interesting, as it contained the report of the Milwaukee flower show, with splendid illustrations. But there is what I understand to be a reproduction of a photograph of the banquet of the Milwaukee Florists' Club. The guests assembled are all fine looking men and loyal citizens, for I can see the stars and stripes arranged around the walls, but tell me, is this really a florists' and gardeners' club's dinner? Surely there must have been a mistake made in the press room, for I don't see a flower or a green leaf of any kind anywhere. Wm. C. Hall.

BEGONIAS IN ENGLAND.

James Veitch & Sons, Ltd., Chelsea, London, have within recent years devoted considerable attention to the hybridizing of begonias of the winter-flowering type. They took as their basis tuberous rooted varieties crossed with Begonia Socotrana. Mrs. Heal, Julius and Elatior are a few of the varieties already well known.

At the last meeting of the R. H. S. the firm exhibited three seedlings, each demonstrating a distinct break in color, and to each an award of merit was voted. They are well worth the attention of the trade. They are as follows:

Exquisite, very floriferous; erect habit of growth, and flowers borne well above the foliage; the largest flowered of the type; pink, shaded bright carmine.

Her Majesty, rich apricot tint, the nearest approach to yellow in winter-flowering begonias, and no doubt a yellow will be chronicled in the near future.

Acquisition, robust growth and remarkably floriferous; a beautiful flesh pink, with paler center.

The gloomy days of winter will be effectually brightened wherever the culture of these gems is taken up. Bee.

KING AND HIS CASTLE.

Albert King, of Hornell, N. Y., is a born florist and he has an enthusiastic side partner, their combined efforts having built up a snug business within a few years. The accompanying illustration shows Mr. and Mrs. King and the crown prince in front of their residence. At the right is the office leading to the greenhouses.

COST OF WATER.

Could some of The Review readers who use city water tell me what it costs them for water by the year for each 10,000 feet of glass? I have about 10,000 feet of glass, 3,000 of which I added this season. For the last six months, when my place was 7,000 feet, they charged me $16.85 for water, which I feel is too much. Some of the city council are inclined to give me a special rate if other florists get their water for less. L. G. B.

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

The dahlia and gladiolus growers of the central states are cordially invited to bear in mind the coming bulb show of the Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association, to be held in Chicago December 15. Come and enjoy the meeting. Also bring some specimens of these bulbs and any others you may be raising, for exhibition. Nothing of this kind has been attempted before, and at first it may not appeal to the grower as profitable. But it is worthy of thought and it will be a good opportunity to place before the trade "bulbs as they grow," all grades of gladiolus especially, from seed, bulblets, young stock, and from old corms that have stood the test of years. It will be a good time to consider the diseases of the gladiolus and notice the experiments that were tried last summer. Every grower that makes a business of dahlia and gladiolus growing for a livelihood is earnestly invited to be present the afternoon of December 15. Notice of our place of meeting and the program will be published next week. For further particulars address the secretary at Benton Harbor, Mich.

CINERARIAS IN BUD.

Please advise me as to the best way to handle cinerarias. I have about 300 plants, apparently healthy, but only six to eight inches tall, which are setting up buds. I should like to bring on a few for Christmas, but would hold the balance until the middle of January. They are in 4-inch pots in a compost of soil, sand, stable manure and leaves, all well rotted. W. E. J.

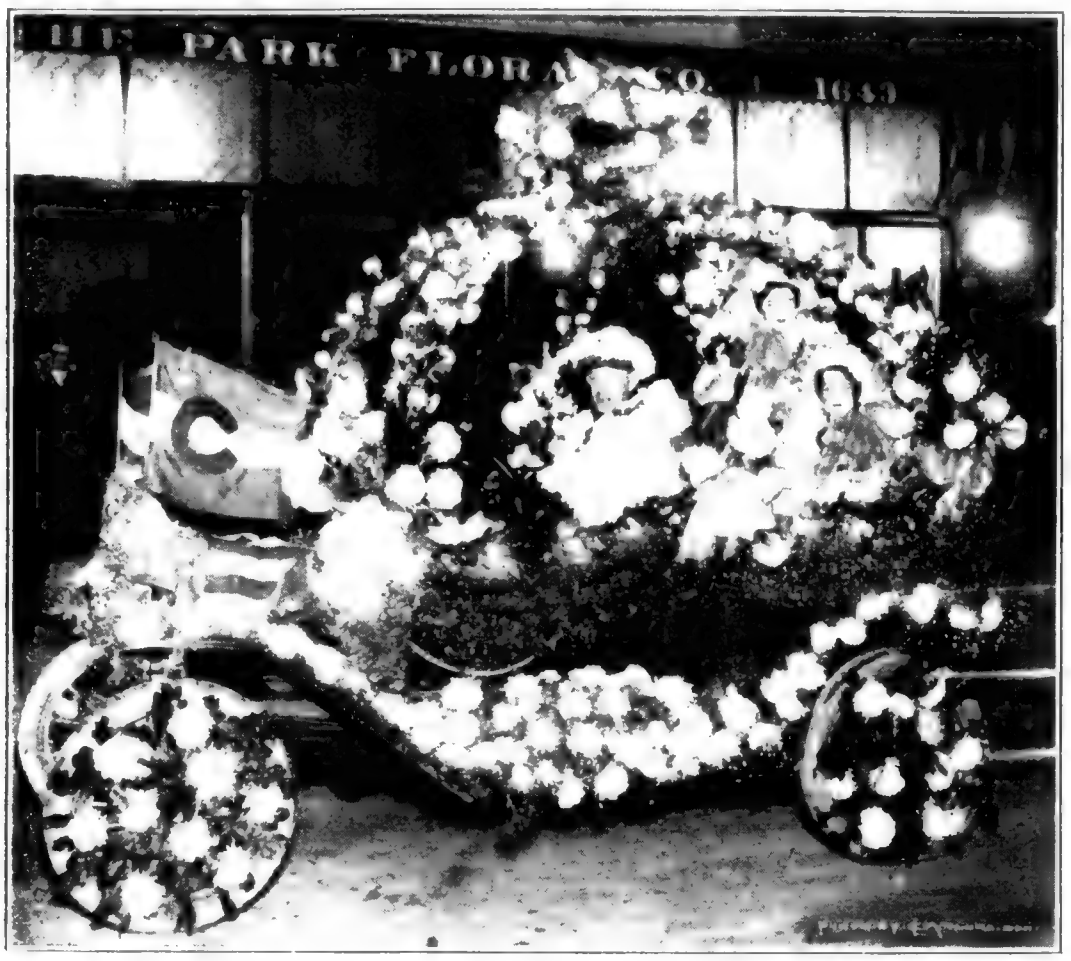
Cinerarias do not usually flower satisfactorily so early as Christmas. They are one of the plants which can not be forced into bloom. They must have a cool house all the time and succeed best where the night temperature is 40 to 45 degrees. Four-inch pots are rather small to flower them in; it would pay to shift into 6-inch pots if you want really good plants. If you do not care to do so, you must feed liberally with liquid manure; a light top-dressing of fine bone once a fortnight is also good. Cinerarias like a rich soil; one composed of three parts fibrous loam and one part old cow or sheep manure, with some fine bone added, will be found all right. Leaf-mold, while good for young plants, should not be used in the later pottings. A cool, airy house is needed and green aphis must be kept in check, either by fumigating or spraying.

C. W.

EUONYMUS RADICANS.

Please tell us whether Euonymus Japonica is hardy or not in the northern states. A. G.

The Japanese euonymus, E. radicans, also sometimes known as E. Japonica, is perfectly hardy in the northern states; at least, it withstands temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero without the slightest injury. This is the most valuable hardy evergreen climber we have. It is also excellent grown in bush form, particularly the form E. radicans rotundifolia.



A BEDDING ODDITY.

In Wheeler park, in Oklahoma City, this summer, that part of the gardener's work which has attracted most attention has been the flower box shown in the accompanying illustration. It is a full-sized "automobile," built of cypress and covered with cottonwood bark. The "box" was filled in all its parts with bedding plants, and the affair itself stood in the center of a big oblong bed of alternanthera. The gardener was W. D. Frantz, and in the picture his 7-year-old daughter, Eva Margaret, is seated at the wheel.

CHRYSANTHEMUM

CHRYSANTHEMUM STOCK.

After Thanksgiving, most of the mums will be cut. A few are usually carried over until Christmas, but Thanksgiving practically finishes the mum season. It is to be hoped that proper provision has been made for another season by reserving an adequate supply of stock plants. Do not tuck these away in any out-of-the-way place, under the benches or in other unsuitable locations. They require a cool house; anything short of actual freezing will suffice and, if planted in benches and properly labeled, they will give an abundance of strong cuttings.

Discard any varieties which are not good sellers and which are becoming obsolete. If you have attended any of the exhibitions, you have no doubt seen one or two sorts you would like to try another season. Secure stock now if you can, as by getting it now you can work up a good batch before spring. The finest commercial pink of the season has been Wells' Late Pink. No grower can afford to overlook this. Mrs. David Syme has sold well among whites. President Roosevelt has come quite a little to the fore—I refer to the mum, not the man. Patty is a charming late pink. Among the old-timers, Bonnaffon and Ivory still seem as popular and fine as ever. Appleton has largely disappeared. Eatons are fewer than in past years and Jeanne Nonin is without a peer as a late white.

Pompons have sold exceptionally well this season, but only certain colors are wanted. Orange and brownish red shades have had the call; next to these are whites and clear yellows. Other shades have been hard to move at any price. The call for good singles has been excellent and nearly all florists are now growing more of them. Garza, the finest of all anemones, has lost none of its popularity. Prices on single-stem flowers have not been as high as usual, but customers now prefer smaller sized blooms and there is more money in growing these three to a plant than in producing the specimen blooms which were so much in favor a few years ago.

BONNAFFON LEAVES SPOTTED.

We send you herewith some leaves of Bonnaffon chrysanthemums that are in a peculiar condition, different from anything we have heretofore seen. Will you please tell us what you can about it? P. C. & S.

The leaves of White Bonnaffon show some traces of leaf spot, although it seems to me that more than anything else they have just reached the stage when the wood gets hard and the leaf naturally ripens, exactly the same as a forest tree or similar vegetation. If these leaves are taken from the bottom of the stalk they will not affect the plant, but if this trouble shows up nearer the flower, then it must be caused by leaf spot. The leaves are quite badly shriveled and it is impossible to tell positively just what the trouble is. It will do no harm, if the crop is not yet in condition to cut, to spray the leaves with a fungicide of some character. We have found Fungine an excellent spray for this work, its chief merit laying in the fact that it leaves no objectionable traces on the foliage, as do the copper solutions.

MUM MRS. HENSHAW.

Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., has named one of this year's set of Wells-Pockett chrysanthemums for Mrs. A. M. Henshaw, wife of the senior member of the firm of Henshaw & Fenrich, wholesale florists at New York. Speaking of it, he says: "Chrysanthemum Mrs. Henshaw produces a lovely incurving bloom of the purest snow white. The foliage is exceptionally handsome and the heavy stem carries the flower perfectly erect. Mrs. A. M. Henshaw ranks well among the best of the Wells-Pockett productions."

THE HELEN NEWBERRY.

The increasing popularity of the pompon chrysanthemums and the frequent references which have appeared in The Review regarding Fred Pautke's new white, named Helen Newberry, lend unusual interest to the illustration on page 23. The photograph was made last week at the establishment of Fred Breitmeyer, at Mount Clemens, who is preparing to disseminate the variety in coöperation with the originator.

This is an extremely late white pompon. It was raised at the establishment of Fred Pautke, at Grosse Pointe, Mich., and quickly attracted attention in the Detroit market because it came in after everything else had passed. It is of much the same type as Diana, easily the best of the white pompons, but it can be had much later than that popular variety, the first flowers usually coming in for Thanksgiving. Held on the plant, it may easily be had for Christmas.

EXHIBITION MUMS.

Summary of Best Varieties.

In accordance with my custom for the last seven or eight years, I give herewith a summary of the varieties which a review of the exhibitions seems to show are best in their respective colors. The following have made a good record for themselves:

White—Wm. Turner, Mrs. David Syme, Naomah, Beatrice May and Lady Carmichael.

Pink—F. E. Nash, Lady Hopetoun, Wells' Late Pink, Loiseau-Rousseau, Miriam Hankey and Wm. Duckham.

Yellow—F. S. Vallis, Mary Donnellan, Mrs. J. C. Neill, Chrysanthemiste Montigny, Hon. Mrs. Lopes and Yellow Miller.

Crimson — Pockett's Crimson, W. Woodmason, F. T. Quittenton, Leslie Morrison, Mrs. Partridge and Pockett's Surprise.

Bronze or any other color—Harry E. Converse, Rose Pockett, Howard Gould, Glenview, Mrs. O. H. Kahn and Mary Mason.

The White Sorts.

Reviewing the varieties by colors, Timothy Eaton does not appear in the whites at all, partly because nearly all the eastern shows were over by the time Eaton was in good shape, and partly because it does not have the value as an exhibition flower that it has in some sections commercially.

Merza is finally pushed over the hill and, apropos of this variety, it has taken longer to take it down from its place of honor than any other variety in existence. It never was quite satisfactory as a cut flower, because the stem was so hard and woody as to cause it to wilt quickly, but it kept cropping up with different growers in marvelous condition year after year and it was impossible to find anything to beat it. Either Turner or Naomah gives a flower of practically the same type, but much larger and much easier to grow.

Onunda still has a place, but as a white it falls down on color. It is not pure white, running from cream to lemon yellow. Were I making this a list of forty or fifty varieties instead of thirty or less, I would include Onunda, but in a closer list of this character I consider it displaced.

Moir was not shown so much as usual and it is a poor shipper, which possibly has helped with its downfall. I must, on its showing this fall, place Wm. Turner at the head of the whites.

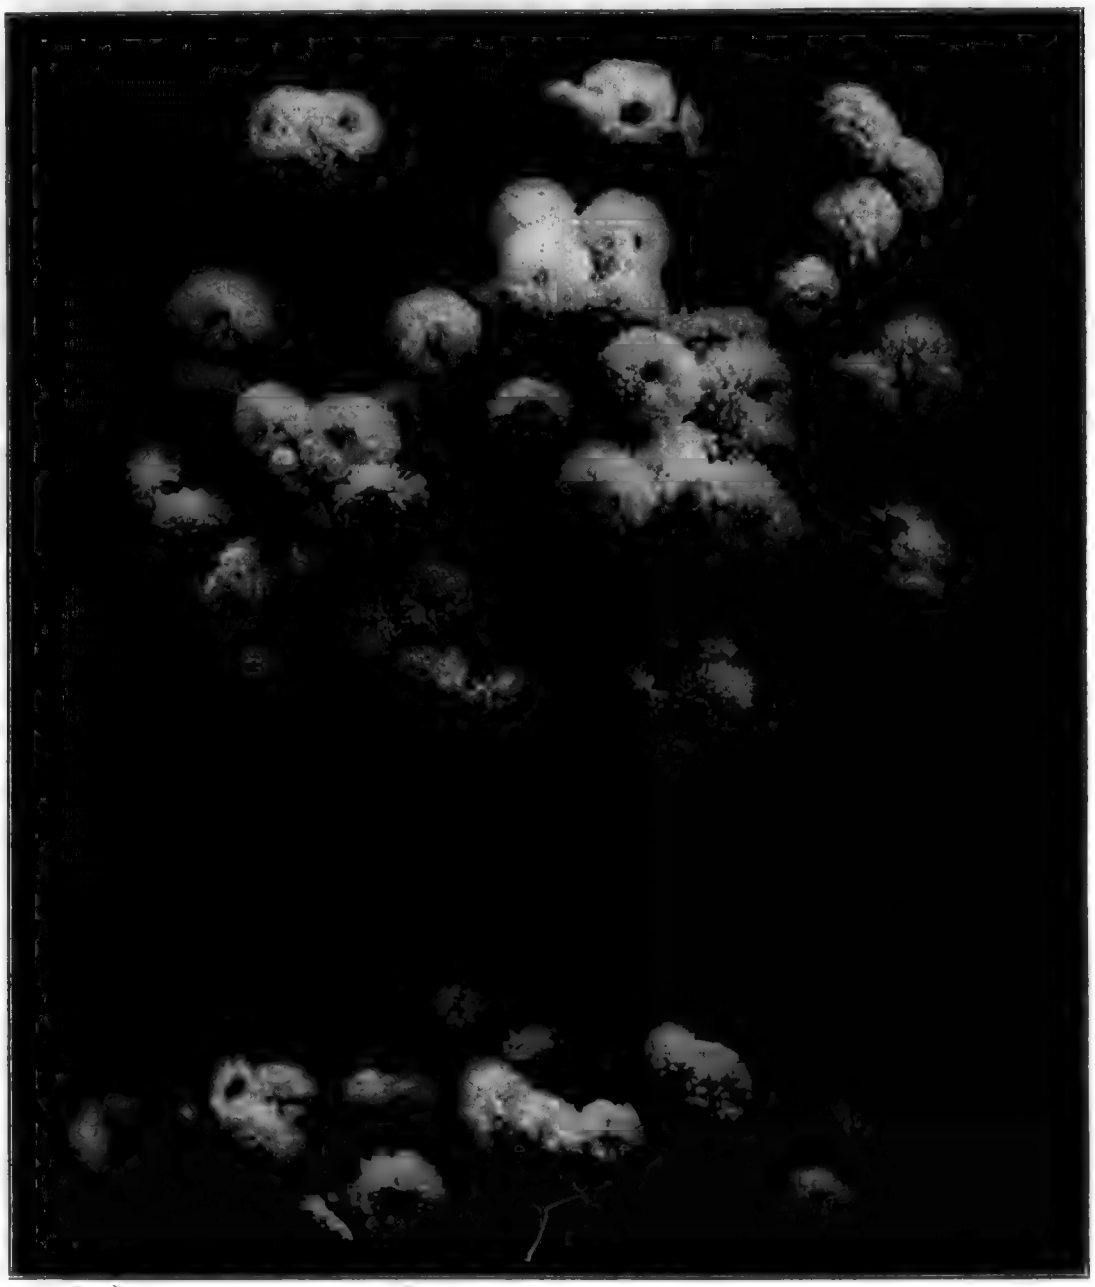
Beatrice May and Mrs. Syme fought it out at all of the earlier exhibitions for the place of honor, and finished with the honors generally a little in favor of Syme, as it has superior foliage and can be staged to better advantage.

Novelties that will be heard from in this class next year will be Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Mrs. A. M. Henshaw and Annie L. Angus.

The Pink Classes.

In the pink classes, F. E. Nash is entitled to the place of honor and it is a pleasure to reflect that once in a while, at least, we get an American seedling big enough to travel in any company. It is true that the color of Nash is a little pale, but with thirty-five points for size, when staged as it has been in several places this fall, it is bound to reach the top.

Lady Hopetoun, at all the shows before the second week in November, was staged in fine shape. Wells' Late Pink also showed up exceedingly well. It has stem, foliage and a good color. Many of the exhibitors insisted on taking the bud with their other varieties, from August 5 to 12. This date is entirely too early for Wells' Late Pink. If one can get a late crown during the first week in September, this is the bud that will produce the heavy flowers and still retain the color.



Wm. Duckham is the last variety on this list and it seems as though another year will probably topple it over.

Among the varieties that have passed over the range we must include Frank Payne and Alice Lemon. Frank Payne does not come as large as Lady Hopetoun or nearly as good a color, and Alice Lemon, unless one is fortunate enough to catch the early bud right, does not produce a large enough percentage of first-class flowers. President Viger, though it has been grown big, was always a wretched color. Glen Cove would seem to be a new-comer in this particular class.

The Yellows.

In yellows we are still looking for the ideal. F. S. Vallis must go to the top, as its size carries it through everywhere. J. C. Neill has also been shown in excellent condition. Hon. Mrs. Lopes was shown at nearly all the eastern exhibitions in grand condition. The same is true of Montigny and Yellow Miller.

Varieties that have passed over the range are Col. Appleton, R. F. Felton and Mrs. Geo. Hunt. The first-mentioned stayed with us many years, alternately caressed and abused, but generally managed to finish in first money. The complaint that Appleton has gone back is general, not alone among the exhibition growers, but among commercial growers as well, and poor old Appleton's days are undoubtedly numbered. Mrs. Geo. Hunt seems to have gone the way of all flesh, and Felton, while the color is grand and to my mind unapproached by any other variety, does not throw a large enough flower and soon loses its beautiful shape if kept on the plant a week or so after it is fully developed.

New White Pompon Chrysanthemum Helen Newberry.

Some of the growers, after reading the accounts of the western shows, will say Bonnaffon should certainly have a place. The number of shows in the east is much larger than in the west, and Bonnaffon in all of the eastern shows was conspicuous by its absence, simply because it does not begin to line up for size.

While on the subject of size, I do not wish in any way to be considered as criticising the judges at St. Louis and Cincinnati; judging at its best is a thankless job anyhow, and to criticise a man after he has honestly done his best is poor work; but I do think that the judges, with all due respect to their ability, were too restricted in their ideas. Bonnaffon in some classes scored first where, under a proper scoring on the exhibition scale of the Chrysanthemum Society, which allows thirty-five points to start with for size, Bonnaffon should not have gotten better than third. Another reason why Bonnaffon should not be worshiped by the exhibition judges is because it is grown in such enormous quantities for the market and the general public has seen it so many years that it will welcome other varieties for a change in an exhibition.

In the yellow classes Lenox was shown in good condition in several places and should get into the list next year. I am hoping that Ramapo, the Appleton seedling, will take its parent's place. Whether it will do it or not remains to be seen.

The Crimsons.

In the crimsons, Pockett's Crimson was shown in a most attractive manner. It is hard to beat this variety, as the color is good and, taken altogether, it is a beautiful flower. It is true that both Woodmason and Leslie Morrison showed up in excellent shape and larger flowers might have been staged of these varieties, but not any in such a good color as Pockett's Crimson.

F. T. Quittenton, from a bud taken about the last week in August, was shown by several growers in excellent shape. Many of them took the bud too early and hence the flower, while it had more petalage, was not nearly so attractive.

There are three good novelties in this class that ought to make a showing when generally distributed. They are Wm. Kleinheinz, which I have picked to displace Woodmason, as it is a much better color; Mrs. R. D. Foote and Mrs.

Harry Turner. The last named, from a late bud, will give a flower almost as deep in color as the old Black Hawk and it should make a place for itself.

Bronze and Other Colors.

In the bronze or any other color, the place of honor must be given to Harry E. Converse, a last year's novelty. This variety was good everywhere, simply immense in size and of wonderful color. W. Mease was shown quite considerably in the bronze section and I do not think its day is done, by any means. Rose Pockett also held its own everywhere. Howard Gould and Mrs. Kahn are both striking varieties, and Glenview, when it is caught just right, is still indispensable in this class.

Mrs. G. C. Kelly really has a place in this class, but it is a strong grower and many growers overfed their stock, with the result that it dampened and was not shown nearly so much as I had expected. Another year may possibly place it on the roll of honor.

Novelties coming in this particular class are Mrs. Geo. Burke, bronze, and Mrs. Peter Duff, an old rose color. Mrs. H. Stevens really should not be discarded from this class, but much of the stock was diseased last season, and unless carefully handled it will rapidly pass into the "great beyond."

To answer the question, "Are we still moving forward?" I say, most assuredly, from every point of view. Fewer of the varieties need artificial supports, as they used to in the old Mme. Carnot days; the color in most types is better and large size is now being combined with good form, which was not always the case.

In an early issue I will review the field from a commercial, cut flower standpoint, and see what lessons can be drawn from the season just closing.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The examining committees have reported as follows:

Boston, November 20, exhibited by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., Harvard, crimson, Japanese, scored 87 points commercial scale and 84 points exhibition scale.

The variety exhibited under number at New York, November 1, by A. C. Van Gaasbeck, Orange, N. J., has been named Helen Van Gaasbeck.

The pompon variety of Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, Ind., has been named Fairy Queen.

Chas. W. Johnson, Secretary.

TO KEEP DRY.

To keep from getting your feet and trousers wet when watering the plants, get a pair of oil "slicker" pants to slip on over your other trousers, and a pair of rubbers, not overshoes; overshoes are too heavy and expensive. Thus you will come out of the job perfectly dry. There is no comparison between the slicker and the old-fashioned apron.

Woodbine, Ia.—George Young, the new owner of the greenhouses conducted under the name of the Woodbine Floral Co., has now taken possession of the residence near the greenhouse grounds. A. D. Curtis, who has been with the former proprietors as manager, will remain with Mr. Young.

FROM A GLADIOLUS SPECIALIST.

The article on "Gladiolus Topics," by W. A. Pryal, in The Review of November 16, was exceedingly interesting to me, and also to many others, without doubt. As to whether a variegated leaved gladiolus would or would not prove attractive to the general public, that remains to be seen. As Mr. Pryal states, we grow them for their flowers, but it seems to me that any additional ornamentation should not be despised, providing it is worthy of notice.

I heartily agree with Mr. Pryal's opinion that a few crooked-stemmed gladioli, when added to a vase of the blooms, do much to relieve the usual spiky effect, thus making the arrangement far more graceful.

I enclose a small picture of an enthusiastic 3-year-old specialist; it may serve, in a measure, to illustrate this subject.

There seems to have been a multiplicity of new seedlings of merit on the market of late years, and one's pocketbook would soon be exhausted in an attempt to try them all. We would find ourselves "stung" by many which failed to come up to expectations. We are fortunate, however, in having some old, reliable sorts to fall back on, such as America, Augusta, Mrs. Francis King, May, etc., which are always popular and do not disappoint, but form the staff of life of the trusting grower. Variety, though, is the spice of life and undoubtedly we should miss much pleasurable anticipation, to say the least, if we were denied the joys of watching the opening blossom of some new and much vaunted variety and were restricted to but a few sorts

Meader's Gladiolus Specialist.

In closing I will say that The Review is to be congratulated upon commencing its fifteenth year, as being an A-No. 1 paper in every respect and one that all branches of the trade should take great pride in supporting.

H. E. Meader.

GLADIOLUS TOPICS.

In reference to the gladiolus with variegated foliage, mentioned in "Gladiolus Topics" in The Review for November 16, I am inclined to believe the variegation in the variety we have is not due to an infirmity, but is one of nature's new ideas in gladioli. We have grown this variety four years and each season the white markings have been more pronounced. It is also noticeable in the leaves of some of the bulblets, while others from the same bulb show no traces of it. Of course this may not amount to anything, but it seems to me that there is a place for variegated foliage. Would not a bunch of dark red blooms with green and white foliage be attractive? The way in which the gladiolus has responded to all efforts in hybridization and intense cultivation in the last few years should prepare us for new and unlooked for forms and variations which are bound to come, and we should be careful lest, in seeing, we see not the first little signboard which guides us into the new field of improvement.

Yes, there is surely a place also for a few crooked stems. Many times we have arranged branches of the blooms, some with a crooked stem or two, over the jar, and others with straight, stiff spikes, and in nearly every instance the former were the more admired.

Mrs. A. H. Austin.

BERRIED PLANTS.

Ardisia crenulata is always a splendid selling plant for Christmas, but it is not possible to sell it at any such price as berried solanums or Christmas peppers, as it is a slow growing subject. The berries must be ripe, or at least a good proportion of them, if the plants are to sell. Each year growers of ardisias seem unable to ripen them on time and it means a whole year's wait, in such cases, before there is any further chance to move them. Any plants, therefore, which are not well colored should be given all possible sunlight in a temperature of 60 degrees at night to forward them. If there are only a few plants, elevate them on inverted pots. Use the hose on them to keep the foliage clean. Plants well ripened can be given a cold house. They are one of the best subjects to use for the store windows at this season.

Berried solanums are easily grown and there is never any trouble in ripening them on time; in fact, if they are not given a moderately cool house, some of the fruit is liable to shake off before Christmas. As they do not mind a few degrees of frost, they can be stood in quite draughty places in the store, or even outdoors, unless the weather is cold. Pot-grown plants ripen a trifle earlier than those which were lifted from the open, but do not make such fine plants. Those propagated from cuttings also make sprawly plants, not comparable in quality with seedlings. Solanums want an abundance of water, and some spraying or fumigating is necessary to keep them clean of green fly.

Christmas peppers find favor with many. They are more tender than the solanums and never make so neat a pot plant. They should have a warmer house to ripen the berries properly. A carnation temperature answers well, but if they are backward let them have 60 degrees at night and all possible sunlight.

Berried hollies, aucubas and skimmias are now arriving from Europe. There is always a danger of their balls of earth becoming dry in transit, so be sure to soak them well in tubs of water as soon as they are unpacked. The better quality hollies are often shipped over in tubs, but even these get much dried and to save them the roots must be thoroughly wet and kept in that condition. These plants are useful for standing outside the stores, not being affected by the cold unless it is quite severe.

THE HALIFAX GARDEN CO.

One of the largest of the greenhouse establishments in Massachusetts, devoted to flowers and vegetables, is that of the Halifax Garden Co., Halifax, situated thirty miles from Boston, ten miles from historic Plymouth and twelve miles from the important shore city of Brockton. There are thirteen houses here, covered by 150,000 square feet of glass. Nearly all of them are 40x300 feet and thoroughly up-to-date in every respect. For several years vegetables were grown exclusively, but during the last two or three years flowers have occupied the greater portion of the glass.

During the last two years exhibitions have been given each fall and spring, invitations being extended to the general public for many miles around by means of printed invitations and newspaper advertisements, and the response has been remarkable. November 11 and 12 last, carriages and autos in hundreds were to be seen lined up near the greenhouses and an attendance of several thousands was recorded.

The flower rooms and packing sheds were tastefully arranged with evergreens and branches of autumn foliage. Tables were loaded with large vases of carnations and chrysanthemums in flower, and boxes and baskets of vegetables specialized in were noted, all labeled with neatly printed cards, so that he who ran could read. These exhibitions move a lot of stock and prove a splendid advertisement for the firm.

The chrysanthemums, of which some 60,000 are grown, were a little past the height, but many fine flowers were seen. The following varieties are found excellent commercially: Merza, J. A. Miller, Winter Cheer, Bonnaffon, Mlle. Marie Liger, Black Hawk, Mrs. Kelley, Alice Byron, Cullingfordii, Beatrice May, Dr. Enguehard, John Shrimpton, Rousseau, Mrs. Wm. Duckham, W. T. Brock and White Bonnaffon. Quite a number of pompons and singles are also grown.

The carnations number 50,000 and fill four of the large houses. These all looked remarkably well and were giving a splendid lot of flowers. White Wonder and Gloriosa each looked first-class. White Perfection was carrying immense flowers and Pink Delight was flowering with great freedom. Other sorts grown are Mrs. C. W. Ward, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Sangamo, Dorothy Gordon, Beacon, Winsor, Winona, May Day and Apple Blossom.

Sweet peas occupied one house. The varieties grown are Florence Denzer, Watchung, Christmas Pink and Wallacea. Some of these were already flowering. One division was planted with stock plants of the best geraniums for bedding, which is a new industry here.

Cucumbers occupy three houses. The variety is a selection of White Spine which W. E. Lenk, the superintendent, finds better than any he can buy. The cucumbers were carrying grand crops, with no signs of organic or insect troubles. Lettuce was formerly heavily grown, but shipments from the south have caused low prices, making the indoor lettuce unprofitable. One large house is planted with water cress and parsley, and one with tomatoes, the variety being Comet. The latter was being picked in quantity at the time of our visit.

Sterilization of the soil is practiced for all crops, Mr. Lenk believing this to be necessary for the attainment of first-class results. Last season, as an experiment, he soaked the borders of one house with boiling water, running his whole battery of four 125 horsepower boilers in order to keep the water boiling, and delivering it on a 15-pound pressure. He is so well pleased with the results that he will probably extend its use the coming season. His objection to sterilization is that certain outlets are liable to become clogged, with the result that some portions are not properly sterilized. A man using boiling water soaked the borders of a house 40x300 in two days.

All flowers grown here are sold through the Boston Flower Growers' Sales Co., at the Boston Flower Exchange. Mr. Lenk, the manager, was formerly with the well-known firm of Hittinger Bros., Belmont, Mass.

Oneonta, N. Y.—John Strong says business might be better, but as stock was backward it was just as well. It is more brisk now and stock is in fine shape.

CARNATION RUST.

Enclosed you will find some leaves from my carnations, which are affected with some kind of rust. Will you please state what would be a remedy for this?
R. C. H.

Your carnations are affected with the common carnation rust. I know of nothing that will kill the spores and your only relief will be in controlling it. You can keep it inactive by keeping it dry, as all these diseases require some moisture to start them into activity. If you have been spraying overhead much, discontinue it altogether for a time and water only the soil between the plants. Paint a pipe in each house with sulphur and lime, to help keep the atmosphere dry. If the rust seems to be spreading, you can pick off the leaves which bear the pustules, and thereby destroy a great many of the spores. A. F. J. B.

RUST ON ENCHANTRESS.

I am enclosing some foliage from a bench of Enchantress carnations. Will you kindly tell me whether the trouble is rust and what are the causes and the remedy? Would a dressing that was not well rotted, in the soil in which they are planted, cause it? Y. F. C.

Your carnations are affected with the common carnation rust. You will find this subject covered in the reply to R. C. H., in the preceding item. The dressing you speak of would not likely have been the sole cause of the rust, but it may have contributed toward it by producing a foul condition of the atmosphere. A. F. J. B.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Detroit flower people are wide-awake in giving full local notice to their 300,000 people that the American Rose Society will arrive in the city January 10, 1912. The premium list is out and any additions as specials will be placed therein as fast as they come, because for years past these specials have been given even up to the last days. Twenty-four persons have subscribed to the guarantee fund; Chicago people will do their best, and this means a great deal.

A public show of this kind, in which roses, carnations and local treasures will combine to fill the large crystal palace, known as the Wayne pavilion, is certain to be so attractive in a city of homes and gardens like Detroit that the place will be well filled. Wallace R. Pierson has been on a missionary tour of good will from east to west.

Do you know that the American Rose Society has only granted two gold medals? The last one was voted to Mr. M. H. Walsh, and this medal of pure gold was duly forwarded to him for his Ramblers. And herein lies a bit of affection: When the name for which the medal was given was asked, Mr. Walsh remembered his wife and had it named after what is said to be the finest white rose—Mrs. M. H. Walsh. Good for Mr. Walsh.

The executive committee will meet shortly to go over all details pertaining to the coming annual meeting. Several committees will have reports to make.
Benjamin Hammond, Sec'y.

NAMES OF PLANTS.

We are growing at present a number of plants which we have picked up and we desire to continue them, but wish to get the name of each specimen. I am forwarding specimens under separate cover by this same mail. The ferns are those obtained among the assorted table ferns. All the other specimens will convey their own message, except the moss and the other green plant, which is numbered 1. These two latter are gathered from the woodland and are hardy. Can you inform us of their names? L. J. B.

No. 1 and No. 2 are members of the hypneæ or hypnum mosses, and have no special value, except when dried for packing material. No. 3 is Geranium Pride of Mount Hope. Nos. 4 and 5 are two pompon chrysanthemums, but the flowers were not in condition for identification. No. 6 is Begonia Ingrami; No. 7, Tradescantia fluminensis striata; No. 8, Tradescantia fluminensis viridis; No. 9, Pteris adiantoides; No. 10, Pteris Cretica albo-lineata; No. 11, Pteris Ouvrardi; No. 12, Pteris Mayii. WITH KLAGGE AT MT. CLEMENS.

Any readers of The Review who do not already know Robert Klagge, of Mount Clemens, Mich., may become acquainted to some extent with him and his enterprises by means of the four pictures here presented, and the many readers who already know him will be glad to renew the acquaintance by seeing in these pages the "counterfeit presentment" of him and some of his possessions.

Mr. Klagge's portrait tells its own story both clearly and pleasingly. The other three illustrations give different views of his planted fields. In one picture his two daughters are seen, though not nearly as distinctly as might be wished. Another picture shows various signs of life and activity, such as the automobile with its occupants and the other figures standing near; also the wagon loaded with boxes, which contain valley ready for the storage shed. And do not overlook the cow, which has evidently been led into the picture as a representative of the dairy which is run in connection with the flower business.

Mr. Klagge grows cut flowers and bulbous stock, devoting 110,000 square feet of glass to their culture. In addition to this, he plants some acres of his outdoor fields with Dutch bulbs, averaging over one million bulbs. His entire output goes to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, of Detroit. He also forces over 300,000 valley and grows a large variety of hardy plants. At present he is cutting fine carnations from a house planted early in May.

He is a progressive and enterprising florist and a visit to his plant at any time of the year is sure to be impressive and instructive. Herman Klagge, his son, is his assistant manager and is an industrious and energetic young man.

FORCING LILY OF THE VALLEY.

Please give cultural directions for forcing lily of the valley. How much time is required to bring it into bloom, using cold storage pips? F. E. S.

Specialists who force lily of the valley in large quantities use separate houses for them. Others, whose output may be 1,000 to 5,000 per week, utilize a side bench in a house where the requisite bottom and top heat can be had. It takes from three to four weeks to force cold storage pips into flower, according to the season and the temperature of the house utilized. A bottom heat of 85 degrees, with a top heat 25 to 30 degrees lower, is what lily of the valley requires.

A case of any required length should be built over the heating pipes, enclosing the latter, of course. Either slate or wooden bottoms will do, though the former are preferable. Clear sand is the simplest and cleanest material to pack the pips in. Soil is not needed, as they make no roots while being forced. A soaking watering will be required once a day, but care must be taken not to wet the flower stems after the bells have started to open, or they will damp. Use six to eight inches of the sand. A covering of moss can be laid over the pips, the tops of which should not be covered by the sand. Keep the sashes closed tightly for a few days. Admit air as growth advances, ventilating more freely as the spikes push. As the flowers start to open, give more light, in order to make the stems and flowers have more substance. If foliage is desired, more light must be given than where flowers only are wanted.

The glass sashes must be covered with cloth, to darken them effectually during the early stages of growth. Toward spring the pips will not require so much bottom heat, nor need they be kept so long in the dark. Good foliage is then easily obtained, but at this season it is difficult to get it. It is better not to use freshly imported pips for forcing until January, or a large percentage will either fail to start or will give but few spikes.

If you require pots of valley, you can grow them in the same way in darkened cases, plunging them in the warm sand. After March, it is just as well to expose them to the full light; you then get plants a little dwarfer in habit, but carrying beautiful, dark green foliage. If you want only a small lot of flowers, you can probably box in a place of suitable size over the pipes, below one of your benches, which might answer well, but by having the cases up nearer the light you can produce a better grade of flowers. C. W.

Olean, N. Y.—D. R. Herron is well pleased with the returns from his store in town. He turned the tables on his Greek friends by adding a soda fountain and finds the combination a success. He is cutting a heavy crop of carnations and mums.

Boulder, Colo.—Charles F. Fawcett, the Arapahoe avenue florist, is said to have originated a unique chrysanthemum, with a flower about six inches in diameter, the petals of which are arranged in a peculiar form of whorl and are light lavender in color, shading to pink on the inside. He has named it the Boulder chrysanthemum.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Detroit flower people are wide-awake in giving full local notice to their 300,000 people that the American Rose Society will arrive in the city January 10, 1912. The premium list is out and any additions as specials will be placed therein as fast as they come, because for years past these specials have been given even up to the last days. Twenty-four persons have subscribed to the guarantee fund; Chicago people will do their best, and this means a great deal.

A public show of this kind, in which roses, carnations and local treasures will combine to fill the large crystal palace, known as the Wayne pavilion, is certain to be so attractive in a city of homes and gardens like Detroit that the place will be well filled. Wallace R. Pierson has been on a missionary tour of good will from east to west.

Do you know that the American Rose Society has only granted two gold medals? The last one was voted to Mr. M. H. Walsh, and this medal of pure gold was duly forwarded to him for his Ramblers. And herein lies a bit of affection: When the name for which the medal was given was asked, Mr. Walsh remembered his wife and had it named after what is said to be the finest white rose—Mrs. M. H. Walsh. Good for Mr. Walsh.

The executive committee will meet shortly to go over all details pertaining to the coming annual meeting. Several committees will have reports to make.
Benjamin Hammond, Sec'y.

NAMES OF PLANTS.

We are growing at present a number of plants which we have picked up and we desire to continue them, but wish to get the name of each specimen. I am forwarding specimens under separate cover by this same mail. The ferns are those obtained among the assorted table ferns. All the other specimens will convey their own message, except the moss and the other green plant, which is numbered 1. These two latter are gathered from the woodland and are hardy. Can you inform us of their names? L. J. B.

No. 1 and No. 2 are members of the hypneae or hypnum mosses, and have no special value, except when dried for packing material. No. 3 is Geranium Pride of Mount Hope. Nos. 4 and 5 are two pompon chrysanthemums, but the flowers were not in condition for identification. No. 6 is Begonia Ingrami; No. 7, Tradescantia fluminensis striata; No. 8, Tradescantia fluminensis viridis; No. 9, Pteris adiantoides; No. 10, Pteris Cretica albo-lineata; No. 11, Pteris Ouvrardi; No. 12, Pteris Mayii. WITH KLAGGE AT MT. CLEMENS

Any readers of The Review who do not already know Robert Klagge, of Mount Clemens, Mich., may become acquainted to some extent with him and his enterprises by means of the four pictures here presented, and the many readers who already know him will be glad to renew the acquaintance by seeing in these pages the "counterfeit presentment" of him and some of his possessions.

Mr. Klagge's portrait tells its own story both clearly and pleasingly. The other three illustrations give different views of his planted fields. In one picture his two daughters are seen, though not nearly as distinctly as might be wished. Another picture shows various signs of life and activity, such as the automobile with its occupants and the other figures standing near; also the wagon loaded with boxes, which contain valley ready for the storage shed. And do not overlook the cow, which has evidently been led into the picture as a representative of the dairy which is run in connection with the flower business.

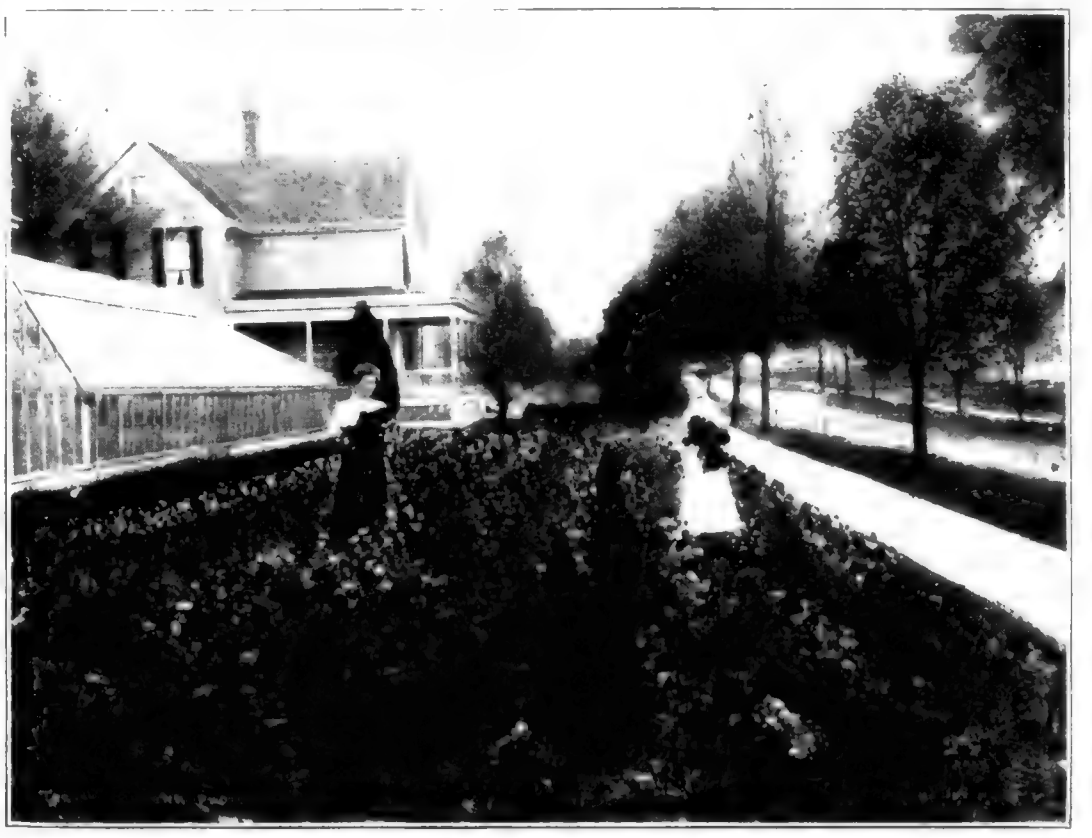
Mr. Klagge grows cut flowers and bulbous stock, devoting 110,000 square feet of glass to their culture. In addition to this, he plants some acres of his outdoor fields with Dutch bulbs, averaging over one million bulbs. His entire output goes to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, of Detroit. He also forces over 300,000 valley and grows a large variety of hardy plants. At present he is cutting fine carnations from a house planted early in May.

He is a progressive and enterprising florist and a visit to his plant at any time of the year is sure to be impressive and instructive. Herman Klagge, his son, is his assistant manager and is an industrious and energetic young man.

FORCING LILY OF THE VALLEY.

Please give cultural directions for forcing lily of the valley. How much time is required to bring it into bloom, using cold storage pips? F. E. S.

Specialists who force lily of the valley in large quantities use separate houses for them. Others, whose output may be 1,000 to 5,000 per week, utilize a side bench in a house where the requisite bottom and top heat can he had. It takes from three to four weeks to force cold storage pips into flower, according to the season and the temperature of the house utilized. A bottom heat of 85 degrees, with a top heat 25 to 30 degrees lower, is what lily of the valley requires.



A case of any required length should be built over the heating pipes, enclosing the latter, of course. Either slate or wooden bottoms will do, though the former are preferable. Clear sand is the simplest and cleanest material to pack the pips in. Soil is not needed, as they make no roots while being forced. A soaking watering will be required once a day, but care must be taken not to wet the flower stems after the bells have started to open, or they will damp. Use six to eight inches of the sand. A covering of moss can be laid over the pips, the tops of which should not be covered by the sand. Keep the sashes closed tightly for a few days. Admit air as growth advances, ventilating more freely as the spikes push. As the flowers start to open, give more light, in order to make the stems and flowers have more substance. If foliage is desired, more light must be given than where flowers only are wanted.

The glass sashes must be covered with cloth, to darken them effectually during the early stages of growth. Toward spring the pips will not require so much bottom heat, nor need they be kept so long in the dark. Good foliage is then easily obtained, but at this season it is difficult to get it. It is better not to use freshly imported pips for forcing until January, or a large percentage will either fail to start or will give but few spikes.

If you require pots of valley, you can grow them in the same way in darkened cases, plunging them in the warm sand. After March, it is just as well to expose them to the full light; you then get plants a little dwarfer in habit, but carrying beautiful, dark green foliage. If you want only a small lot of flowers, you can probably box in a place of suitable size over the pipes, below one of your benches, which might answer well, but by having the cases up nearer the light you can produce a better grade of flowers. C. W.

Olean, N. Y.—D. R. Herron is well pleased with the returns from his store in town. He turned the tables on his Greek friends by adding a soda fountain and finds the combination a success. He is cutting a heavy crop of carnations and mums.

Boulder, Colo.—Charles F. Fawcett, the Arapahoe avenue florist, is said to have originated a unique chrysanthemum, with a flower about six inches in diameter, the petals of which are arranged in a peculiar form of whorl and are light lavender in color, shading to pink on the inside. He has named it the Boulder chrysanthemum.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cyclamens.

The small seedlings should receive a little attention. Those started in August are now making their second leaves and are ready to go into flats of light, sandy soil, containing at least one-half leaf mold. Allow them two inches apart each way and keep the flats on a shelf close to the glass in a night temperature of 55 degrees. Scratch over the surface soil occasionally, so that no scum can form.

Any who may have omitted the sowing of cyclamens can still sow the seeds and get nice plants in 4-inch and 5-inch pots for Christmas, 1912, and later. Do not buy a cheap strain, and buy separate colors such as red, white and pink; the dull purple shades no one wants at any price. Give the seeds a moist house kept at 60 degrees at night.

Poinsettias.

The bracts of poinsettias now are developing nicely, those kept at the warmest end of the house being in some cases nearly fully expanded. Water with care, as after building up a good plant with clean, dark foliage, it is too bad to have a crop of golden leaves come just when the plants are salable. Use liquid manure twice a week while the bracts are developing. Some soot added to the cow or sheep manure will help to keep the foliage of a rich green color. While the bracts are expanding, the plants should have a good heat, 60 to 65 degrees at night. When fully opened the temperature can be gradually lowered 10 degrees; the bracts keep much better in water when this has been done. Endeavor to get all the poinsettias well opened for Christmas, as you can hardly move them at any price when the holidays are over.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis.

Now is a suitable time to make a sowing of Schizanthus Wisetonensis, a pretty annual and excellent pot plant for Easter flowering. Sow in pans or flats in a cool house and pot off singly before the seedlings can become drawn or crowded. Always grow schizanthus cool; 45 degrees at night is ample, and the lighter the position it has the stockier will be the plants. A little judicious pinching in the early stages of growth will make the plants more shapely.

Cinerarias.

From an early sowing it is possible to get some cinerarias in flower for Christmas. Such plants should now be afforded a temperature of 50 degrees at night. To advance them, a spraying overhead on warm days will be found beneficial. Give an abundant water supply, and liquid manure twice a week will be appreciated. Later plants should be kept potted along before the balls become too much matted. Use a rather rich compost of three-fourths loam, one-fourth cow or horse manure, well decayed, and a dash each of fine bone and sharp sand. Press the soil quite firmly in the pots. The cooler and airier cinerarias are grown, the better they will be.

Mignonette.

With more steadily cool weather the spikes of mignonette are improving in quality. Mignonette, to be seen at its best, must be grown in a low temperature and the minimum should be kept as near 40 degrees as possible. Do not make the rather common mistake of keeping the house 5 to 10 degrees warmer with the idea of getting in a good Christmas crop. This will only weaken the plants and spoil the quality of the spikes later in the season. Be sure that the supports are always placed in position before the stems have any chance to get twisted. Carnations supports are useful while the plants are small, but later galvanized wires running lengthways of the house, with cross strings as for carnations, will be found a satisfactory support. Mignonette likes a good water supply and the soil should never approach dryness. A mulch of well decayed manure, if not yet given, should now be applied. Fumigate lightly, as mignonette is easily scorched.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

Gladioli.

With the passing of Thanksgiving there will be some bench space which can be given to the large flowering gladioli. Of these the following will be found excellent indoor varieties and good sellers in the market: America, still the most popular of all, the price now so moderate that anyone can afford to grow it; Mrs. Francis King, red; Shakespeare, white and rose; Augusta, an inexpensive white variety, the most popular of its color; Brenchleyensis, still one of the best light scarlets, and May, white flaked crimson. This makes an excellent half dozen for forcing. There is no need to renew the chrysanthemum soil; give it a dressing of well decomposed manure and spade it over. Do not use fresh manure, as it will be found harmful to gladioli. A night temperature of 50 degrees will be found about right.

If not yet housed, get a few flats of the small-flowered gladioli in heat at once. These will not stand hard forcing; 50 degrees at night must not be exceeded. Such varieties as Colvillei The Bride, Blushing Bride and Peach Blossom, if sprouted a couple of inches, are all right for housing.

Lilium Candidum.

Easter comes rather early next year and in order to get Lilium Candidum in flower at that time without hard forcing, some of the plants, which prior to this should have been exposed to considerable frost, should be placed in a cool greenhouse; 45 degrees at night is ample for a start, with a rise of 5 degrees a little later. Never attempt to force them as you would longiflorums, or you will spoil them.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A better tone characterized the cut flower market last week and the improvement gives evidence of stability as the new week opens. There is a shortening of shipments and a good demand for everything, but up to date only a slight advance in prices. Large shipments of everything were predicted for Wednesday. Violets were the possible exception. These seemed likely to touch $1.25 per hundred and $1 seemed assured for all first-class stock. A good many of the Rhinebeck growers now ship direct to the smaller cities. All last week the specials held steadily at 75 cents. The quality now is perfect.

The shipments of chrysanthemums continue large for so late in the season. Prices have not advanced materially, with some splendid stock of the older varieties as low as $10 per hundred, while $3 per dozen is the exception rather than the rule. The pompons sell at 20 to 30 cents a bunch, which is about the rate at which the Paper Whites are sold. Of the latter there is an early and an abundant supply. The orchid supply consists of vandas, oncidiums, cypripediums, phalænopsis and cattleyas, and prices have been firm at the advance, with 75 cents to $1 as the top for selected cattleyas. There is a good demand, including considerable shipping, with many out-of-town orders booked for the holiday.

Carnations are on the up grade and good stock of the specialties and new varieties brings $3 to $4 per hundred. Little of the carnation shipments now arriving sells as low as $2 per hundred. Some of the novelties bring $4 and so do Alma Ward, Mrs. Ward and Wodenethe. Gardenias when perfect bring $4 to $5 per dozen. Some short-stemmed and inferior stock is forced to the street for an outlet. Sweet peas are improving in quality and price and are disposed of quickly. Valley is selling at from 3 cents down, and there is none too much of the top grade. Lilies are abundant and 5 to 6 cents is the maximum price. Callas are becoming plentiful and are quoted at $1 to $1.25 per dozen. Lilac is in the market, also plenty of mignonette, antirrhinum, cosmos and Roman hyacinths.

The new roses, Taft, Bulgarie and Lady Hillingdon, are about all sold before they reach the market and from 10 to 15 cents is realized for them. Of the older varieties 5 and 6 cents would purchase the best of them last week and there was enough for all, the street taking the surplus which the department stores could not dispose of, the lower grades selling at times under $10 per thousand. American Beauties are now of grand quality and $4 to $5 is the price for them. They will probably touch 50 cents this week.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, December 11. This will be the most important session of the year, because of the election of officers for 1912. There will be exhibits of novelties and Chairman Rickards promises a turkey collation.

R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., is in the city, after a very successful and enjoyable lecture trip through the west.

James McNance, with Central park during the last twenty-five years, died suddenly of heart failure November 26.

P. B. Rigby, manager of the New York branch of the Pennock-Meehan Co., reports a pleasant visit at the greenhouses of C. H. Totty, at Madison, November 21. He was accompanied by Messrs S. S. and Casper Pennock, Scott, Meehan, Mills, Harris Mortensen, Gracey and Fancourt, all of Philadelphia.

W. C. Smith, the galax merchant, of Marion, was in the city last week, calling on his New York agents.

The auction season closes next week. Good audiences have attended the late sessions and an immense quantity of hardy stock, bulbs and evergreens has been disposed of. The season around New York has been exceptionally favorable for late planting.

Cyclamens at J. A. Peterson's, Cincinnati, During Show Week.

Three weeks are left before the Chrismas festivities. Holly is already here, and was used freely for Thanksgiving. The green goods supply men are already busy with wreathing and the Christmas trees will be here before the end of the week.

J. H. Troy, of New Rochelle, has recovered from the accident of five weeks ago.

It would take one of H. E. Froment's force more than half his time to count the Killarney roses that come from the big greenhouse plant of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J.

P. J. Smith says his count of the wholesale florists in New York and Brooklyn equals the record of Heinz, the pickle man, there being exactly fifty-seven so-called wholesalers in the business here. This includes the late additions and the speculators.

Congratulations were many November 21 to Mr. and Mrs. Riedel on the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of their wedding.

J. J. Coan, of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., says his best mum sellers this year have been Bonnaffon, Maud Dean, Eaton and Chadwick. The shipments have been enormous.

E. W. Fengar, of Irvington, N. J., has been sending grand Chadwicks and Pockett's Surprise to the New York market, realizing for some specimens of the latter variety $9 a dozen wholesale.

Fine gardenias and cattleyas are coming from the plant of the W. S. Young Co., of Bound Brook, N. J.

Large quantities of chrysanthemum plants were disposed of last week by M. C. Ford, Ivory especially proving popular. Hession's carnations are quite up to their record of past years in quantity and quality.

One of Gunther Bros.' specialties now is the caladium, the leaves of which find a ready sale.

Mrs. Will Kessler is installed as office manager for Kessler Bros.

The veteran J. J. Allen says that in his quarter century experience he has never seen finer roses than this month, the old Maid and Bride not excepted.

Geo. Saltford says he received advance orders for his entire output of violets at Rhinebeck for Thanksgiving.

J. V. Phillips, of Brooklyn, has added an auto delivery to his conveniences and is having a good season.

At R. G. Wilson's on Greene avenue, Brooklyn, the large windows are ablaze with color. The electric effects are most attractive.

J. Austin Shaw.

Phoenix Roebelenii and Dracaenas at J. A. Peterson's.

AT PETERSON'S.

During the recent flower show at Cincinnati most of the trade visitors found their way to the establishment of J. A. Peterson, widely known in the trade as the home of Begonia Glory of Cincinnati and other specialties. Mr. Peterson long ago established his reputation as a first-class plantsman and there always is something of interest to see at this place. One of the visitors carried a camera, so that Review readers are afforded, through the illustrations on this page, a glimpse of the houses as they appeared early in November.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Desmond celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary at their home on Portland avenue, November 20, when about sixty-five guests were entertained, most of them in the trade, for Mr. Desmond is manager of the flower department of the Donaldson Co. The home was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and plants. During the evening there were music and dancing.

The guests included Messrs. and Mesdames C. Vasetka, R. Latham, H. Wimperis, G. Howard, J. Jorgeson, W. McCullough, W. Schloser, C. Maurer, W. Hamlin, H. Beckwith, J. Taylor, W. Staats, S. Raymond, H. Hamwell, W. Robinson; Mesdames A. Beckwith, C. French, C. Riley, D. Desmond, A. Navarre, Wm. Salter, C. Sauset, J. J. Flynn, W. Manuel; the Misses C. Hamlin, R. Hunt, G. Du Rose, G. Beckwith, E. Sather, Belle Houts, D. Anderson, M. Rehl, I. Riley, E. Anderson, and Messrs. A. Miller, of Chicago; E. Todd, of International Falls; H. Will, C. H. Du Rose, A. T. Deschene, C. Melby, J. Munson, A. Blacketter and D. Kenny.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The week from November 19 to 25 proved to be the best during the present season. The convention of the American Bankers' Association, held here during that period, brought several thousand wealthy strangers to the city and surely made things lively. Many elaborate social functions given in their honor called for daily decorations of plants and cut flowers and all the retailers were able to use extra shipments of the best cut flowers in the market.

The flower stores were exquisitely decorated for the occasion, but nearly all the dealers are yet compelled to get their supply from northern points. The outdoor cut flowers, with the exception of a few mums and tuberoses, are gone, and early sweet peas and bulbous stock will not be in bloom until the middle of December.

The new home of the Progressive Union was opened November 20, and several local florists united in decorating artistically the entire building with plants and cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Charles Eble's store always attracts attention and he is doing a most satisfactory business.

C. W. Eichling has his avenue store and conservatory in fine shape. He reports a constant increase in trade and says the sale of English rye grass for winter lawns, which is a specialty with him, is larger than ever.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery's new flower store had a constant grand display of fine home-grown roses, chrysanthemums and foliage plants and reports a busy week.

J. A. Newsham, the local orchid specialist, did some heavy shipping recently to the north and west. His plant is the largest in the south; the stock is in a healthy condition and comprises some twenty varieties of cattleyas and thirty varieties of dendrobiums and oncidiums.

U. J. Virgin disposed of an immense stock of choice cut flowers this season, and had a large number of lavish decorations, especially during convention week.

J. C. Quinette was appointed by Governor Sanders to act as delegate from Louisiana to the Fourth National Horticultural Congress and Exposition, to be held in St. Joseph, Mo., November 23 to December 2.

Among the members of the New Orleans Horticultural Society who donated the plants and cut flowers for the Progressive Union's new home, were: U. J. Virgin, Claude Ory, Steckler Seed Co., Abele Bros., J. C. Quinette, P. A. Chopin and H. Doescher. R. E.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The week of November 20 opened with brisk business and a scarcity of roses. The dull weather that had been prevalent for some time made stock scarce; besides, a large number of growers were holding back stock for Thanksgiving orders. There were few chrysanthemums on the market last week and the greater percentage of them was poor. Bonnaffon, Golden Wedding, Eaton, Maud Dean and Jerome Jones were among the best sellers.

Pink Killarney roses are scarce and there are hardly enough to fill the demand. The few that are available are par excellence in the specials, but the short-stemmed ones are poor. Double White Killarneys are great favorites, and bring a big price. Richmonds are fine at present, but the demand is light. Tafts are good, and a few good Radiance find their way into the market occasionally. Ward roses are few in numbers, much to the annoyance of the flower buyers, for they are great favorites. Beauties are the best they have been this fall and bring big money.

Carnations are much improved and have advanced in price a little. Pink Delight is especially good, with long, firm stems. Perfection is running fine. Winsor is poor just now, but Enchantress and red carnations are holding their own.

Paper Whites and stevia are coming in more plentifully this week and are a valuable addition to our small-flower stock. Violets have taken on their rich winter hue and have advanced in price. White violets are offered now and then and go for double the price of the purple ones. Both are selling well. Harrisii lilies and callas are scarce, but valley is good and is still in great demand. Cattleyas are few, but cypripediums are abundant and are going well. Gardenias are fine; however, there is no great demand for them.

There was an abundance of flowering plants, such as begonias, cyclamen, primulas and Jerusalem cherries, for Thanksgiving day.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Scott Co., of Corfu, N. Y., is shipping great quantities of chrysanthemums into this market.

Felix Alberts spent a few days in Buffalo last week, where he went to start Mrs. Alberts on her trip to Denver, Colo.

George Keller's stock is greatly retarded because of the inadequate heating system, due to the late arrival of his boilers. He managed to keep his stock from freezing by putting up several stoves.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is sending some unusually fine cyclamen and begonias to this city.

Friends of Miss Bradstreet have received cards from her stating that she is having a fine time in the "sunny south."

E. R. Frey reports that business is fairly good with him and that he expects a big Christmas trade. His begonias are in their prime. He has one entire house of them and expects to get rid of them all before Christmas.

J. B. Keller Sons have a few early azaleas.

A. N. Pierson is shipping the lovely Kate Moulton rose to our city in large quantities now.

Ted Ogston has discontinued work at the nursery for the winter.

Arthur Colbert celebrated his sixteenth birthday November 24.

William B. Lake, of Philadelphia, was in town recently on a flying business trip.

Geo. B. Hart is looking forward to a large holiday trade. He received the first shipment of holly this week.

J. B. Keller Sons had a big job November 22, doing the decoration for the Dunn coming-out reception.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

There are various reports concerning business. Wholesalers say it is good, while some retailers declare it is slow. Stock is good and not overplentiful as regards most items. Extra fine mums are in sight for Thanksgiving. The demand for them is said to be good. Cheaper mums also are in request and are not overplentiful. There is no glut of other flowers. Double violets are in good demand for Thanksgiving, although they were dragging somewhat last week. Narcissi are on the market and are being substituted for valley in many cases, which accounts for valley moving rather slowly. Roses are of good quality and in fair demand. There are limited quantities of sweet peas coming into the market. Orchids are a little more plentiful. Easter lilies are going somewhat better. Carnations are scarce, selling at $4 per hundred.

After the middle of the week a boom is looked for among florists. The opening of Congress is always helpful and a number of coming-out parties and official dinners are scheduled, including the cabinet dinners to the president.

Various Notes.

George C. Shaffer says that prices for Thanksgiving were normal. Mr. Shaffer already is looking forward with pleasure to attending the next convention of the Society of American Florists at Chicago in August, 1912.

Mrs. J. R. Freeman, widow of the late J. R. Freeman, is running the business he built up, with the greenhouse end on Wisconsin avenue and Reservoir road, and the downtown store in Thirteenth street.

Gude Bros. Co. has a contract for decorating the Cafe Republique this week.

Considerable funeral work was done last week by W. Marche, who is planning several important decorations.

The Washington Florists Co. had an appropriate Thanksgiving window display, including a huge horn of plenty from which poured magnificent yellow mums, corn in the husk, pumpkins and autumn fruit. In the foreground was a huge lucky Thanksgiving turkey wish bone.

Pennock-Meehan Co. has rented temporary storage space in a building near its store, pending the erection of the company's new building in H street.

A new idea for Washington is being shown by Z. D. Blackistone in the form of beautiful combination baskets of flowers and fruit for Thanksgiving.

Visitors connected with the trade in Washington recently include Cutler Ryerson, Newark, N. J.; Israel Rosnosky, representing H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York. H. C. H.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh cut flower people have been having one of those old-fashioned busy weeks and the trade was pretty evenly divided, every one having his busy days. Most of the business consisted of wedding and funeral work, the counter trade not showing any improvement, but it was good enough for one week and indications for Thanksgiving are fine.

The kind of weather we have been having will certainly shorten the cut of roses and carnations, but there are enough chrysanthemums in sight to take care of all comers, so the shortage along other lines will probaby not be greatly felt. Roses and carnations have been good and plentiful. Now Paper Whites, Romans and baby primroses are coming and will be needed, as chrysanthemums will be pretty nearly cleaned up with Thanksgiving.

Various Notes.

The chrysanthemum show in the park has disappeared and the places of the mums have been taken by Lorraine begonias. Superintendent Geo. Burke and Foreman John Jones have a couple of houses of Lorraine and Glory of Cincinnati arranged with fine palms, stevias and other plants, which seem to gain as much applause from the many visitors as the mums, and they deserve it.

To Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCallum, on Tuesday, November 21, two sons, Edward and Robert. The mother and sons are getting along nicely.

John Koenig, after delivering a load of chrysanthemums to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., November 20, met with an accident that might have been serious. He was thrown from his wagon seat to the ground, alighting on his head, and the wheels passed over his shoulders. The accident was caused by the wheels bouncing over a rail while crossing the railroad track. Mr. Koenig is still suffering from his bruises, but there will be no serious results.

Karl Klinke, the Arcade florist, sold his business last week to Ray Dasbach, who is well known here, having worked for a number of the leading florists. He expects to equip his store with everything necessary to enable him to go after some of the big work with which he has been identified.

The opera "Pink Lady" is in our city and the A. W. Smith Co. is showing a beautiful Enchantress-colored chrysanthemum which they call Pink Lady. It has many forms, resembling a pink Bonnaffon and also a pink Eaton, but all are equally fine. The A. W. Smith Co., on being asked about where the stock can be purchased, says not to be inquisitive, and if you like it just admire it and say nothing.

Visitors last week were: Will Craig, of Philadelphia; W. L. Tunpore, of J. H. Small & Sons, New York.

Hoo-Hoo.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were highly satisfactory. The demand was good; in fact, the volume was greater than a year ago, but the financial end shows a shortage. The scarcest articles last week were Beauties. More violets could have been handled to advantage. The supply of carnations and roses was equal to the demand.

Good and fancy mums sell readily, while the poorer grades, of which there seems to be an overproduction, are a mere nuisance, to say the least. Stevias and Paper Whites have made their debut and help to make a variety; they sell at sight. From present indications, there will be stock in abundance for the Thanksgiving trade.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Baumgarten, of the Baumgarten Floral Co., has been nursing a bad hand for the last fortnight. While it does not keep her away from work, it is quite annoying.

It is a pleasure to report that Mrs. Art Leidiger, who has been troubled with rheumatism since last spring, is much improved at this time.

Roy Currie, of the Currie Bros. Co., was in Chicago on Saturday, November 24. They were rushed with funeral work on Sunday and, with Roy out of town, the struggle was doubly hard for the remaining store force. This firm has had a strong call for Beauties and has sometimes been compelled to substitute mums.

Gust. Rusch & Co. say that things are moving along finely considering that they are only beginners.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports shipping trade brisk and on the increase. They state that the supply of double violets did not keep up with the demand last week.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. states that their supply of mums will hold out for the Thanksgiving trade. Business with them continues brisk.

"We never saw the like of it, the way business keeps up since we moved into our new store," was the answer given at the store of J. M. Fox & Son, Sunday p. m., after another morning's rush.

The sudden end of the mild weather, a fortnight ago, caused those engaged in landscape gardening no little worry, for the ground has been frozen ever since, thus calling a halt in outdoor shrub and bulb planting.

H. W. Koerner, the Wauwatosa dahlia and gladiolus specialist, reported having had about 5,000 dahlias and about a million gladioli still in the field when Jack Frost put down his foot in earnest.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will be held December 7, at the new quarters, in the St. Charles hotel. The election of officers for the year 1912 will take place and a large attendance is necessary to help a good thing along.

Visitors: James Matthewson, Sheboygan, Wis.; N. Lassen, Racine, Wis.

...NEWS NOTES...

Chatham, N. Y.—R. E. Shuphelt is spending the winter at Fruitland Park, Fla.

Williamsville, N. Y.—C. F. Christenson is shipping to Buffalo some grand chrysanthemums. His son, Charles, now is associated with him and proving a successful grower.

Ilion, N. Y.—Fire destroyed one greenhouse, 25x65 feet, and the office at the Ward G. Gordon place November 20. The loss was about $2,000, with $1,500 insurance.

Binghamton, N. Y.—F. Shearer & Son are large exhibitors at the Winter Exposition now being held at the Armory. Chrysanthemums were never finer and are in good demand.

Utica, N. Y.—Frank Baker was the fortunate candidate for mayor at the recent election, but says he will find time to oversee his extensive florists' business and keep in touch with the boys, as usual.

Altamonte Springs, Fla.—The Royal Fern Nurseries have five acres here covered with lath houses, planted to Asparagus plumosus nanus. They also have a fine irrigating plant, obtaining their water supply from a nearby lake.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The Tomlinson-Key Floral Co., a newly organized firm, has opened a flower store at 40 East Forsyth street. The store is described as one of the best equipped and most attractive places of the kind in the state. Both members of the company are well known in this city, having been associated for some time with Mills the Florist.

Akron, O.—H. Heepe's Sons recently executed the most elaborate decoration in the history of the trade in this city. It was for the Raymond-Yule wedding and included both church and home. For space decorated and quantity of stock required, nothing so large ever had been called for here, and the skill with which Heepe's Sons handled the work added materially to their reputation as decorators.

Fort Collins, Colo.—The friends of R. D. (Bud) Mauff, of the First National Bank, regret to learn that he will shortly leave Fort Collins for Denver, where he will enter the florists' business. Mr. Mauff is the oldest of the present staff at the bank and has served in every capacity in the institution. Together with his brother, A. E. Mauff, state horticulturist, he will conduct the Mauff Floral Co., one of the leading establishments in Denver, located at 1225 Logan avenue.

Lake City, Minn.—The new greenhouses of the Jewell Nursery Co. have been in operation for some weeks and the offices, also, are almost completed. The range comprises seven houses, four of which are each 27x150, two 24x150 and one 20x150. Charles Nordine has charge of the houses and is growing a fine grade of carnations, chrysanthemums, roses and other flowers. R. D. Underwood, of the firm, assisted by Mrs. Underwood, recently entertained the employees at a social gathering in Brotherhood hall.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
Officers for 1912: President, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; vice-president, August Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill.; secretary, John Young, Bedford Hills, N. Y.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
Annual convention, Chicago, Ill., August 20 to 23, 1912.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

ALL attention now is centered on the preparations for Christmas.

THE year 1912 promises to be a favorable one for the building of greenhouses.

GOOD holly becomes no more plentiful as the years pass, but a fair supply is reported for the present season.

BOXWOOD has become one of the big Christmas specialties—especially fine for cemetery wreaths, as well as for bells, balls and window wreaths.

BULK bouquet green will be a decidedly scarce article long before Christmas arrives. The average holder of bulk green needs all he has in sight for wreathing.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE finest chrysanthemum plant of the season was shown at the exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York. It was grown by John Canning, superintendent for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y. J. W. H. Campbell was the gardener.

IN passing on a protest arising over the assessment of duty on ginseng root, the Board of General Appraisers holds that ginseng is not nursery or greenhouse stock, as claimed by the importer, but a drug, and that the rate of duty depends on its crude or cleansed state.

IN the last couple of years the price of freshly imported plants of Cattleya labiata has advanced from about $40 per case to about $65 per case, the number of plants per case increasing as the size of the plants has decreased. Predictions are made by collectors that within another couple of years the price will be $100 per case, with a still further decrease in size of the plants.

EXPRESS SERVICE IMPROVED.

The following supplementary report of the Tariff and Legislative Committee has been forwarded to Secretary Dorner, of the S. A. F., by Chairman John G. Esler, of that committee:

The Tariff and Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. is able to announce that in the controversy with the United States Express Co., which has been going on during the last six months, over the inefficient delivery of cut flowers, the company has acceded to the representations of the committee and has established a satisfactory and efficient delivery, without an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The chairman desires to state that if the florists of the country could only understand the effectiveness of concrete action, over individual effort, in dealing with corporations, every producer of and dealer in floral products would become a member of the S. A. F. forthwith. John G. Esler, Chairman.

IF you did not have cause for Thanksgiving you are entitled to sympathy as being the exception among florists. The rate at which the trade is growing never was beaten.

KIND WORDS.

Editors are like other people; they like to be told of it when people think they are doing the right thing. Also the publisher likes to know that the editor is earning his salary, for a paper so edited that it pleases the subscribers is sure to please the advertisers.

Enclosed find $1 for The Review for another year. It is practical and just what I need in my business.—J. P. Murphy, Independence, Ia., November 20, 1911.

I enclose check for $1, for which you will please extend my subscription to The Review for another year. You are giving the trade a big dollar's worth and I boost you all I can, for a boost for The Review is a boost for the trade in general.—W. Benning, Sr., St Joseph, Mich., November 24, 1911.

OBITUARY.

Wellington Hughes.

Wellington Hughes, one of the most widely known of Michigan florists, died November 18 at his home at Hillsdale. He was born in Utica, N. Y., November 12, 1832, and was therefore 79 years and 6 days old when he died. He located at Hillsdale in 1848 and while a young man worked at the trade of carpenter and cabinet maker. In the civil war he took charge of a party of bridge builders, and returned home after being injured while engaged in this work. After the war he engaged in business as a florist and followed that vocation for more than forty years. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and served as member of the session for twenty-one years. He was the oldest Odd Fellow in the city. November 19, 1861, he married Elizabeth J. Porter, who survives, as do their two children, Charles and Clara Hughes, both of this city.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Last week's business in the Chicago wholesale cut flower market presented few special features. There was a large supply of stock, due largely to the fact the chrysanthemum oversupply continued and served to curtail the demand for other flowers, depressing prices. Had it not been for the unwieldy receipts of mums, other stock would have moved much better. This became apparent toward the end of the week, when receipts were reduced both by weather conditions and the disposition of the growers to hold back for the anticipated stronger market for Thanksgiving. With reduced receipts and a fair volume of business, the week ended with the market well cleaned up and prices moderately firm.

The present week opened with much heavier receipts, for during the first three days the growers poured in all the stock they had been holding back for Thanksgiving. The volume of business for the holiday proved to be probably the largest on record, exceeding even the excellent record of last year. There was, however, a manifest disposition to limit prices. The buyers would not pay anything like fancy rates for stock. The exception was on

We call special attention to our VIOLETS

THE CREAM OF THE CROPS IS HERE

A lot of Retail Stores through the country are doing without Violets because they do not appreciate how well Violets will ship—and others are getting along with Violets not so good as they might have, simply because they do not realize that the Violets we handle are decidedly better than the average. We are supplying the Retailers who have built up the best Violet trade in their respective cities.

CARNATIONS

There is a full crop of Carnations on—the heaviest crop of the season to date. Quality is fine in all colors, and we want to hear from all buyers who need first-class stock. If not thoroughly satisfied with your present source of supply, try us. We can please you.

KILLARNEYS

We never have been so well fixed on Roses as we are this season. You can get here all the Killarneys you need—and those who know the market recognize that, length for length, our Killarneys carry the finest heads of any roses to be had.

With the assurance of a full crop for Christmas, we are now ready to book your order. Write us about your needs.

BEAUTIES

The run on our Beauties has been heavy of late, but we are still filling every order that reaches us in time. All you have to do is to get your order in early to get it filled here—fine stock, mostly long-stemmed.

We handle the finest Orchids coming into the Chicago market and can fill all orders.

Order VALLEY of Us

If you have had any difficulty getting your Valley orders filled, it was because you didn't order of us. Always plenty of Fancy Valley here.

HEADQUARTERS FOR EASTER LILIES

We always have Easter Lilies, every day in the year, and the finest there are—home grown—they go out in perfect condition.

American Beauties. Beauties have now been scarce so long that the buyers recognize the condition and are willing to pay the price—only the demand for Beauties has fallen off materially in the last fortnight. Roses also have brought advanced prices this week, for the crop has been shortened, as is usually the case at this date, and the supply of first-class roses now is light. There has been considerable deterioration in roses in the last week; Killarney has lost in color and many of the flowers are softer. There has been no increase in the supply of short stems; a larger proportion than usual is the extra long grade, stock for which the growers expect from 10 cents to 18 cents or even 20 cents. Richmond has been in good request because of the shortage of Beauties.

There was no shortage of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving, but it was an average low quality of stock that was offered. Buyers, accustomed to large supplies of first-class Bonnaffon at low prices, were extremely critical of the Thanksgiving offerings and refused to buy except at low rates. There were few flowers that were worth as much as $3 per dozen, but there was even less demand for this grade. Most of the calls were for stock at from $1.50 to $2 per dozen, with about 20 cents per flower the limit that could be obtained on quantities. The pompons were pretty well over. Most of the offerings were Klondyke, Diana or Mrs. Beu, the yellow having the principal demand.

The carnation market failed to make good the sanguine anticipations of the growers. The supply was adequate and, while some fancy prices were paid for strictly fancy stock, principally red, the average run of first-class carnations did not make as high prices as had been expected—there were too many of them for the demand. There has been some little flurry in violets. The quality is excellent, which undoubtedly has added to the demand, and the supply, both of singles and doubles, has not come up to expectations. Prices on cattleyas have fluctuated to an unusual degree, some of the best flowers having sold for $10 per dozen; others at a much lower rate, due to larger supplies than had been expected. Cypripediums and miscellaneous orchids have been in large supply. Easter lilies are coming in heavily again and there are increased receipts of callas. Stevia has come in a deluge; everybody has it in quantity. Sweet peas are more plentiful and longer in stem. Mignonette is arriving and Paper Whites and Romans are coming in heavily. All greens are abundant.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. to Move.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will remove its wholesale store from the present location at 35 East Randolph street to the much larger quarters on the second floor at 72 to 74 East Randolph street. A lease was made last week, beginning January 1 and running five years and four months. The floor is 40x169, facing Randolph street, with an alley on the east and north, giving excellent light. There are good front and rear entrances. It is the intention to fit up a wholesale store which will compare favorably with anything of the kind in the United States. The lease on the present quarters has some

LILIES

A BIG LOT JUST READY TO CUT.

Now that the Mums are passing, you will want our Fancy Easter Lilies. We have arranged to supply these in very large quantity and the cut is here. Can furnish in thousand lots on short notice, usually without notice. Stock cut to suit all buyers, some open, some half open and some tight. We are Lily headquarters—don't forget it! Callas also are ready.

FANCY STEVIA IN QUANTITY

Can now supply the very best long Stevia in quantity—Can take care of every order. You need a daily supply. Let us furnish it. $2.00 per 100; $7.50 per 500.

CARNATIONS

We are strong on Carnations—no doubt of our ability to take good care of you with the grade of stock you need and at the price you can afford to pay.

KILLARNEYS

Our best and largest growers are on with crops of splendid Killarneys. This is stock that can't be beaten for length of bud, richness of color, or stem.

Now On with a Specially Fine Crop of Richmond Roses

ORCHIDS

Nowhere is there a finer supply of Cattleyas. So good are these that many buyers have placed standing orders for daily or every other day shipment. Don't you want to do the same?

VIOLETS

Let us add a few Violets, double or single, to your order. When you see the quality of the stock as it reaches you, you will want them regularly. Glad to book standing orders.

We still can supply Mums of all grades and colors.

RED BERRIES FOR CHRISTMAS

We have arranged for a large supply of Red Berries for Christmas. It is first-class stock and we are now booking orders at $1.50 to $3 00 per case, according to size of case. Will send 10 cases, assorted sizes, for $15.00. Don't let this pass.

NOW BOOKING CHRISTMAS ORDERS Boxwood, Wild Smilax, Holly, Mistletoe, Holly Wreaths, Bouquet Green, Evergreen Wreathing, Laurel Wreathing. Don't place orders elsewhere without getting our quotations. We meet the market, always, and usually can go one better on any price that is quoted, always considering that best grades are wanted. We do not handle the berryless holly or dried-out, colorless greens.

months to run and if some other wholesaler takes it off their hands the Poehlmanns will let the fixtures go with the lease and start entirely new at the new place. The plan is to move as soon as possible.

The new location is one door east of the building occupied by the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. and it marks one more step in the progress of the wholesale market eastward toward Michigan avenue. Naturally, those who already are east of Wabash welcome each one who joins them, for the buyers invariably follow the stock.

Various Notes.

Considerable discussion has resulted from the publication in the Chicago morning papers, November 16, of a notice of the dissolution of the corporation carrying the name of Chicago Flower Growers' Association. The notice was in the regular syndicate report of corporation changes from Springfield and was wholly without foundation. The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has not dissolved and has made no change whatsoever in its organization. Inquiry at the office of the Secretary of State at Springfield has failed to show any basis for the false report. The supposition that it might be the Chicago Flower Growers' Co., the corporation which formerly ran the Flower Growers' market, is unfounded. Secretary Sinner states that this corporation has no intention of giving up its charter, although at present conducting no business except collection of outstanding accounts.

J. H. Burdett, secretary of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, is sending out a letter urging growers and others to prepare for the spring show. The management realizes the difficulty of preparing for an exhibition at a different date than the customary one and feels that there is great danger of a deficiency in exhibits unless unusual effort is made by those who are interested in the success of floriculture to insure a good display. The date of the exhibition is March 11 to 17. Those who have not received the premium list should address Mr. Burdett at 162 West One Hundred and Fourth place.

One of the week's visitors has been H. E. Rebelings, of Corinne, Utah, who is a brother of Mrs. C. H. Fisk. Years ago he ran the World's Fair Flower Store at 804 Milwaukee avenue and his greenhouses in Park Ridge were the first in that now greenhouse center. At Corinne Mr. Rebelings still is in the flower business, but he deals exclusively in funeral designs of artificial flowers, for the mining camps.

C. M. Dickinson was confined to his home by illness several days last week.

The Chicago Carnation Co. has given the name The Herald to the red carnation which won the first prize at St. Louis and which was certificated several times this season as No. 186.

J. A. Budlong this week received the final consignment of a crop of cosmos grown under glass. The variety was Lady Lenox and the quality was superb, but Phil Schupp says the demand has steadily been diminishing since the end of the regular cosmos season.

Bassett & Washburn cut the last of their chrysanthemums early last week.

Fred Klingel is back at the books at John Kruchten's after a fortnight's term of jury service. He confirms the report that jurymen have had a raise in pay, for he got his little $3 for each day's service.

Hoerber Bros. have narrowed down their list of carnations to five varieties: Beacon, Victory, White Enchantress, White Perfection and Enchantress. These varieties do splendidly with them, and by having only a few kinds they can offer in quantities.

N. J. Wietor says that Wietor Bros. have just begun to cut Yanoma chrysanthemum and that they still have to cut Merry Christmas.

At Peter Reinberg's, Tim Matchen says that the Thanksgiving rush exceeded his expectations.

The Market.

After several weeks of dull trade it is cheering to be able to report a decided improvement in business. With the approach of Thanksgiving and the passing of chrysanthemums, which have for some weeks choked the market, the outlook is much brighter. There is no scarcity of flowers and any striking advance in prices is not looked for. The leading chrysanthemums now are Chadwick, Jeanne Nonin, Patty, Maud Dean, Bonnaffon, Eaton and Yellow Eaton and Gold Mine. After the present week the supply of mums will not cut much figure in the market. Carnations are of exceptional quality. White Wonder seems to be the leader in white and will be heavily grown next season in preference to White Perfection. Winsor and Enchantress are both less in evidence, but Gloriosa has jumped into favor. Beacon remains the leader in scarlets and no crimson has yet displaced Fenn.

Roses are not in heavy crop and are selling well. American Beauties are of fine quality and selling well. Killarneys of both colors are in excellent demand, and of the yellow roses Mrs. Ward is seen in the greatest abundance. Mrs. Waddell and Lady Hillingdon are, however, selling well. Carnots are over for the season. Richmonds are seen of much improved quality, as well as Rhea Reid. Violets are up in price. They had a great sale for the Harvard-Yale football game November 25. Valley is abundant, but is selling somewhat better. There is an adequate supply of lilies, both longiflorum and speciosum; the latter does not sell.

Paper White narcissi are in oversupply. Roman hyacinths are not yet plentiful. Mignonette as yet is rather poor. Antirrhinums continue to sell well, particularly pink shades. Some good pansies are coming in and sell well. Calendulas and cosmos sell poorly. The supply of Cattleya labiata from most of the growers is nearly over and cattleyas are selling higher. Some Trianæ and Percivaliana are already appearing. Cypripediums move slowly, as do gardenias. For Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri there is a good demand this week.

Pot plants are in demand, especially Lorraine begonias, cyclamens, azaleas, primulas, palms, ferns, crotons and araucarias.

Sweet Pea Society.

Interest in the sweet pea show to be held in July, 1912, is growing. President Sim is working with characteristic energy to make it an unqualified success. He has already secured numerous special prizes, including a $50 challenge cup each from Joseph Breck & Sons, Henry Penn, T. F. Galvin and the Boston Cut Flower Co.; a $25 cup from M. J. Tuohy; a gold medal from the Lord & Burnham Co.; a cut glass bowl from H. R. Comley, and several other prizes. Mr. Sim, himself, contributed $25 cash to the private gardeners' section. Special premiums are offered for amateurs, school gardens and school children.

specialists, handles some thousands daily and secures top prices. He grows Princess of Wales exclusively.

J. T. Butterworth, of South Framingham, has his Cattleya labiata now in good crop, when other growers are finishing cutting theirs. He is a specialist on lily of the valley, which he grows finely.

No such indoor grown pansies as William Sim's have ever before been seen in the Boston market. His single violets now are also of grand quality. He had a heavy Thanksgiving pick.

Sidney Hoffman's decorations for the Hunnewell ball at the Hotel Somerset November 24 were among the most elaborate and artistic ever seen in Boston and brought him many compliments.

John Barr's well grown cyclamens are missed in the local market this year, as he is growing nothing but carnations. His son, Geo. P. Barr, who acts as salesman, rarely has any flowers to show unless one visits the market early. His new variegated, Mrs. B. P. Cheney, is rendering a good account of itself, and finer Pink Delight it would be hard to find.

William T. Walke, of Salem, is strong on Lorraine begonias, cyclamens and poinsettias, all of which are grown in Mr. Walke's usual finished way.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report shipping unusually heavy of late.

The Thomas J. Grey Co. reports a splendid bulb season, with sales far in excess of 1910.

John McFarland, of North Easton, had a fine cut of Bonnaffon and Eaton mums for Thanksgiving. He has an excellent lot of poinsettias in pots and benches for Christmas, and his usual fine cut of valley.

Littlefield & Wyman, of North Abington, are excellent growers of carnations. Especially fine there are Enchantress, Beacon and White Perfection.

Trustees elected at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were Thomas Roland, C. S. Sargent, H. F. Holl and Thomas Allan.

W. W. Tailby, of Wellesley, has a nice lot of longiflorums and speciosums.

Charles Rapp, of Melrose Highlands, who was formerly gardener on a private estate in Millbrook, N. Y., has a nice crop of mums and carnations.

Arthur Griffin, of Woburn, stands in the front ranks among local carnationists. His Pink Delight, Beacon, Enchantress and White Perfection are of extra quality.

The present fall has been a favorable one for local nurseries, the ground being more moist than in some years. Sales have been unusually heavy of both evergreen and deciduous stock.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The last week in November has been fair rather than first-class in the cut flower market. The Army and Navy football game, so important when the market has been depleted by the heavy Thanksgiving demand, proved unimportant by itself. The vast crowd came; there was entertaining, but it was insufficient to affect the market in the face of a quiet Saturday. Yellow chrysanthemums hardly felt the difference. Violets might have felt it but for certain adroit moves in the game by sellers and buyers. The last three days of the current week, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, saw a healthier condition than the three preceding. There was a good out-of-town demand, with values more evenly maintained. Chrysanthemums continued in heavy supply at moderate prices, with a strong probability that this condition will continue for a week or ten days. Beauties and choice carnations are buoyant; the rest of the list shows little change, except that the activity in gardenias was greater and there was a temporary scarcity of short roses.

Mrs. Ehret.

Fred Ehret is happy in the partner of his joys and sorrows being likewise the partner in his chosen profession. Mrs. Ehret is as capable as her husband in the intelligent execution of orders from the most fastidious flower buyers. Mrs. Ehret loves flowers; she says that love for them is necessary to achieve success, quite as necessary as love for one's chosen calling is to success in any work of life. Mrs. Ehret believes in showing the prospective customer the pretty effects that can be obtained from the flowers in stock, rather than in taking orders for something that may prove difficult to procure or unsatisfactory when obtained. "We like to talk pink roses when we have plenty of them," she said. Mrs. Ehret thinks that the pompons are increasing faster in popular favor than the larger flowered Japanese varieties because they are so pretty for table decorations, where the big flowers are often out of place; she sometimes uses pompons in ferneries, where these cut sprays are lovely among the growing ferns and last as long as in water, when the soil is kept moist. Mrs. Ehret's feeling for chrysanthemums is like that of most persons for mechanics; she is glad when they come and glad when they go; they make such a dirt you must keep sweeping all the time. Mrs. Ehret has a keen sense of humor; when speaking of a competitor whose shingle no longer ornaments the thoroughfare nearby, she said, with a merry laugh: "She has retired on the profits of the business."

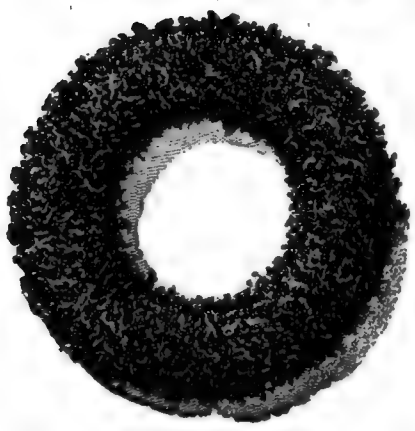
Shamokin, Pa.

The missionary work accomplished by our city retailers has a striking illustration in a notable wedding in Shamokin recently, when Senator McConnell's daughter was the bride. Senator McConnell is best known in this city as a member of the Catlin investigating committee, which has been investigating our municipal affairs. In fact, Senator McConnell was the only member, besides the chairman, who was faithful in attending the meetings. The chrysanthemum season was at its height when the wedding occurred. The father of the bride, impressed, doubtless, by the artistic displays of the Philadelphia retailers, decided to give Shamokin a surprise. He gave Stahl's Greenhouses the order. Balthasar Stahl acted as decorator-in-chief, while two leading Shamokin florists, Harris & Bro. and H. P. Campbell, acted as his lieutenants. The effect was beautiful and Shamokin is still talking of the handsome chrysanthemum and foliage plants and their arrangement.

Ancient Egyptian Ware.

A new pottery, now quite abundant, distinct from all other potteries in style and finish, ornamented with figures suggestive of the dwellers in the land of the pyramids and the Nile, colored in many rich oriental hues, embellished with cord and tassels to match —this is Egyptian ware. But you say, "Must we go to Cairo for these curious vases?" Not at all. Mr. Bayersdorfer has secured the exclusive privilege in this country. I have not a doubt he will let you have some of them.



The Palm in the House.

Charles B. Stahl carries into successful practice an idea which, while not new, is interesting. Mr. Stahl finds that a majority of the plants rented by the month are unsatisfactory to the customer and unprofitable to the florist because of the injury done to the plants through lack of care. They soon look badly and return in such bad condition as to render them useless for further service. Mr. Stahl's plan is to change the plant each week, looking after them meantime if necessary. This gives the customer a handsome plant through the season, so that the slightly increased charge made necessary by the extra work is cheerfully paid. Mr. Stahl derives two benefits from the plan; one is the increase in his business occasioned by satisfied customers, who tell their friends and do not use artificial plants in preference to natural ones; the other is the saving of loss in his stock.

Christmas Plants.

The rapid growth in the popularity of plants for the holidays is due to two things, their beauty and their presence. Unlike cut flowers, they can be shown to the prospective buyer in advance of the holidays without danger of tarnish and their price can be safely quoted. The retail florist turns to plants gladly at the holidays; they furnish a field for artistic work and at the same time give him a firm anchor to leeward in the event of a tempest on the cut flower sea.

In the earlier days of plant growing for the Christmas holidays many varieties were brought into bloom that experience proves unsuitable. The azalea, for instance, under present conditions is not at its best when forced so early. There are only two or three varieties of azaleas today that can be flowered so early successfully. Even these compare unfavorably with the azaleas at Easter. Their beauty is completely overshadowed by the luster of the plants suitable for early flowering. Three plants stand in the front rank, today, of those that will bloom at Christmas, the poinsettia, the begonia and the cyclamen. After them, the berried plants, the lesser flowering plants and the ferns and foliage plants complete the holiday assortment.

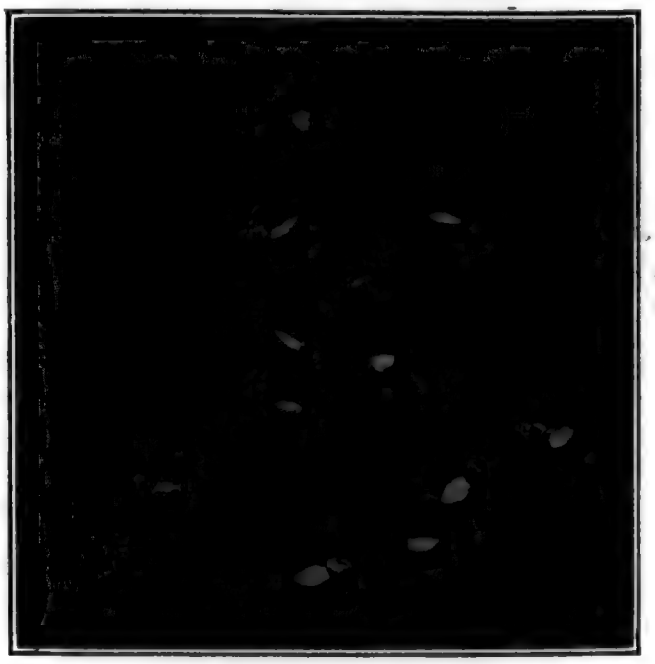
Wishing to be informed on the progress that has been made on the growing and the finishing of plants for Christmas, an appointment was made with Robert A. Craig to look over his company's houses. An idea can be formed of the wonderful growth of the holiday plant industry from a remark of Mr. Craig's, that the express company has offered to send a representative out to his place this week with orders to remain there continuously until Christmas to waybill all outgoing cases, thus insuring correctness of name and destination; also that the express company has prepared printed cards ready to send to its representatives at every point of transfer, instructing them to forward the plants with promptness to their destination.



The poinsettias were the first flowering plants shown by Mr. Craig. There are two varieties, single and double. Some are grown singly, but many are made up in pans with asparagus and ferns. The double poinsettia is the more showy, although less generally known. A large proportion of the smaller plants are grown singly for basket work. Fine poinsettias seem too slender to meet the market requirements as specimen plants; they are more frequently made up three to a pan. A house of them grown in this way, with the smaller basket plants on the side tables, is a magnificent sight, the bright red bracts just showing color contrasting beautifully with the green of the well hardened foliage.

There is a change in the personnel of the begonia; Gloire de Lorraine is rivaled by Glory of Cincinnati. The older variety still is grown in large numbers. The plants are sturdy and the flower buds have been removed, so that a splendid crop that will not be perfect too early is just coming; the exquisite shade of pink still stands unrivaled. The robust vigor of Glory of Cincinnati, its magnificent cherry-pink flowers, combined with leathery foliage, make it a rival not to be despised. Mr. Craig has increased the quantity of Glory of Cincinnati threefold, making the number somewhere near equal to that of Gloire de Lorraine, so that a fair test of popularity is possible.

The cyclamen easily retains its place in the front rank. Mr. Craig has followed the laws of health of the cyclamen closely. He has improved the strain by importation and by selection and now has some magnificent varieties. Here, too, the buds have been kept off until the middle of November and now the first blooms of the coming crop show color. The plants are divided into two sections, the specimens in medium and large pots, the basket plants in smaller pots. The first section has the colors separate. The new salmon-pink is in as full force as the others. One variety has peperomia-like foliage, a pleasing contrast with the green of the others, Mr. Craig thinks.

The ferns are an all-important family. The leading varieties of nephrolepis and several of the novelties, grown to perfection from basket size to specimen. Heretofore ferns have been grown for the holidays, then jammed together, those left, I mean, remaining uncared for until sold or dumped. Mr. Craig believes the fern is worthy of the best care throughout the year and is giving cultural skill and ample space. Besides the nephrolepis, two ferns are grown in 4-inch pots for hampers. Both promise well. They are Adiantum hybridum, bushy and clean, and the so-called hardy Farleyense.

The feature of the foliage plants is the combination made up in cedar tubs. A highly colored Dracæna terminalis, a showy croton, a silver and green Pandanus Veitchii and some graceful ferns skillfully planted in a 10-inch tub make a gift both beautiful and durable, because they are now established. Perfect specimens of Ficus pandurata, single and triplets, are grown in surprisingly small pots because Ficus pandurata rebels as a child on a cold morn-

Boxwood Sprays and Their Uses Today

It has taken an important place among the decorative material used by the florists.

It has come into favor with the wealthy and poor.

For the Holiday decorations, interwoven with berries, immortelles, statice, flowers or other decorative material, it has no equal in richness of color and durability.

Its neatness in garlands recommends its use freely in wedding and ball room decorations and in formal festoons, an especially harmonious decoration for the banquet hall or dining room.

Massed into wreath form it is an incense in memoriam.

HOLLY-HOLLY-HOLLY

I have just returned from a two weeks' trip through the Holly sections of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and have contracted for my supply for the season of 1911. I expect to have several cars of very fine, dark green, well-berried Swamp Holly. I will have it packed as usual in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and guaranteed as represented. My first car will arrive in Philadelphia about December 1st. I filled all orders received last year and gave entire satisfaction and I hope to do so again this season. My price this year on orders received up to December 1st is $3.00 per case. After that date, at market price, which I am quite sure will be higher on account of scarcity.

HOLLY WREATHS
My Holly Wreaths will be made of the very finest selected dark green Holly on 10-inch hoops, and will be well-berried. $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to quality.

LAUREL WREATHING
My Laurel Wreathing will be made of the brightest Swamp Laurel that it is possible to secure, in 50-yard lengths. Price, 2½c and 3c per yard.

MISTLETOE
My Mistletoe, from North Carolina, will be extra selected and full of berries. Per case, $3.50 to $5.00, according to quality.
Lycopodium, in 10-yd. rolls, 5c to 8c per yd.

I make a specialty of the above and guarantee all goods as represented or money refunded. Cash must accompany all orders.

F. L. Tornquist has a new house, 20x80, completed last summer, and now occupied with plants in good condition.

The Central Seed & Bulb Co. has the material on the ground for a new propagating house, 15x32, which will soon be in readiness for use. They are harvesting a fine crop of gladioli, being especially fortunate in having a good growing season. Dahlias have rotted some from the exceedingly wet weather of the last month.

DAYTON, O.

Ray and Herbert Bartholomew and Roy Ewing were among the Nimrods who took advantage of the first day of the hunting season. Their report of the day was that they had a most enjoyable time, while their friends say they had an enjoyable feast on the results of the day's hunt, which well repaid the boys for their time. Not only did the cottontails suffer, but quails likewise.

Samuel Kurtz, who at the first of the month embarked in business for himself, says that, after considering local conditions, he has been quite satisfied with results. R. A. B.

CUCUMBERS IN POTS.

Will you be so kind as to give me some instructions in regard to the proper method of starting cucumbers in pots? Will the paper pots answer the purpose as well as the red clay ones, or will the quart strawberry baskets do as well as anything? How should the soil be prepared? Will sheep manure do for this purpose? If so, how should it be used? I am thinking of planting about January 1 and wish to know how long I can let them stay in the pots from the time of planting. Will it do them any harm to leave them in the pots until the latter part of February or the middle of March? These will be planted in the open field here, in Florida, after danger of frost is over. Can they be staked while in the pots and be taken from the stakes when I am going to set them out in the field? I have heard that if the vine is disturbed when it starts to run, it will not make cukes. Is there anything in this and can the vines be moved when in bloom? R. J. J.

In starting cucumbers inside, for planting into the field, many growers take square pieces of sod, turn them upside down and plant the seed in them. When the plants are about a month old they are lifted out of the hotbed along with the pieces of sod and are carried to the field; the sod holds the roots together. If left too long they do not do well. They must be watered well when planted out in the field. They can also be started in pots—two seeds in a 4-inch pot. Clay pots are better than paper ones.

The trouble in transplanting to the field is that the plants are taller and more tender than those grown in the open, and they are whipped by the wind and usually are stunted somewhat in the operation. Some growers claim that seed planted in the open at the same time will come about as quickly and bear better. It is quite a change for the plants and much depends upon the rain and wind about the time they are put out. I would advise experimenting in a small way first, before trying it extensively.

The soil should be light and loose and should have about one-fourth manure in it. If sheep manure is used, a much smaller quantity will be required, as it is much stronger, but does not loosen the soil up quite so well. The plants must go to the field not later than four weeks from the date of planting the seed. H. G.

H. & D. FLORISTS' BOX

Universally used for shipping cut flowers and designs. The dead-air cells form a perfect non-conductor of heat and cold, thus preserving contents much longer than ordinary wood box.

H. & D. Florists' Box can be used several times Is much lighter than the ordinary box, thus saving in express charges.

HOLLY

Why Does Barnard's Holly Lead in Quality?

Because we send our own men from Chicago to the Holly Swamps to superintend the selection, cutting and packing, during the entire season. They are men of twenty years' experience in packing Holly, and are well acquainted with the requirements of the most critical florists. They are instructed that "the best is just good enough for our trade."

The Holly crop this year is exceptionally fine; the best in many seasons—plenty of red berries and dark glossy leaves. Will sell well.

HOLLY—Eastern Grown

Our Selected Fancy Florist Grade

Full size case of 16 cu. ft., $5.00; 3 cases for $13.50; per half case, $2.50; per bbl., $1.75.

Larger lots at lower prices.

BARNARD'S

HOLLY WREATHS

They are made on our premises; have style in appearance and are perfect in workmanship. We use select Eastern Holly only in manufacturing them. The very fact that some of the most critical retail florists buy their holly wreaths from us season after season is sufficient guarantee. We have the most competent and experienced operators in our employ, and can make very lowest prices on any special sizes required.

Single Holly Wreaths

Made on Rattan Rings

12 inch, per doz., $1.50; per 100, $10.00; per 1,000, $90.00.

Double Holly Wreaths

Made on Rattan Rings

12 inch, wound on both sides, per doz., $2.25; per 100, $18.00.

Specially made wreaths of larger sizes at correspondingly low figures.

Prices herein named are for wreaths made on rattan rings. They should not be considered as competing with lightly made wreaths wound upon wire. If such are wanted for special purposes write for quotations and state quantity desired.

IMPORTED IMMORTELLES

Best French grown; our own importation. Large bunches of well formed flowers dyed in bright colors as follows: White, Scarlet, Pink, Light Blue, Dark Blue, Purple, Green.

Be sure to buy sufficient.

Order early; have them when needed.

Per bunch, 35c; per doz., $3.75; per 100, $30.00.

Natural Yellow, per bunch, 30c; per doz., $3.25; per 100, $25.00.

CHRISTMAS TREES

Notwithstanding the immense damage forest fires have done to Christmas trees in Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, we succeeded in locating some Christmas tree swamps containing well branched trees of perfect shape. All our trees are selected for form, quality and appearance and inspected before tying by our own agents. We handle both Wisconsin and Vermont trees.

Please do not confound these trees with the common stock, cut to count only, which generally flood the market. Our trees are carefully selected, graded and bundled so that they retain all their beauty and shape. We carry a full supply and can fill all orders very promptly. Sizes run from 4 ft. up to 25 ft.

	Each	Doz.	100.
4 to 6 feet	$0.20	$2.00	$15.00
6 to 8 feet	.30	3.25	25.00
8 to 10 feet	.50	5.00	40.00
10 to 12 feet	1.00	9.00	70.00

Special rates on large quantities and carload lots.

Larger trees for Churches and Halls, each, $2.00, $3.00, $5.00, etc., according to size. They run from 15 to 20 feet. Name size desired or amount you wish to expend and we will send good value.

Fancy Little Christmas Trees

EXTRA SELECTED SPRUCE

Fancy little trees for tables, etc., 3 to 4 feet high, mounted on stands cut out of birchwood, very ornamental for clubs, hotels, parlors, etc.

Evergreen Wreathing

MADE FROM INDIAN PICKED GREEN

(FOR FESTOONING)

Unsurpassed for Beautifying Homes, Churches, Stores

Our Evergreen Wreathing is made upon our own premises by experienced, competent employes. It is ready for immediate use and can be cut to any length without unrolling. Made of selected green, wound by hand upon wire.

Owing to the scarcity of raw material, please write or wire for quotations.

Tied in coils of 20 yards each; 10 coils, 200 yards, in a crate. Measurement guaranteed. Standard grade.

Quotations mailed on application.

Evergreen Wreaths

Made from selected Indian picked green, wound upon 12-inch rattan rings, and decorated with red Immortelles. A very handsome wreath, holding color for weeks and weeks.

Original cases contain 50 Single Wreaths or 50 double Wreaths.

Single, per doz., $1.10; 100, $9.00
Double, " 1.80; " 12.50

Our Double wreaths are especially recommended. You will find they meet with ready sale.

We will not disappoint you either as regards quality or good service.

Seven Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There has been the usual pre-Thanksgiving apathy in the retail trade and comparatively little general business was done. Numerous funerals as well as several coming-out parties, teas and receptions, with a few large weddings, have combined, however, to make a satisfactory situation. Slightly colder weather is expected to contribute to the optimistic outlook for the coming weeks. Prices have stiffened slightly and will advance more during the next few days. There is a scarcity of good white mums and pinks are practically all gone. There is a plethora of yellows. Carnations are coming in better quality and quantity and roses are showing fine form.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held November 20 at the rooms in Swarts hall, 96 Westminster street, at which there was a good attendance. President Robert Johnston conducted the meeting.

The reports of officers and committees showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition. The committee on coöperation with the Rhode Island Horticultural Society reported that the committee had assisted the latter society on the occasion of the recent fall exhibition with much success, and that the prospects for more satisfactory results during another season were bright. The club was represented on the board of judges by Cornelius Hartstra and Eugene McCarron.

Two names were added to the membership list of the club, those of Olney H. Williams, of Johnston, and John Marshall, of North Providence. It was voted to hold a banquet similar to those held in previous years, and a committee consisting of Eugene A. Appleton, Alexander Macrae and Michael Sweepalms. The store has a double front and has been entirely refitted and finished in white and gold. Two large refrigerators in the rear of the store furnish a large cold storage capacity. The display of cut flowers and plants was especially fine, particularly a lot of single, pompon and anemone chrysanthemums in pots, which seemed to strike the fancy of the buyers and found a ready sale. Louis Haury & Sons, the proprietors, have long been identified with the florists' business in this city, and up to the present time have handled their business in the city market house and at the greenhouses. They are well equipped to take care of a large volume of business, as the plant at Heiman street has been greatly increased by the addition of several up-to-date houses and the remodeling of the old ones.

Geny Bros., in their beautiful new quarters on North Fifth street, have a grand display of pot mums and their cut mums were extra well grown. This firm is growing rapidly and their range of houses at West Nashville continues to grow. The old range in town will ultimately be moved out west and all the growing done at that place. The stock at the new range is in the finest of shape and the fine lot of Lorraine and Glory of Cincinnati begonias was in tiptop condition. The carnations and roses are coming good; in fact, the whole place shows the results of careful and painstaking management.

Never in years has the plant of the Joy Floral Co. looked so well as it does this fall. House after house of roses show the pink of condition. A house of American Beauties, which promises a heavy Christmas crop, is the finest I ever saw. One house devoted to cyclamens gives promise of a bountiful supply of this popular pot plant. Another of begonias, Lorraine and Cincinnati, will be just right. The mums that have been seen here were fine and the writer was introduced to Dorothy Dimple and fell in love with her right away. Golden Age was also extra fine. Altogether T. C. Joy has a lot of stock in his houses that he may be proud of and will well support the energies of the selling staff at the store on Church street, which, under the supervision of T. H. Joy, our latest benedict, is capable. The store has been completely remodeled to take care of the increase of business. New office fixtures, show cases, etc., have been put in and the store redecorated.

Another firm that is forging to the front is that of McIntyre Bros., whose plans for a large plant on an up-to-date basis have been delayed by a new line of railway coming across the proposed site of the houses on the new place. These houses are planned to be 30x400 and the first block will consist of six and a heating plant.

The greenhouses at the N. C. & St. L. shops are in fine shape.

THE catalogue makers who are behind are burning the midnight oil. The books for the south should be on the press December 1.

ISAAC DAVIS, a seed dealer of Findlay, O., recently shipped to a firm in Hamburg, Germany, two carloads of alsike seed, valued at $12,000.

BULB salesmen from Holland are coming to America earlier and earlier each succeeding year. Where once they came while the last crop was in flower, now they come before all have gone into the ground.

THE Board of General Appraisers last week sustained a protest by C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, on a last season's importation of hyacinth bulbs. The Breck decision was followed, as in all such cases.

IF those Holland bulb travelers keep on starting their journeys earlier each year, as in the past, they soon will be like the man who stayed so late at the club that, on his way home, he met himself going down to the office.

AT Chicago Charles Dickinson, of the Dickinson Seed Co., has acquired by quitclaim from the estate of Solomon Austrian and Mrs. Mary Austrian, widow, a tract of ten acres at the northeast corner of Thirty-fifth street and California avenue, and twenty acres at the northwest corner of Rockwell and Thirty-fifth streets. A nominal consideration is given, but Mr. Dickinson secured $28,500 of the purchase money by a trust deed to H. R. Platt, five years at five per cent. An important industrial project is said to be involved.

AT the recent convention of the Maine Seed Improvement Association, held at Waterville, the following officers were elected: President, W. G. Hunton, Readfield; vice-president, A. P. Howes, Palmyra; secretary, Dr. Leon S. Merrill, Orono; treasurer, C. M. White, Bowdoinham. Executive committee, Guy C. Porter, of Houlton; Roland P. Patten, of Skowhegan; Dr. G. M. Twitchell, of Auburn; Frank Lowell, of Farmingdale; L. C. Holston, of Westbrook. Visiting member, W. G. Hunton, of Readfield. Delegates to state federation, W. G. Hunton and A. P. Howes.

THE Holland bulb salesmen are now crossing the American continent in considerable numbers. Several have appeared among the Pacific coast growers, some as early as in October.

SECRETARY WILSON has stated that the Agricultural Department in conjunction with Farmers' Institutes conducted seventy-one instruction trains, covering tours of over 40,000 miles, during the last year.

THE Dakota Improved Seed Co., of Mitchell, S. D., is erecting an office building, 50x70 feet, at the north end of its property, which is located at the corner of Railroad avenue and Lawler street. The plans and specifications have also been drawn for a warehouse which the firm expects to build next year. The warehouse will cover a space 70x124 feet and will be three stories high, besides the basement. The cost will be about $25,000.

FIELD SEEDS IN DAKOTA.

On account of the bad weather just following harvest season, the department of botany of the North Dakota Agricultural College is making arrangements at an early date to aid farmers and seedsmen in attempting to save the best quality of seed grain for sowing purposes. The heavy rains immediately following harvesting time have injured a large amount of the grain in the state for sowing purposes.

The following has been sent to practically all of the seed dealers and to a large number of growers in North Dakota:

The farming lands of the state are not producing nearly as large returns as they should. One feature which accounts for the low return is the low quality of seed grain used for sowing purposes by the farmers generally. We would like to make this office useful to the state by aiding in developing the pure or pedigreed seed idea.

We hope to be able to put those who wish to purchase good seed for sowing purposes in touch with those parties who have it for sale, and especially with those who are attempting to grow good grades of pure bred types. If you have any seed for sale or wish to purchase good seed, write us, telling your needs or what you have.

On account of the peculiar root diseases which attack flax and because these are distributed in the seed, making it difficult to grow this crop unless special attention is given to seed selection, we particularly wish to emphasize that it is absolutely necessary that the farmers of your locality obtain or retain the very best, brightest colored flax seed for sowing purposes, if they wish to make the crop a permanent one on their list of rotations. On account of the late frosts and rains, many farmers will not have seed suitable for sowing next spring. An effort should be made to save the bright mature stuff. Keep it at home for seed. Good seed will have high value.

Send us samples of seed which you think to purchase. Our reports may aid you to make an early selection of the very best seed for your neighborhood. This laboratory makes seed analyses free of charge and can help you select your stock of sowing seed.

We intend to keep you in touch with the different points of value that we may learn from time to time. At present we have letters from a number of different growers who have been co-operating with this department in the raising of North Dakota wilt-resistant flax Nos. 73, 52 and 22, stating that they would like to dispose of some of it this fall. If you would like to get a small quantity of this seed started in your neighborhood with some good farmers, let us know, and we will put you in touch with the parties having a desire to sell this fall.

This seed has made a very fine record, especially on old land. In many cases where ordinary flax died out from wilt, this flax has thrived and produced a full crop.

GROWTH OF CANNING.

The United States Census Bureau has just made public its figures on the canning industry, gathered as a part of the thirteenth census, in 1910. The summary will be of interest to seedsmen. It shows an increase from 3,168 establishments in 1904 to 3,767 establishments in 1909, an increase of nineteen per cent. The pack of vegetables for the two years named is shown to compare as follows:

Vegetables—	Census 1909.	Census 1904.	P.C. Inc.
Cases	32,573,843	29,579,616	10

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 335 to the case, $15.00 per case; full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case, 16.00 per case; full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case, 18.00 per case; full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots . . . . . $0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants . $1.00 to 1.50 each

THE SEED SHORTAGE.

The following is an editorial from the Democrat, published at Davenport, Ia.:

"The yield of this year's crops is not the most important thing in the world. Nor is it the prices these crops sell for. It is recognized that in time of famine it is almost as vital to save the live stock as it is human lives, because the stock is necessary to make the living. Cows, horses, pigs and chickens are the means of preventing another famine. And so it is with what comes out of the ground; there must be the seeds to put back or the future is uncertain. A news dispatch has gone out of Chicago to the agricultural papers to the effect that one of the most alarming situations ever known to seedsmen now confronts them. There is a shortage of almost every variety of seed used by gardeners and truck growers. There will be, so it is said, hardly more than half a crop of some of the common varieties, and not more than twenty-five per cent of others. To make a bad matter worse, the shortage extends throughout Europe. Everything in the seed line is advancing.

There is nothing encouraging about such reports as these. Let us hope that they are manufactured with the intention of furnishing a pretext for the higher prices."

Unfortunately, we can not reassure the editor; the shortages are real and no pretext is needed for advancing prices, which are not nearly as high as they should be to keep on an even basis in comparison with the supply.

GOVERNMENT SEED TESTS.

Following the instructions of Congress in the agricultural appropriation bill, the Secretary of Agriculture this year continued the purchase of seed in the open market to determine whether and how much adulteration was practiced. These samples were analyzed and the names of offending seedsmen have now been published.

The leaflet with the names of the dealers from whom adulterated samples were purchased shows that when a dealer has once been published it is seldom that he is again caught in the list. When the department has been analyzing a certain line of seed the adulteration in this also stops. The general showing was better than in previous years.

There were 1,214 samples of seed purchased, some of them in bulk and some by mail order. Of these 204 were found to be adulterated. There was some improvement in the line of orchard grass seed examined. There were 317 samples analyzed, and of these twelve were found adulterated, compared with fifty-five adulterated samples the previous year. In the worst samples found there was thirty-seven per cent of orchard grass seed and twenty-seven per cent of dirt and chaff, while the remainder was made up of rye grass, meadow fescue and other seed.

Of the 371 samples of Kentucky bluegrass seed examined, sixteen were adulterated, and of these thirteen samples contained only a fraction of one per cent of genuine Kentucky bluegrass, while the remainder was made up of Canadian bluegrass, other seed and dirt.

This was the first year that analysis had been made of redtop seed. It was found that this was badly adulterated with timothy seed. Of 526 samples, 176 were adulterated. The percentage of

The Market.

Business last week was much better than the week previous and the wholesale markets were not nearly so glutted, but no clean-up sales were reported, as the market had plenty of everything and just a little more than the demand called for. Some good shipping orders, which used up a lot of surplus stock, were reported by the wholesalers.

In chrysanthemums the sale is good in all varieties. Some fine Eaton, Chadwick and Golden Wedding were seen during the week, also some splendid blooms of Bonnaffon. The wholesalers expected to receive quite a large cut this week for Thanksgiving orders.

Violets are cleaning up at $1 per hundred for the best Californias. These are not overplentiful at present and the growers say they will be scarce all season, with the prices up. Carnations have had their ups and downs, one day plentiful, the next scarce, but the local growers expected a large cut during this week, as the weather has been clear for the last few days. Enchantress are coming in fine; so are Beacon and White Perfection. The top price for Thanksgiving was expected to be $5 per hundred.

Roses have been and will be more plentiful, but the demand for mums has hurt their sale considerably during the last few weeks. Ten dollars per hundred is expected to be the top price for this week for fancy stock. Beauties are scarce, but Paper Whites, valley and lilies are in good supply, as also are all kinds of greens.

Various Notes.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, makes Monday his regular visiting day in this city. The J. F. Ammann Co. is cutting some extra good stock, which is consigned daily to C. A. Kuehn.

Charlie Young, of C. Young & Sons Co., says his firm has had a splendid fall trade in bulbs. Several large weddings kept them quite busy last week.

It has been rumored that at the meeting of the Florists' Club and the Retail Florists' Association this month strong talks will be made as to the advisability of taking hold together and giving a flower show on a large scale.

H. G. Berning had a large shipping order last week that consumed 4,000 of his fancy mums.

The opening of the new store of the Sanders Nurseries, on Clara avenue, had to be postponed owing to a defect in the heating system. Oliver K. Sanders, who is to have charge of this place, said that everything would be in readiness for the opening before Thanksgiving.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. recently received a large shipment of florists' supplies, including a lot of Christmas novelties. The firm's daily consignments of carnations and violets from Kirkwood have been large.

Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., says their force had to hustle last week, as they had several wedding decorations and quite a batch of funeral work.

Otto Sanders had several large orders to fill during the week. He says that since coming over on Olive street he has worked up a splendid over-the-counter trade and he carries the best of stock to work with.

A. Brix says that since he did away with the cares of the greenhouses and spent all his time at the store he is much better satisfied with the business.

Geo. H. Angermueller expects to be well supplied with stock of all kinds for the Thanksgiving demand. He said that stock sold much better last week than the one previous.

Wm. Ellison, of the Ellison Floral Co., reports that sales are not as they should be at this time of the year; nevertheless they had quite a few dinner parties and receptions to furnish during the week.

Waldbart, Ayres, Newman and the Metropolitan, centered at Grand avenue and Olive street, say they had a splendid week in cut flower orders and plant sales.

Visitors: Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co.; J. J. Karins, for H. A. Dreer; Wm. Craig, of the Robert Craig Co., all of Philadelphia. J. J. B.

The man who wants to protect his family buys Life Insurance. So should a man, to protect his business, buy flower insurance. But since you cannot buy flower insurance, you should buy Horseshoe Brand Bulbs, which is the nearest thing to it. If you have this brand to begin with, half the battle is won—the other half depends entirely on you. No life can be happy but that which is spent in the prosecution of some purpose to which our powers are equal, and which we, therefore, prosecute with success; and for this reason it is absurd to dread business, upon pretense that it will leave few intervals for pleasure. Get the best in lily bulbs, and take the same care with them that you would with a pet horse, and you will get both pleasure and profit out of your business. Wait for the Horseshoe Brand Man, or write us direct.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston June 1912.

An account of the first fall meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen appears on page 76 of this issue.

The Bonnie View Fruit Farm & Nursery Co., at Tomah, Wis., has been adjudged bankrupt and its property has been ordered sold, free of liens. The incorporated valuation of the property was $50,000.

The tract of 320 acres known as the old Finks Nursery Farm, near Lamar, Mo., has been purchased by Edward V. Smith, of Morgan county, Illinois, and his son, Clarence Smith, for a total cash price of $27,200.

The Roswell Nursery Co., at Roswell, N. M., has prepared for an enlargement of its business by establishing a sub-nursery at the corner of Fifth and Main streets. Wyatt Johnson, manager of the nursery, will have charge of the branch.

S. M. Meehan, of Thomas Meehan & Sons, Dresden, Pa., visited Excelsior Springs, Mo., during the summer, and the enthusiasm he aroused among the property owners will lead to considerable landscape work being done there this season.

A new 700-acre nursery has been started about thirteen miles from Norfolk, in Norfolk county, Virginia, by R. Lauterbach and M. Holster. The soil throughout the whole tract is said to be a deep, rich, sandy loam, which has been used for two years for the growing of peas.

THE MEETING AT ALVIN.

The meeting of the Gulf Coast Nurserymen's Association, held at Alvin, Tex., November 17, was more than ordinarily interesting and productive of results. There was a good attendance from every section of the Gulf coast. The first session of the meeting was called to order at 10 a. m., by the president, W. A. Stockwell, of Alvin. Secretary I. M. Johnson, of Houston, was also present.

Prof. E. C. Green, of the United States Department of Agriculture, discussed the work the department is doing in the way of introducing new and valuable trees and plants for the Gulf coast.

Sam H. Dixon, editor of Texas Farm and Fireside, Houston, spoke of observations of the grapefruit in Florida.

Edward Teas, also of Houston, spoke briefly on ornamentals necessary to the beautification of the home grounds.

The afternoon session convened at 1:30, being called to order by President Stockwell, who made a brief address on the work and duty of the association. His remarks were followed by a general discussion.

The following new members were enrolled: W. E. Ayers, Alvin; Kolberg & Anderson, Eagle Lake; A. P. Wright, Mission; M. F. Hammer, Alvin; W. T. Foster, La Porte.

A committee on advertising was appointed, as follows: R. W. Halbert, Arcadia; W. D. Griffin, Port Arthur; I. M. Johnson, Houston; R. H. Bushway, Algoa.

Considerable discussion followed the appointment of this committee, as to advertising mediums, style of advertising, etc. Two hundred dollars per month is to be devoted to this feature, raised by an assessment plan based on the invoice stock of each nurseryman, this fund to be placed in the hands of the publicity committee.

The association unanimously agreed to place an exhibit in the Texas land show, to be held in Houston sometime in January.

A prolonged discussion took place on the pecan industry and the most successful budding and grafting methods.

The visitors were to have taken an automobile ride to the orchards and nurseries around the city, but a brisk, rainy norther precluded carrying out this part of the program.

The report of the committees disclosed the fact that the association was doing some progressive and effective work and accomplishing its purposes in a satisfactory manner.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Toward the middle of last week the market experienced a tightening in all lines. This was due to growers beginning to hold back for Thanksgiving, because chrysanthemums were bringing far too low a price if allowed to come in regularly, as the demand, being limited, did not take them up fast enough. Since Wednesday, November 22, nearly everything worth while has sold at a merry clip and prices have gone a point higher. Indications for Thanksgiving were for a sufficiency of nearly everything. Narcissi have been added to the line of offerings, and poinsettias will be included this week.

All roses are pretty well off crop and as a result are cleaning up from day to day. American Beauties are on the short side of the market; many more might have been used last week. In carnations, colored varieties are in demand, but the supply is meager. White are more plentiful and all are selling well. The call for violets, both double and single, valley and orchids is all that could be desired and Easter lilies are good property.

The demand for all kinds of greens is large.

Various Notes.

The Bowling Club meets at Finke's on East Sixth avenue Monday, December 4, at 8 p. m.

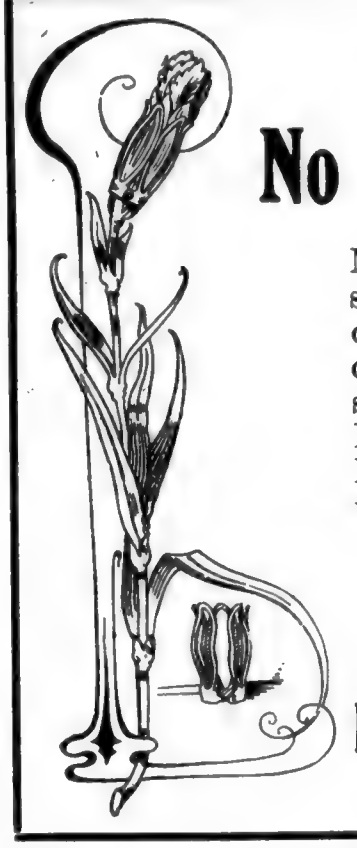
C. E. Critchell was the first on Third avenue to offer narcissi this year. This week he expects to be first with poinsettias.

Wm. Murphy has rented the store room at 111 Third avenue, East, for a place in which to handle his line of Christmas greens, consisting of holly laurel, boxwood, red berries and southern smilax. Ray Murphy will take charge. Mr. Murphy says that the January deliveries of the Delhi carnations are completely ordered and orders for shipment on February 1 are being booked now.

Geo. Klotter, of West Price Hill, lost several choice cattle when his barn burned last Sunday night.

G. Brunner's Sons, of Price Hill, have been consigning some excellent stock to L. H. Kyrk.

Peter Weiland will open December 1, a wholesale house at 114 East Third avenue. His brother-in-law will take care of the Cincinnati end of the business while Mr. Weiland attends to his greenhouses at New Castle, Ind.



The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange reports an excellent call for leucothoe.

Robert Buck, of Washington C. H., again sent to C. E. Critchell his large Chadwicks for Thanksgiving.

W. K. Partridge has joined the force in the seed department at J. M. McCullough's Sons Co.

Martin Reukauf dropped in last Monday on his fortnightly call.

PACIFIC COAST.

This Department now overflows its three pages, onto a fourth page. And it has only begun to grow. Would someone at Los Angeles like to help push it along by supplying a boiled-down weekly letter regarding trade events there? There are openings for correspondents in several other Coast cities.

Cle Elum, Wash.,—J. A. Balmer is trying out about 100 of the newer H. T. roses in his new house, solid beds, with a view of finding something adapted to his soil and conditions. The Killarneys, pink and white, are neither a success with him; too many short stems, and too much mildew. The market is none too good on the Pacific coast this fall.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Freeman-Lewis Co. has opened a flower store at 212 West Fourth street. It is said to be one of the handsomest stores in town. Mr. Freeman, the business manager, was formerly a florist in Indianapolis, but has resided in this city for some years. Mr. Lewis, who has charge of the decorating part of the firm's business, has been connected for the last three years with Wright's Flower Shop.

OIL FOR FUEL.

Has any reader of The Review situated on the Pacific coast had experience with fuel oil as applied to the florists' business? Particulars of same would be appreciated. F. B.

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN MEET.

The California Association of Nurserymen held its first fall meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, Los Angeles, November 23 and 24, with an automobile drive and picnic on the following day. Heretofore spring meetings only have been held. The fall meeting proved popular and brought out a good attendance, the northern part of the state sending several representatives.

The officers are: President, W. V. Eberly, Niles; vice-presidents, Leonard Coates, Morgan Hill; F. H. Wilson, Fresno; Fred H. Howard, Los Angeles; Almon Wheeler, San Jose; Thomas Chisholm, Pasadena; Max J. Crow, Gilroy; E. Wightman, Chico; C. W. Howard, Hemet; secretary and treasurer, H. W. Kruckeberg, Los Angeles.

The program was as follows:

Address of welcome, by Thomas Chisholm, of the Pasadena Nurseries.

Response by George C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno.

President's address, by W. V. Eberly, of the California Nursery, Niles.

"Organization and Fellowship," by P. A. Dix, of the Davis County Nurseries, Roy, Utah, and President Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association; short discussion, (a) J. W. Jeffrey, former State Horticultural Commissioner, and now manager Deciduous Fruit Growers' League, Sacramento; (b) C. B. Messenger, editor of the California Cultivator, Los Angeles.

"Credits in the Nursery Business," by Leonard Coates, president Leonard Coates Nursery Co., Morganhill; discussion, (a) R. W. Teague, of the San Dimas Citrus Nurseries, San Dimas; (b) W. R. Wood, vice-president Roeding and Wood Nursery Co., Los Angeles.

"Regulation and Stability of Prices," by W. P. Weber, sales manager of the San Fernando Nursery, San Fernando; discussion by the convention as a whole.

"Buying and Selling Among Nurserymen," by Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles; discussion, (a) E. Wightman, of the Chico

The Market.

The weather has turned slightly colder and a few nights' frost has put an end to much of the outside stock. Narcissi are making an appearance and they will help considerably from this time onward. Violets are plentiful and are the most popular flowers at this time. Chrysanthemums are scarcer and the colder weather has the effect of reducing the supply perceptibly. Inside roses and carnations have stiffened

HOLLYHOCKS FOR THE WEST

Now ready. Splendid field-grown plants from the famous Chater's strain of double Hollyhocks, in separate colors, as follows: White, canary yellow, apple blossom, peach blossom, scarlet, rose, deep red and brown-black. These are from seeds sown early in the spring and given space in the open. They are simply perfect, strong plants, which will flower heavily next year, yet I can send fine sizes for mailing if desired. I will deliver to customer by express at $5.00 per 100, assorted or choice. Sample plants on application. Other hardy plants.

somewhat in price, but are in good supply and quality. Fancy stock is scarce enough, but of short-stemmed flowers there is an abundance. Valley is about equal to the demand and orchids are in about the same condition. Lilium Harrisii is in short supply. Maidenhair is getting poorer and smilax better and cheaper. California red berries are commencing to be an item.

Business is rather quiet and, although everyone is optimistic for Thanksgiving, no one seems to have many advance orders on hand. Funeral trade is fair, however, and is really the best part of the trade at this time.

Various Notes.

Mrs. I. W. Kersey, formerly a well known bulb grower of Haywards, Cal., died in that town November 16, aged 51 years.

Thomas Duane, the Martinez nurseryman, is in town on a short visit.

John Gill, of the E. Gill Nursery Co., West Berkeley, is in Los Angeles, attending the convention of the Society of California Nurserymen. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There are slight changes for the better since last reports and with Thanksgiving only a few days away, everyone was looking forward to an expected rush. Chrysanthemums are in good shape, especially the yellow varieties, while Timothy Eaton is the prevailing white. There is a scarcity of valley and growers are discouraged; everyone seems to have poor luck with the pips.

Carnations are equal to demand and move well, but Enchantress is soft, and proves a poor keeper, often causing complaint. The general scarcity of green is an item of concern to everyone.

Out at the greenhouses everything is taking on a Christmas hue; poinsettias are in good shape, and begonias, cyclamen and azaleas will be an important feature for the holidays.

Various Notes.

Miss M. Armstrong, who recently discontinued business in Spokane, stopped over, en route to California for the winter.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy, of Seattle, stopped over for a few days recently. E. R. C.

GREENHOUSE MANAGEMENT.

About a year and a half ago I wrote an article for The Review entitled "Possibilities," which dealt with automatic boiler firing, soil conveying for greenhouses and electric flower forcing.

So far we have noticed that in regard to automatic boiler firing, nothing in particular has been accomplished. In regard to soil conveying, this has been brought about, but as yet has not been put forth to any great extent. I will say, however, that it is out, ready to be patented, if the growers only knew where to find it. Then we come to the electric flower forcing. At the time I first mentioned this in The Review, about a year and a half ago, it seemed almost impossible. It has, however, been brought forth, probably not to the extent that I first mentioned it, but possibly in a better and wider field.

mented upon to a satisfactory extent, and the process of utilizing this method of culture is no longer an experiment, but a practical step forward in this line of work. We must give the credit of these first experiments to the English; that is, to the gardeners of Essex, at the Highfield Nurseries. The first practical work in this line will be demonstrated when 200 feet of greenhouses will be treated in this manner. It has been found, under previous experiments with fruits and vegetables, that electrically stimulated plants will bear from twenty to thirty per cent more fruit. The current has the effect of increasing the influence of nitrogen in the air on the plants, as we know that nitrogen is a valuable stimulant to plant life. Although peas and cabbages are not affected by this method, it has a powerful effect on strawberries, which grow to perfection about a month sooner than normally, and bear about forty per cent more fruit. Many other plants benefit to an almost equal degree. Tomatoes do twenty per cent better and cucumbers seventeen per cent better. A discharge of 600,000 volts of static electricity is given out over the benches. The amount of current is generated by an ingenious machine consisting of six revolving plates of glass acted on by brushes. The contrivance is so simple that the running expenses are small. This method will be found advantageous to our American brothers, when Easter and Thanksgiving take a notion to come a little earlier. So it will be seen that we are another valuable step ahead in the world of successful horticulture.

HOLD THE HYDRANGEAS BACK.

I have a nice batch of hydrangea plants that were taken from good, healthy stock in August. They are in 4-inch pots and each one has a bud about the size of a 25-cent piece. I have them in a frame at about 50 degrees. Would it be all right to put them into 6-inch pots and bring them right along, or would you advise keeping them back? Any information on this subject would be most welcome.

F. C.

You are keeping your hydrangeas too warm. Let them have a cooler, but sunny location, where they are just clear of freezing. Also keep them moderately dry at the roots until they are started in heat again. It will be much better to give these plants a couple of months' rest before starting them. If they are well-rooted in 4-inch pots, you could move them into 5-inch when housing them, but it would be just as well to let them get a little growth and then repot them. If you want these hydrangeas around Memorial day, you need not place them in heat before March 1; if for Easter, house them right after Christmas. It will pay better, however, to flower them rather late.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Trade has been brisk for the last week. Mums of all grades are now scarce and prices are a trifle higher than formerly. The choice blooms of Chadwick, Wedding, etc., are bringing 20 cents, with a few extra fancy at 25 cents. White Killarney is still plentiful, but pink, especially in the better grades, is scarce. There are plenty of white carnations to meet all calls. Red, rose-pink and Enchantress are a trifle shy. Violets are fair for this season of the year.

Various Notes.

John A. Schwartan, foreman for Joy & Son, Nashville, Tenn., together with his wife, stopped over here for a few days, visiting old friends. Mr. Schwartan was married November 22, in Norwich, Conn., to Miss Lydia Smith.

The small yellow mum, Baby, has had a ready sale on this market this year. Large blocks of it were flowered by the local growers and all have found a ready sale.

Merkel & Son, Mentor, O., will have a nice lot of azaleas in for holiday trade. Their Cincinnati begonias look good.

THE NEW YELLOW FORCING ROSE SUNBURST

This magnificent, giant yellow rose has been tested for three years in our benches; it stands head and shoulders above all other sorts of its color and will rank with American Beauty and the Killarneys in value and grandeur—because

It has a long, pointed bud, which can be cut tight for market. It is pre-eminently a long-stemmed rose. The stem is always stiff. It is free in bottom breaks. Is extraordinarily vigorous and healthy. Belongs in the class of Big Roses. Its keeping qualities rank with the best. Buds shipped from Richmond last December opened up perfectly in both Philadelphia and New York, where it scored 90 before the Florists' Club.

The color is orange-copper or golden orange and golden yellow, all intense shades, extremely brilliant in effect.

Come and see it growing; we have 8,000 of it benched.

Does splendidly out of doors; will rank high as a bedder. At the Chicago show, 1910, it was awarded the silver cup for the best new rose never before exhibited, and the judges unanimously gave it honorable mention additional. Has created a sensation wherever shown.

Raised by M. Pernet-Ducher, from whom we bought the American rights.

We have divided our stock with Mr. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., to give eastern growers a chance to see it growing. Will be distributed March 1 in America by C. H. Totty and The E. G. Hill Co. Mr. Pernet will distribute same date in Europe.

The American price is $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000 (own roots); $5.00 per 100 additional for grafts

—THE—

Carnation Sensation

OF THE YEAR

RAINBOW

MERIT

WINNER OF THE BRONZE MEDAL

National Flower Show, Boston, March, 1911

A Glorified Prosperity with all the Good Features of the Lawson Strain

With its name proclaiming its beautiful color combination, RAINBOW is one of the best, most profitable and remarkable carnations offered to the growers today. This excellent seedling should be grown by every carnation grower, because—

It is the best
It is easily propagated
It has a remarkably long, heavy, stiff stem
It has a strong, non-splitting calyx
It has large flowers of perfect form
It is a cool grower, doing best with 50°
It blooms freely, early, continuously
It is a good keeper and, best of all, it is a money maker and sells on sight

We realize 40% to 60% more profit on Rainbow than on any of the many standard varieties we have ever grown. It was sold last season exclusively to the largest retail dealer in New York City, who took our entire output.

The delicate shading from deep to light pink makes it both a superior display bloom and a general purpose flower, commanding the highest price everywhere. Our claims to superiority in Rainbow are supported by 15 years of painstaking experience in producing and growing carnation seedlings of extreme merit.

Rainbow should not be confused or classed with the ordinary pink and white variegated—it is far superior.

PEDIGREE:—Morning Glory crossed with Lawson, producing white seedling, overlaid with pink. This resulting seedling crossed with Lawson, producing Rainbow—"profitable and prolific."

Our propagating facilities are strictly up-to-date. We can deliver a half million rooted cuttings and guarantee them to be perfect and satisfactory in every way. Orders booked now for January delivery.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The cut flower trade has been good for the last week. Flowers are in good supply. The carnations now coming in are all right; they retail at 50 cents per dozen. Roses retail at $1 and $1.50 per dozen; mums, from $1.50 up to $3 per dozen. The latter are getting rather scarce. Violets sell well at $1 per hundred blossoms, Paper Whites at 50 cents per dozen, bouvardia at 50 cents per dozen. Candytuft and alyssum help out well. Stevia is now coming in good shape and is fine for mixing with the other flowers.

Funeral work is good, using up lots of stock. Plant sales are good, with fairly good prices. We have had no severe weather as yet. Nearly all the bulbs have been planted out for spring flowering. Privet hedge plants and other shrubs are in fairly good demand.

The uptown stores are making nice displays. Wm. P. Peirce had a pretty window last Saturday.

E. H. Chamberlain is handling some nice ferns. W. L.

The Market.

Trade was flourishing the first three days of last week, but has dropped off considerably since. There has been considerable decorating, but nothing of an extravagant nature. Funeral work is a little light. The outlook for Thanksgiving is good. Stock, especially chrysanthemums, is plentiful. Carnations have improved wonderfully in the last two weeks and are about equal to the demand. Violets are having their first call of the season. Beauties are of good color, but a little scarce.

Various Notes.

Baur & Steinkamp have been sending in some fine blooms of their new red carnation, St. Nicholas.

H. W. Rieman is contemplating the purchase of an automobile for delivery purposes.

E. A. Nelson is redecorating his store room, the woodwork being white enamel.

LANSING, MICH.

The Market.

The last week has been a busy one for the florists, weddings and funerals using a great deal of stock. Chrysanthemums being used the most, a part of the florists have cleaned up on them, and not many were left for Thanksgiving. Roses and carnations are in good demand and the prices will be higher from now on. Paper Whites and Romans were on the market for the first time this week. Violets are fine this season and are selling well. Stevia is a little scarce but is coming along finely. Poinsettias are showing color and will be fine for Christmas.

Various Notes.

Gurdon B. Smith, proprietor of the Riverside Greenhouses, erected two new greenhouses last summer and had them filled with 10,000 mums, comprising seventy-two varieties. They were the finest lot every grown in the city.

J. A. Bissinger's plant is well filled with the best stock and business is good.

William Krieger will build another house this season, 30x100.

G. Fred Bauerle, the north side florist, has had a good season and reports mums all sold, just a few left for Thanksgiving.

George Riley has had a good season and carnations are fine. Lettuce is doing nicely and will soon be large enough to market.

Miss Ida L. Chittenden, of the Maplewood Violet Co., has a fine showing of plants this season.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

Local florists are doing a fine fall business. J. W. Vestal & Son's mums are in splendid shape.

The Cottage Floral Co. was lucky enough not to suffer any loss by the recent cold spell. The mercury fell from summer temperature to that of winter in a few hours. Tipton & Hurst lost 700 mums. H. Meyer, just up from a twelve weeks' severe spell of typhoid fever, lost a full stock of choice plants in three of his greenhouses, besides all his mums. Temporarily he has to give up and arrange with his creditors. His losses are about $3,000. He will come back. L. M. Meyer.

Milton, Del.—Charles G. Jones, secretary of Jones the Holly Wreath Man, says they have had a most successful season, having booked about all the Christmas business that can be taken care of.

ERIE, PA.

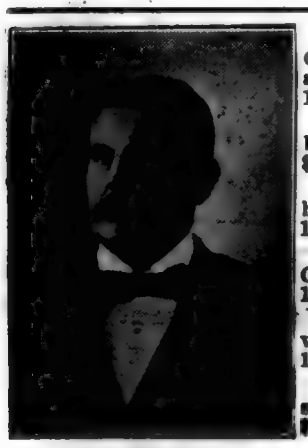
The Market.

This has been a wet week, with falls of both rain and snow. Choice flowers are plentiful and in great demand. Chrysanthemums are still attracting the most attention and are in evidence everywhere. Lorraine begonias are making an attractive showing as potted plants.

Various Notes.

The Baur Floral Co. held its annual chrysanthemum show last week. The large, beautiful blooms were much admired. The exhibition was largely attended.

Mrs. Daniel Offerle, of Warren, Pa., has returned to her home, after spending the last four weeks with her daughter in this city.



J. T. Cokely, of the Scranton Florist Supply Co., and H. Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, were in Erie on business last week. B. P.

LONGMEADOW, R. I.

William C. Pratt & Son, proprietors of the Maplehurst Greenhouses, with a farm and dairy in connection, are just completing a new 3-apartment greenhouse, 28x123, fitted up with a new boiler and ventilating apparatus from the Lord & Burnham Co. They have carnations, sweet peas, pansies, tomatoes, lettuce and cauliflower already in the house, and expect to grow some cucumbers during the winter. They will use the old greenhouse for a starting house for spring bedding plants, of which they make a specialty. They have about finished marketing their mums. E. A. Mallette, for several years the florist at Rhode Island College, Kingston, R. I., has been with Pratt & Son since October 1, as florist and general manager of the greenhouses. The firm has its own herd of cows, and in that way has a good supply of fertilizer for the compost. The milk and cream are sold locally.

Hartford, Wis.—F. Rhodes is successor to C. B. Tremain.

Decatur, Ill.—During the cold wave of November 12 to 13, one of the boilers at the greenhouses of Daut Bros. suddenly went out of commission. Philip Daut went to the John C. Moning Co., Chicago, and there purchased another boiler, which was shipped and installed without loss of time and is working finely. The storm broke a few panes of glass at Daut Bros.' place November 12. Several hundred lights were also smashed by hail at John Bommersbach's houses on the same date.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Last week started out well, but toward the end of the week things become dull, causing stock, especially mums, to pile up at the wholesale houses. This is the first time this season that stock has been too plentiful.

Monday of this week opened up well and every indication pointed toward a big Thanksgiving trade. Stock was never of better quality, carnations and roses being exceptionally fine. Violets are good and selling readily, and many fine sweet peas arrive at intervals and are soon disposed of.

Southern smilax is as popular as ever. The first dogwood berries appeared on the scene Monday, and ere we realize it we will be selling poinsettias, holly, mistletoe, etc., for Christmas is less than four weeks away.

Various Notes.

A slick looking man walked into the store of the Scribner Floral Co. Monday morning and asked if he might use the phone. Proprietor Robert Jean said "help yourself," and the stranger did to the tune of $22.25. He pretended to be unsuccessful in getting a number he called for on the phone and then as soon as the opportunity presented itself, emptied the cash register.

Chas. Plumb's houses abound in blooming plants for Christmas, and soon the same plants will be seen scattered about the different flower stores. The begonias and poinsettias are especially fine.

B. Schroeter is showing some well grown poinsettia plants in his window.

Breitmeyer featured carnations at 40 cents per dozen last Saturday, this being the day of their weekly sale.

William Dilger, manager of the rose and carnation show, requests publication of the following notice: "All growers who intend to exhibit at the show in Detroit January 10 to 12 are requested to mail copy to be used on display banners 3x8 feet to William Dilger, 40 Broadway, Detroit, at the same time enclosing check for $10 to cover cost of painting." H. S.

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. has been making extensive improvements in its Main street store, to facilitate the handling of stock from the firm's greenhouses, at Fourth street and Park avenue.

ARAUCARIA EXCELSA

With Xmas approaching there is always a big demand for Araucaria Excelsa. What looks nicer at Xmas time than an Araucaria properly dressed up with a nice pink, red or lavender ribbon, tied around the plant about half way up? It is a good keeper and keeps its beautiful evergreen foliage (tiers) green and perfect for years; when all other plants are withered, the Araucaria is in full glory, admired by all in the family. We are well prepared for the Araucaria orders and are the leaders, as we have always been for the last 25 years. 6000 can be seen in our greenhouses. all sizes and prices. 5¼ to 5½-in., 3-year-old, 12, 15 to 20-in. high, 3 to 4 tiers. only 35c, 40c and 50c; 6-in., 4-year-old, 20, 22, 25 to 30-in. and over in height, 4 5 and 6 tiers. 60c, 75c. $1.00 to $1.25; specimen plants, 7-in., 30, 35 to 40-in. high, 5 to 6-year-old, 6, 7 to 8 tiers, green from bottom up, at a bargain price seldom offered; just look, only $1.50 to $2.00. Worth double. Will you let such a bargain pass unnoticed?

AZALEAS

We have 1000 ready, forced by ourselves into bloom for Xmas. Vervaeneana, Simon Mardner, Mme. Petrick and Deutsche Perle. If you want any in bloom for Xmas, please order them in time. 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

What F. J. Michell, of the well-known Seed House, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, said:

"Have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me—I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Azaleas, Ferns and other plants of all sizes and prices than are at Mr. Aschmann's."

Leader in Azalea Indica, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, Palms, Etc.—Lead you into wealth.

CAN HANDLE LARGEST ORDER ON SHORT NOTICE

PANSIES.

Think of the strain of pansies containing light, dark, lavender, violet, blue, bronze, royal purple, red, cerise, salmon, mahogany, yellow and red and gold shades, a dozen or more varieties in each shade, of immense size with great form and substance. They are MASTODON PANSIES. It has cost us hundreds of dollars and eighteen years' time to upbuild this strain and it is worth all it cost. We guarantee perfect order delivery everywhere and we guarantee satisfaction. Plants, 50c 100; $3.00 1000; $12.50 5000, prepaid.
Steele's Mastodon Pansy Gardens, Portland, Ore.

PANSIES—Continued.

HOME OF PANSIES.

Our growing crops of pansies for seed were greatly admired by all florists who saw them this last summer. All said they were grand—some said they were the best they had ever seen. We reserved over 50,000 of our best for seed growing and they certainly were a pretty sight. We are improving on them annually, and have a fine lot of red, red shades and other crosses of our own origin and nearly all colors and shades found in pansies. We started a few for a test very early and they have surprised us as to coloring and size of flowers; showing improvement over parent stock. You cannot go wrong if you place your order with us. If, upon blooming, you are not perfectly satisfied I will return every cent you paid for them. I made this same offer last year and had not a kick and I am better prepared to make it now than I was then. Our plants are in excellent shape owing to the good growing weather this fall; they are twice as heavy as last year and too large to go by mail. Our packing is right, we land them safe in Louisiana, Florida, California and other distant points. Have a large stock, all strong, sturdy, field-grown. Am receiving numerous testimonials and now have a large list of annual customers. Our collection contains no black, unless so ordered. We have a good stock of black which we keep separate. We can also supply, separate, Masterpiece, Giant Mme. Perret and Giant Prize Trimardeau; also blood red and Golden Queen, separate. All at the same price, $2.50 1000; 5000, $10.00. Liberal count.
E. Rawlings, Wholesale Grower, OLEAN, N. Y.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies. The growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years. Plants lightly packed and billed through at lowest rates and delivery in good condition guaranteed to any place in the U. S. Samples of what others say—"Pansy plants arrived in best possible condition and as to quality, were strong, sturdy, well rooted. I have bought from you for the last 4 years and have never seen such a variety of colors. I used to buy the very best seeds and plants possible but I have never been able to procure anything to equal yours." C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo. "Pansy plants received in fine condition. They have the finest roots I have ever seen." J. L. Martin, Shreveport, La. If you want more proof see testimonials in my previous advs. in Review. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed, sown thinly broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong with extra good roots. All varieties, mixed, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash.

...NEWS NOTES...

Bellefontaine, O.—John Stelzig has installed a new and up-to-date refrigerator, manufactured by the McCray Refrigerator Co.

Oneonta, N. Y.—C. W. Peck has completed a new show house and carnation house. The former will give more space for the growing of lilies.

Sayre, Pa.—W. Knapp has a model plant. He recently added an iron and concrete house for carnations. These, with chrysanthemums, are specialties here.

Owego, N. Y.—A. J. Thomas & Sons have made a big improvement to their plant by adding a large workroom and sheds. Stock is in excellent shape and business is picking up.

Portland, Me.—E. J. Harmon has purchased some ground on Massachusetts avenue and is contemplating the erection of a modern apartment building there in the early spring.

Corning, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel reports increasing business since the advent of the rapid transit service. He keeps the houses full with a succession of crops and it looks as if a new plant will be the early result.

Whitesboro, N. Y.—Wm. P. Pfeifer is supplying Utica with some of the finest carnations seen in this locality. Georgia is all one can wish, grown in soil not too rich. Extraordinary cuts of the Enchantress family and White Perfection are reported.

Elmira, N. Y.—A run around with Richard King, superintendent of the United States Cut Flower Co., found stock generally in prime order. Of the newer varieties in carnations, Gloriosa and White Wonder are well spoken of. Enchantress is still leader in pink, but the new crimson, Delhi, will be given a good trial. Many mums are seen here and roses are grown extensively and are full of promise for the holidays. John Rudy, also a well known grower here, has some fine mums and says he will go more heavily into bedding stock for next spring.

Waverly, N. Y.—J. E. Angell is well equipped for a busy season. He had a nice batch of mums for Thanksgiving.

Cobleskill, N. Y.—Alfred Goldring recently installed a Lord & Burnham boiler and says he cannot speak too highly of it. He has a snug plant, easily managed, and produces good stock that has brought big business from out of town.

Holyoke, Mass.—Gallivan Bros. have completed a fine new greenhouse, 50x200, in one of the choicest locations at Smith's Ferry. The materials were furnished by the King Construction Co. The firm also has greenhouses at South Hadley Center and proposes to add to the glass area at Smith's Ferry next summer.

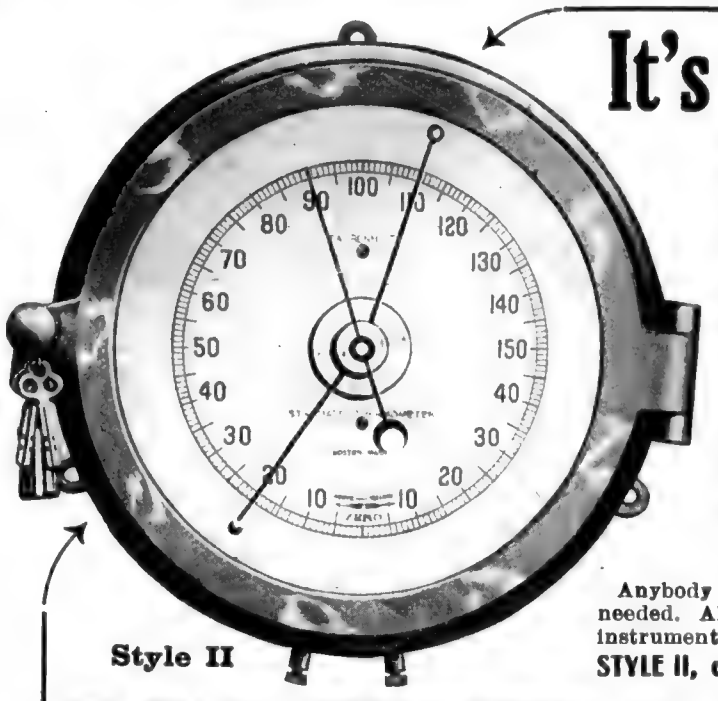
Greenhouse Heating.

ONE BOILER OR MORE?

I should like to ask whether one hot water boiler would be sufficient to take care of the following area of glass, keeping everything in perfect shape and maintaining just the right temperatures in all kinds of weather, in this Illinois climate. The range comprises the following houses: Two carnation houses, each 20x225; three rose houses, each 20x200; one rose house, 40x120; one rose house, 20x225; one rose house, 40x225. The hot water boiler is one of the largest made by a well-known firm. F. P. B.



To heat the eight houses described would require about 10,000 square feet of hot water radiation, and it would result in economy of fuel if a somewhat greater boiler capacity were furnished. While the size of such a boiler would not be excessively large, there would be some advantages in using two boilers, each of 6,000 feet of radiation capacity. One of them could heat all of the houses for a couple of months in the spring and fall, and in case anything went wrong with one boiler the "cripple" could be cut out and the heating done with the other until the repairs were made.

GREENHOUSES AND HOTBEDS.

I am building two connected greenhouses, each 21x80, running north and south. I expect to use the east house for roses and warm natured plants, and the west house for carnations. I have a boiler which is five feet in diameter and sixteen feet long, and which contains fifty-two 4-inch flues. Do you consider this boiler too large to heat the houses economically in this Kansas climate? I expect to connect this heating plant with 1,000 square feet of hotbeds or coldframes. Will an 8-section Princeton hot water heater be sufficiently large to heat all of the structures? The sections of the Princeton heater, I think, are three and one-half feet high by two feet wide and about five inches thick. The outside temperature here sometimes runs down as low as 22 degrees below zero, with the accompaniment, frequently, of high winds.

Where shall I tap the boiler for the heating pipes? How many feet of 3-inch and smaller pipes shall I use for heating? I expect to use hot water and to fire with coal. G. F. O.

The rose house can be readily heated by means of three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. In the carnation house use three flows and nine returns. While one 3-inch main flow and return could be used for the carnation house, they would not be large enough for the rose house, and the best plan would be to run a 4-inch pipe to the end of each house, where the 2½-inch flows could be joined to it, and then connect the lower ends of the coils to main returns of the same size. Just how many feet of 4-inch pipe will be needed will depend upon the location of the boiler and the arrangement of the piping, and the amount might vary anywhere from fifty to 100 feet. Not far from 500 feet of 2½-inch and 1,700 feet of 2-inch pipe will be needed for the two houses. In the hotbeds use a 2-inch pipe to make a complete circuit, with the flow pipe on one side and the return on the other. This will take, perhaps, 350 feet more of 2-inch pipe.

The tubular boiler is four or five times as large as is needed, but it could be used economically with a grate area of about nine square feet. The flow pipes should be connected with the top of the boiler and well down on the sides. The description of the Princeton heater is not sufficiently clear for an accurate estimate of its capacity, but to heat the two houses and 1,000 square feet of hotbed sashes it should have a rating of 2,400 square feet of radiating surface.

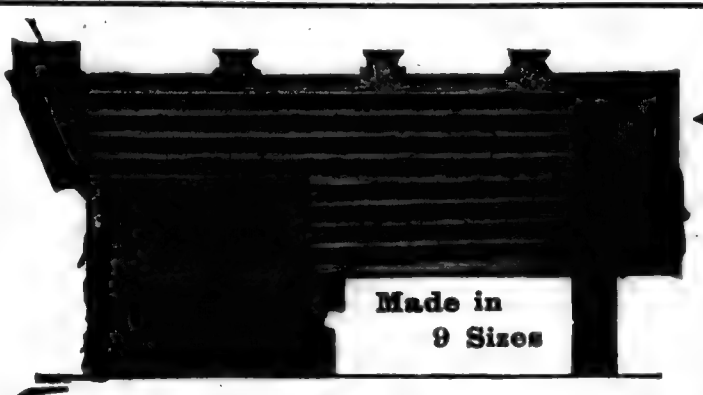
In piping the houses, run one flow pipe on each wall and the other two feet under the ridge, and at the south end of the houses connect with the coils underneath, of which there should be three, with four pipes in each, in the rose house, and three in the carnation house.



INSTALLED BY LOCAL PLUMBER.

We had a heating plant put in our greenhouses here for hot water and it was put in for a pressure system, with a safety valve which has thirty pounds set on it, with a large iron ball put on the expansion tank. At the first test the plumber burst out the back section of the boiler. We got a new section and the nipple on the bottom part of it did not fit tightly. The plumber used a block and pounded it with a sledge, and used a wooden log and rammed it together. After that we found a crack on the inside of the new section, where the plumber rammed it. The section is cast-iron; will that stand pounding?

The highest point of the expansion tank is twenty-five feet above the boiler and one of the greenhouses goes uphill. Will the boiler send water up through six 1¼-inch pipes, put together with manifolds and fed by 1½-inch pipe, with a 1¼-inch return? Will the boiler send water up like that and discharge the expanding water with twenty or thirty pounds of weight on top of the expansion tank and with no opening on the system? Will it raise that safety valve? Is it right to place the feed pipe for hot water at the bottom of the radiator, and the return also at the bottom? All the pipes are run uphill to the end of the greenhouse and then return. Can we get circulation to the end of the greenhouse fast enough? H. & P.

Whether a cast-iron boiler will stand a pressure of forty or fifty pounds to the square inch will depend entirely on the size and construction of the sections. Ordinarily it would be too much for very large or thin sections. Of course, cast-iron will not stand much hammering and it is probable that the section referred to was cracked in that way, rather than by the high pressure carried.

It is a mistake to try to carry water for a 250-foot coil with a 1¼-inch return, even though it is under pressure. In a system such as is described, it makes little difference whether the

and less water space than is contained in any other boiler. (Note the many flues set close together.) This is one reason why the users of the find them perfectly satisfactory. We frequently receive re-orders from florists who have tested these boilers thoroughly and found them even "Superior" to our claims.

Why not ask for full particulars today? A postal to us will bring a prompt reply.

flow pipe connects with a vertical coil at the upper or the lower end of the manifold, but the connection should be with the manifold at the upper end of the coil, instead of at the lower end, as the description indicates. Until this change is made, good results can not be obtained, and the returns should be 1½-inch; or, better yet, use 2-inch pipe for both flows and returns.

If there are no leaks in the system there should be no difficulty about raising the weight on the safety valve. As water expands when heated, if there is no other place where it can escape from the system it will force its way out through the safety valve.

AMHERST, MASS.

The short course in floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College will be given as usual, beginning January 2 and closing March 8. The lecture course will cover general subjects of interest and value to the commercial florist. The afternoon will be spent in practical work in the greenhouse range. In addition to the lectures given on distinctly floricultural subjects, lectures in soil fertility, botany and entomology will be required and other lectures on field crops, fruit growing, market gardening or landscape gardening may be taken. On Saturdays observation trips will be taken to some of the commercial greenhouses in the vicinity of Amherst and one trip will be arranged to the commercial places in the eastern part of the state. The practical men who have coöperated so generously in making the course a success in other years will again give lectures on their special topics. It is expected that this special lecture course will include talks by W. R. Cobb on "Greenhouse Construction," January 5; R. O. King, "Greenhouse Construction," January 12; C. F. Boyle, of Thomas Galvin, Inc., "The Retail Trade," January 15; F. J. Elder, "Greenhouse Heating," January 19; Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, "Violets and Sweet Peas," January 22; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., "Chrysanthemums," January 26; W. H. Elliott, Brighton, "Rose Culture," February 5; Eber Holmes, Montrose, "Rose Culture," February 9; M. A. Patten, Tewksbury, "Carnation Culture," February 16.

It is expected this year that a general conference of florists will be held during Farmers' Week, which is scheduled from March 11 to 15. At that time it is hoped to have a large delegation of florists present and to have a series of lectures by men of wide reputation. A flower exhibition will be held in connection with this meeting.

The expenses for this course will include a registration fee of $5. Furnished rooms in private families may be obtained at a cost of from $1 to $3 a week. Board at the dining hall is $4 a week and it may be obtained in private families for from $4 to $5. In addition to these expenses some allowance should be made for expenses on the observation trips. Any additional information may be obtained from Dr. William D. Hurd, director of Extension Work, Amherst, Mass., or from Prof. E. A. White, of the Department of Floriculture.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

TO KEEP THE WINDOWS CLEAR.

I noticed the article entitled "Vapor on Show Windows," in The Review of November 23. I have successfully tried the following plan for keeping the windows free of the vapor: Have your window constructed with double sashes, leaving enough space between the sashes to permit the insertion of an ordinary tumbler or drinking glass. Clean the window thoroughly; then place a tumbler containing about one ounce of muriatic acid between the two sashes, and you will not be troubled with frost and ice on your window. When the winter is over, or before that time, you will find that the tumbler is full of water, mixed with the acid. You must, of course, have double windows in order to carry out this plan. Sigfred Lindholm.

DECORATING IN TEXAS.

It will be necessary for some people —perhaps a good many people—to revise their ideas of the decorating that is in vogue in Texas. In certain quarters it still is the popular conception that the fashion in the Lone Star state is to do one's decorating with a gun. It isn't so. They wear flowers in Texas, and a wedding calls for the exercise of the florist's art rather than an exhibition of the border horseplay that gave Texas its old-time reputation.

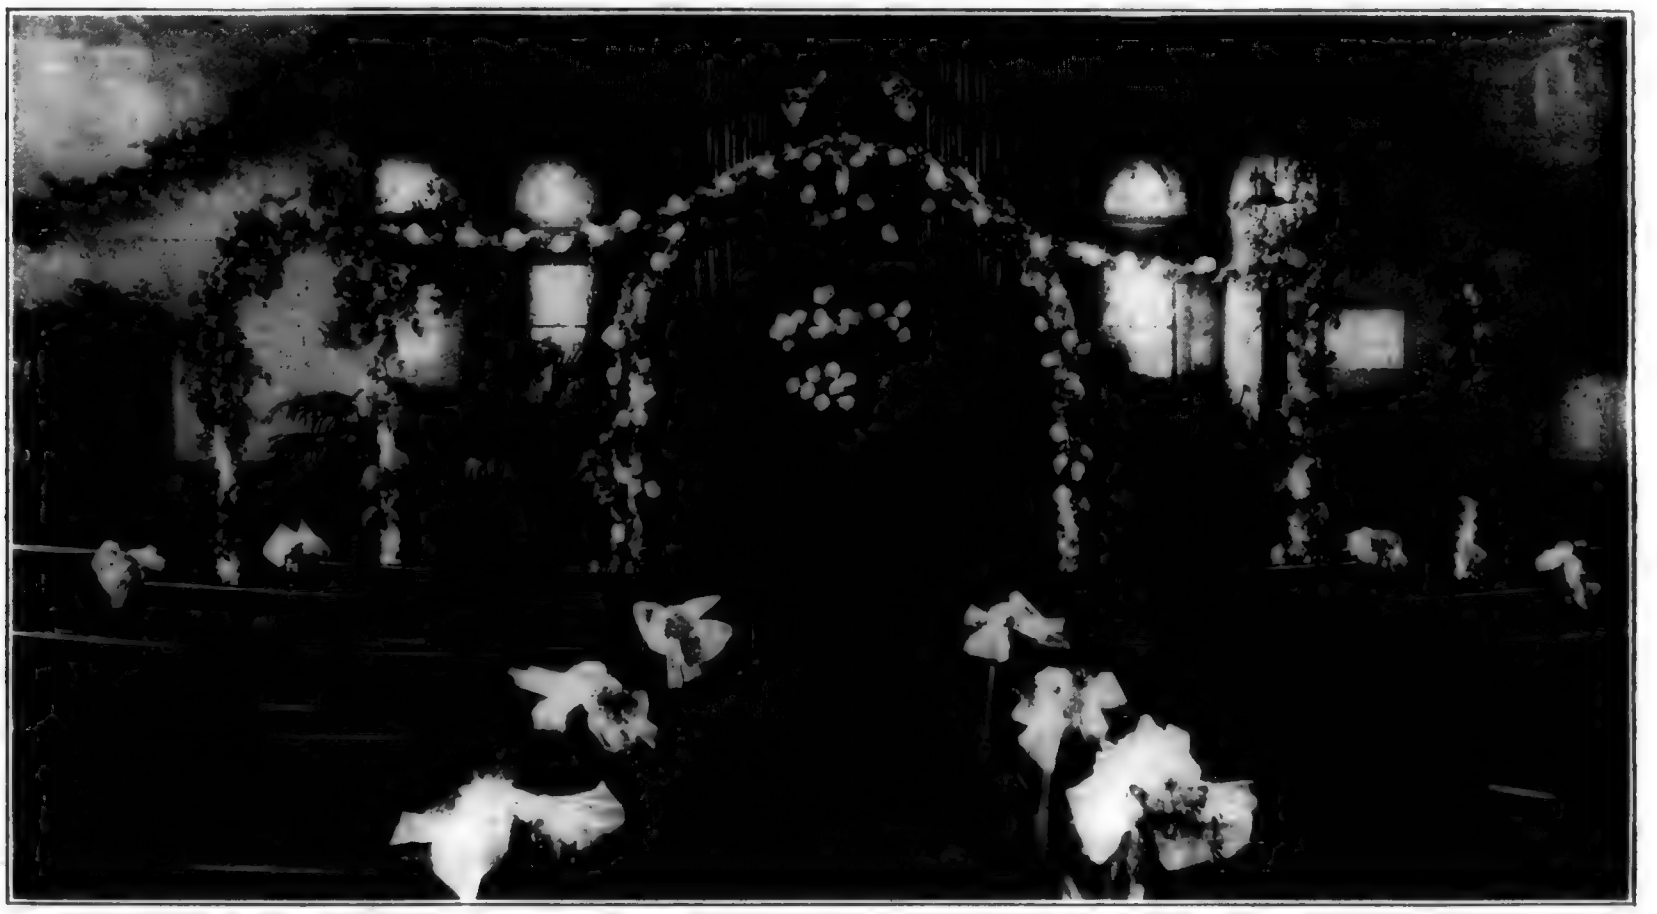
How far Texas has progressed in its appreciation of flowers is, in a measure, shown by the accompanying illustration, reproduced from a photograph of a recent wedding decoration by H. O. Hannah & Son, of Sherman. The bank of palms on the platform is well arranged and there apparently was little of the stiffness that one might expect from the use of the three arches of smilax and mums. The green overhead was wild smilax.

REPORTS OF DECORATIONS.

As a Means of Advertising.

Considerable profit may be traced to persistent and tactful reporting of decorations in the society columns of the local papers. But the decorator must see to it that his work is correctly reported. How many times one would never recognize his own work from the unaided description of the reporter! When once a reporter, especially the woman reporter, gets hold of a few variety names, you are in jeopardy, for if she fails to catch the correct names she will supply them at random from her own limited vocabulary of technical terms, and is more apt to give you credit for using American Beauties and Beacon carnations on the same table than she is to describe properly your dainty centerpiece of valley and cattleyas. This is one case where the lack of information on the part of the general public saves your reputation. While it is none to the reporter's discredit that she is uninformed on the technicalities of our profession, it is one of the half-open doors through which you, ambitious business man or woman, should push your way.

A new name in the description of a decoration is a taker for the society columns when the descriptions, as well as the events themselves, are but repetitions of scores of their own kind, and a short, accurate description of a luncheon centerpiece or a wedding bouquet, which contains a new feature or a new term for an old feature, will stand a good chance of success.



Interviewing the Reporter.

In many cases the reporter will accept your own written description of the decorations, embodying it in her report of the whole affair. It will pay you to make an appointment with her after the decoration is finished, or possibly before it is begun, and give her the facts and names, laying special stress on the best features of the decoration. Even the hostess can not describe the decorative scheme as well as you can, though she has discussed it in detail with you previously. If you take a little time for an interview and keep the engagement promptly, the most courteous treatment will usually be accorded, though it is just as well to allow it to appear that the courtesy is proceeding from your direction.

Once in a while you may succeed in having your name mentioned in the report. Although this can not often be accomplished, a judiciously worded advertisement, appearing in the same issue and on the society page, close to the reports, will help to connect your name with the reporter's description. Use some of the same terms and expressions, with a direct announcement as to specialties in wedding decorations, brides' bouquets or table centerpieces. Advertising that smacks of information can not fail to be a trade puller.

On Good Terms With Reporters.

Once in a while you will have a customer who does not care for the publicity of the newspaper columns. You must keep faith with her, and must also be silent with regard to the plans for affairs that are not yet announced. You will find that reporters whom you have favored will make a practice of visiting your shop regularly for a list of coming society functions, and you must be careful and thoughtful about your customers' wishes in this respect.

Do not neglect to get a notice of your banquet decorations. If time permits, write up in advance a description tallying with your plans, and if you can not get an interview with the reporter, send it to him. But usually a phone message will bring him promptly. It will pay to know the corps of reporters personally and be on good terms with each one. Always report the new or special features—your original treatment of color or your adaptation of society emblems to the table decorations, the effect of lights, the favors, special settings, etc.

Decorations That "Make Talk."

Society women read carefully the reports of functions given by other sets or clubs in the way of receptions, luncheons or dinners. We scarcely realize how large a percentage of the interest of these functions depends upon the decorations. A beautiful arrangement of good flowers in the centerpiece inspires remarks to fill in the gaps in conversation at table, while a unique decorative feature at a reception redeems many a group of guests from boredom. While the prospective hostess avoids the scheme which she knows has already been much used, she will inquire what decorator is the originator of the most significant ideas. It is of prime importance, then, that these be well reported. The floral decorations are the purely æsthetic part of a social function; good taste can comment upon them; the most pleasant and elevating thoughts can dwell upon them.

Indirect But Vast Results.

While it must be admitted that the benefits from society column reports are at best indirect, yet, on the other hand, there is no telling how far-reaching their benefits may become. Next to good window decorations, well prepared descriptions of the floral features of society affairs are the best free advertisements, and if closely followed up they can not help but be profitable.

Right here comes to mind another class of opportunities for free publicity. On the occasion of public carnivals, fairs, expositions, holidays or conventions, reporters are on the alert for catchy show windows. Therefore, with the help of a little suggestion from you, you ought to get a valuable write-up of your window decoration, with a mention of your name, too, if your work has sufficient merit.

Cultivating acquaintance with reporters, then, will gain at least the satisfaction of intelligent and accurate reports to the flower-buying public, and a clever reporter will see the advantage gained for his department of the paper.

Stork Design by Randolph & McClements.

A THANKSGIVING DECORATION.

The accompanying illustration shows a portion of a Thanksgiving ball room decoration by the Swan Floral Co., Lima, O. The picture shows the stage only, but the auditorium was dressed in autumn leaves, sheaves, fodder and corn, in keeping with the picture on the stage, which was a cornfield with shocks of corn, pumpkins and their vines, an old rail fence with underbrush, the whole furnishing a setting for a cabin scene. In the cabin were spinning wheels and an old-fashioned fireplace, in which electric globes made the coals burn brightly. In the yard were five pairs of Golden Seabright bantams and at midnight they vied with the "orchestra" in supplying entertainment for the guests. As Swan describes it: "They are the greatest crowers you ever heard."

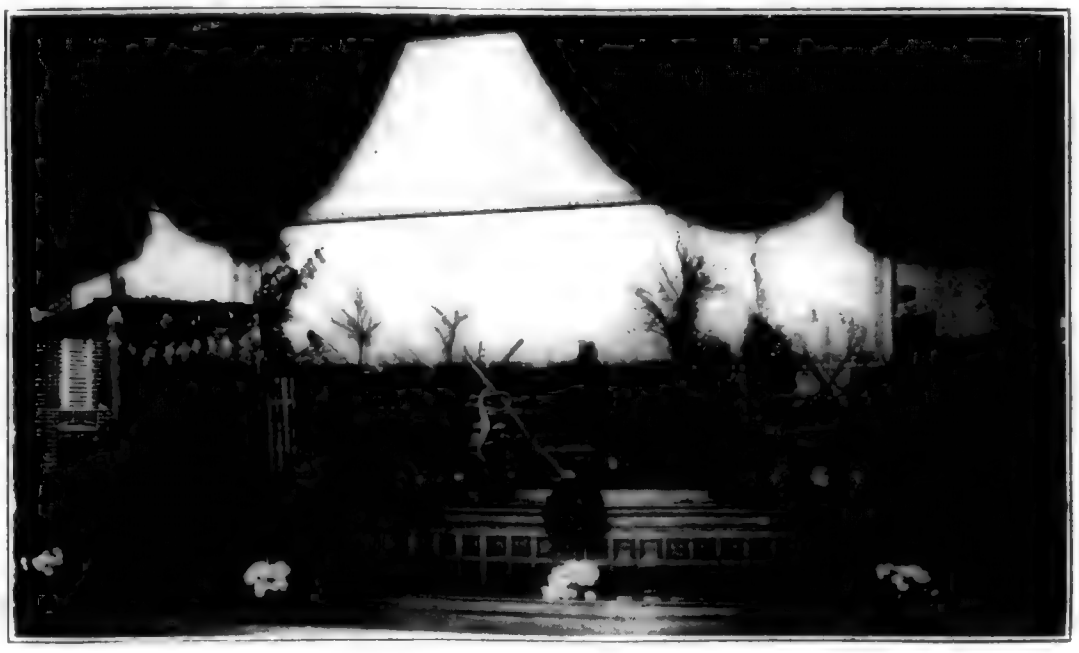
THE STORK DESIGN.

It certainly is a noteworthy event when a wholesale florist is presented with a pair of twin boys. This good fortune recently came to E. J. McCallum, president of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgn. Randolph & McClements, the Pittsburgh retailers, sent to Mrs. McCallum the stork design shown in the accompanying illustration.

A FUZZY STORY.

In spite of the fact that there was no flower show at Chicago this year, the following appeared in a recent edition of a daily paper in an Iowa town:

Apropos of the general fuzziness of the season—fuzzy hats, fuzzy coats and fuzzy furs—the fuzzy chrysanthemum has made its appearance in Sioux City.



The first consignment of four dozen great fluffy yellow and white flowers was received by Rochlin & Lehman. They were purchased by an out-of-town party at the fancy price of $8 per dozen almost before local admirers had a chance to take a look at them.

The flowers were raised at the company's greenhouse in Hinsdale, Ill., and have been on exhibition at the Chicago flower show which is now in progress at the Coliseum. They were among the prize winning collections. The mums are of the Col. Appleton and Golden Wedding varieties.

The local firm also entered prize winning Hudson river violets and pink and white Killarney roses at the Chicago show.

The Review is invited to preach a little sermon with the complete untruthfulness of the above as a text, but it only serves to recall the latest Rooseveltian epigram. When asked to comment on a certain theme T. R. said he would "as soon think of discussing a pipe dream with an out patient of Bedlam as to discuss such nonsense." The wonder is that any florist will permit the use of his name in connection with any item that is not in harmony with the facts.

BULBS FOR EASTER.

Will it be too late, the second week in December, to put in hyacinth, tulip, narcissus and Easter lily bulbs for Easter sales? How deep should the bulbs be potted? Would it be all right to put them out in a coldframe and cover with ashes and then put boards over the frame? I have no sashes. How deep should the ashes be over the top of the pots? Or could I put the pots of bulbs in a cellar, and would the treatment be the same there?

G. C. H.

It is getting late to pot up bulbs of any kind for Easter flowering and with the Dutch bulbs especially you will not get so good results as if the bulbs had been potted or boxed in October. Use a compost of three parts well decayed fibrous loam, one part old cow or horse manure and plenty of sharp sand for the tulips, hyacinths and narcissi, and less manure for the Easter lilies. Merely cover the hyacinth bulbs, but the tulips and narcissi should be potted a little deeper. Soak thoroughly with water before placing in the frame or cellar. They can be kept in a coldframe by covering with six inches of fine ashes and over these a bed of straw and matched boards in lieu of sashes, but a cellar would be far preferable if there is no furnace heat near them, as they can be more readily examined and watered when necessary. Cover with ashes three inches thick in the cellar. They must not be housed until the pots are full of roots and the tips are two to three inches long.

In potting the Easter lilies use single bulbs to 5-inch or 6-inch pots, according to size. Barely cover the bulb and leave ample space for filling in with loam above it. After potting, presuming that you have longiflorums or multiflorums, stand in a shed or under a greenhouse bench in a temperature of 55 degrees at night. Water moderately until the pots are full of roots; then place in a night temperature of 65 degrees in order to get them for Easter, which comes April 7 next year.

WORMS DESTROYING VIOLETS.

I am growing violets and this year have lost a great many plants through white, red-headed worms. Could you inform me of any means of destroying them?

J. H.

I am not acquainted with the worm referred to. This and all other worms, grubs, etc., infesting the soil, are most easily destroyed by the use of carbon bisulphide. This will not harm the plants. Make holes twelve to eighteen inches apart each way and pour a small teaspoonful of the carbon in each hole, immediately covering it. Go all over your beds this way and you are sure to clean out anything in the worm line in the soil. This is best done when the soil is quite damp. Do not use any naked lights while using the carbon, as it is of an explosive nature. For worms eating the foliage a poison spray is necessary. Arsenate of lead is effective and safe, but would whiten the leaves and render them unfit to use. Paris green, at the rate of one ounce to fifteen gallons of water, will not hurt the leaves. Use a little lime with it, to help prevent burning.

C. W.

GAS ON VIOLETS.

I have a house 20 x 66 feet, with an average height of six feet, covered with hotbed sashes, which was planted to single violets in August. During the hot weather following they became infested with red spider. The sashes were not put on the house until the first part of November, after one hard freeze, thinking this would eradicate the red spider, but it has not entirely done so. The violets are in ground beds; all heating pipes overhead. Can I get rid of the red spider by the use of cyanide gas and what proportion can I use with safety to the violets?

W. D. H.

I have not dared to use gas on violets, but the Rhinebeck growers use it almost entirely. I would prefer R. E. Shuphelt or some other specialist should answer this. Our local specialists here never use gas.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

CHRYSANTHEMUMS IN ENGLAND.

In Market and Exhibition.

In the market, in the greenhouses, in the shows, and whenever and wherever growers meet, chrysanthemums are the leading topic. In the markets the season opened with good prices, as blooms were scarce, owing to the drought. Then came heavy supplies and a big drop in prices. Now prices rule pretty much the same as in former years, but only good quality is of any use; second-rate stock will not sell at any price. In the greenhouses, plants are doing well and little coal is required, as we have not had any frosts to disturb the stoker's piece of mind or the grower's pocket.

The quality at the shows has been fully up to the status of recent years. Nothing has been seen of an exceptionally novel character, but a few of the certificated varieties will, no doubt, make their mark.

Popularity of the Singles.

Single-flowered varieties maintain their popularity for decorative purposes and there is a marked improvement in the newer introductions as regards stoutness of petal. Successful marketing has been a trouble with singles, owing to their propensity to wilt, but this is being surmounted by introducing varieties with more substance in the flowers. For dinner table and home decorations they are admirably adapted and are popular favorites.

Growers generally are not overenthusiastic about singles, as they do not yield so much hard cash per square yard as decorative Japanese kinds. Cragg, Harrison & Cragg, of Heston, Middlesex, grow and market them in perfection and they have raised some good things; so, also, have W. J. Godfrey & Sons, of Exmouth. These and a few others have exhibited singles extensively at shows this season. A few that have already proved really good are Edith Pagram, Bronze Pagram, Mensa, Celia, Merstham Jewel, Ronpell Beauty, Mrs. W. G. Patching, Miss Mary Pope, Mary Richardson, J. B. Howe, Heston Bronze and White Pagram.

Among the cleverest things in chrysanthemum cultivation to be recorded are the plants grown and marketed by Butler Bros. They are simply marvelous—plants eighteen to twenty-four inches high, in 5-inch pots, with foliage from the rim of the pots upward and eight to a dozen large blooms. Butler Bros. have studied this method of culture for years and, although they have many competitors, they stand unrivaled. A few of the best for the purpose are Caprice du Printemps, Tapis d'Or, La Pactole, Felton's Favorite, October Bronze, October Yellow and Mrs. Roots.

At the National Show.

At the National Chrysanthemum Society's show, held at the Crystal Palace, London, the prize of honor was awarded to Norman Davis, Framfield, for a large group, including all types, arranged with fine harmony and effect. Others who made their mark with groups and flowers, all leaders in the chrysanthemum world, were H. J. Jones, Lewisham; W. Wells & Co., Merstham; W. J. Godfrey & Sons, Exmouth, and H. Cannell & Sons, Swanley.

Varieties honored with first-class certificates were:

Mrs. Andrew Walker, Japanese, rich chestnut red, from W. Wells & Co.
Mrs. Percy E. Wiseman, incurved, primrose yellow, from P. E. Wiseman.
Heston Bronze, a nice decorative flower, from Cragg, Harrison & Cragg.

All the others that received the coveted F. C. C. were singles, namely:

Chrysanthemum Mrs. B. E. Hayward.

Celia, yellow, from Cragg, Harrison & Cragg.
Mrs. John Peed, bright yellow, from Peed & Sons.
Caterham Bronze, a fine bronze with a yellow zone, from F. Brazier.
R. P. Burge, white, from P. Ladds.
Miss Margaret Walker, a large, bold golden bronze, from W. Wells & Co.
Charles Dickens, rich yellow, from Norman Davis.

I must go back in my notes to the point where I said that nothing highly sensational had been shown. The one sensational variety of the season I have seen is Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, introduced last year by W. Wells & Co. They exhibited it in London and Birmingham, and the flowers, as I measured them, were nine and one-eighth inches wide, eight and three-fourths inches deep and twenty-seven and three-fourths inches in circumference. It is a massive white Japanese flower, with petals full of substance, broad and curling. I have also seen it on the stands of a few competitors at various shows. Next year everybody will grow it. Bee.

MUM MRS. HAYWARD.

G. A. Lotze, Glen Burnie, Md., has tried his hand at raising chrysanthemum seedlings and has had a number certificated by the Chrysanthemum Society of America in the last few years. During the last season he received a certificate for the variety here illustrated, Mrs. Bartlett E. Hayward, an early, incurved pink. It was exhibited before the Philadelphia committee October 21, when it scored eighty-five points.

LATE WHITE AND YELLOW.

Will you tell me which are the best white and yellow mums for late flowering—varieties that will come in nice for Thanksgiving or later? Please state, also, how to handle them. J. A. F.

The white and yellow mums that seem to do best generally are the White and Yellow Chadwick. Nagoya in some cases is a good yellow, but the Yellow Chadwick, providing you get the E. G. Hill strain, is, I think, considerably better.

To get them in for Thanksgiving and later, they should be propagated late, say in June or even July, and then kept growing in the fall as long as possible before they make a bud. After the bud is formed, the plants must be kept in a temperature of from 40 to 45 degrees. Grown in this manner, they will give good flowers from Thanksgiving until Christmas. Any varieties, to produce late flowers, must be planted late and the late bud taken.

Chas. H. Totty.

PROPAGATING.

When are cuttings generally taken of late and early mums for greenhouse planting? When do growers generally plant them on greenhouse benches? Does an early cutting with two or three blooms equal the quality of single bloom from later cuttings? My location is Virginia and I never have grown mums under glass. R. G.

Answering R. G., cuttings are taken from January to July, depending somewhat on the season of planting and when it is wished to cut the flowers.

The exhibition grower, who wants to get the stock in the best possible condition, propagates as early as January with many slow growing varieties, but the commercial grower who is looking for flowers for Thanksgiving probably would not strike his cuttings until the middle of July.

For an early crop for average cut flower work, which is what I presume R. G. wishes to grow, early varieties may be rooted in March and set out on the benches just as soon in May as the house is ready. Plants intended for midseason flowering should be planted in June and for the later work either the first week in August or even the end of July.

Many growers are propagating at the present time, particularly on varieties that are scarce. These are topped and cuttings taken from them at intervals during the spring months. If the plants are properly taken care of, an early cutting with two or three blooms will come pretty close to equaling the quality of single blooms of later cuttings. They must of course be planted wider apart in the benches and not allowed to suffer for lack of either food or water. C. H. T.

A SOFT GROWER.

We are sending you herewith a few mums. You will note that the first few rows of petals have turned brown. The trouble develops just as the buds are expanding and they have the appearance of being soft and rotten. As the flowers open they dry up, as you now see them. They have had the same treatment as the other varieties growing in the same house and in the same bench; the care and the soil have been identical. The same trouble developed last year. Liquid manure and nitrate of soda have been applied at proper intervals. Can you tell us what the trouble is? The variety, I think, is White Cloud. Is this correct? L. F.

When the flowers reached me they were pressed perfectly flat and the foliage was dried up, so I can not tell whether the variety is White Cloud or not.

It is not at all unusual for the lower petals to turn brown if the plants have been fed too much with nitrate of soda, but I assume from the letter that the other varieties growing in the same house and on the same bench are all right. If this is so, the variety sent me is evidently a soft grower and I would advise discarding it. White Cloud was never a particularly soft grower with me, though I have my doubts about this particular variety being White Cloud, as it seems too rounded in shape. There are lots of good varieties today, without bothering with kinds that are too soft or otherwise unfit for commercial cultivation. There are so many fine commercial sorts today that no grower ought to bother with poor ones.

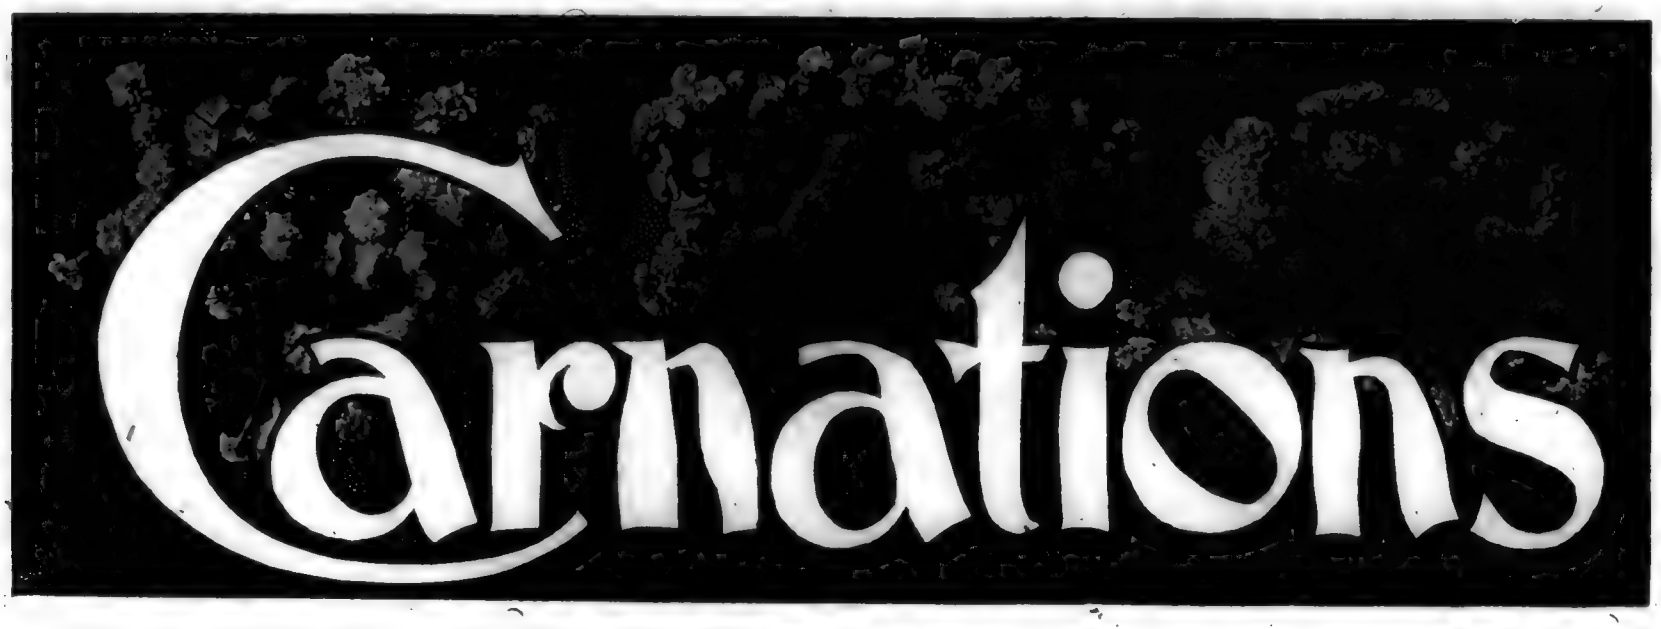
Chrysanthemums of Charleston Cut Flower and Plant Co.

MUMS IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

The accompanying illustration is interesting because one does not usually see large houses of chrysanthemums in full bloom in the south. This is reproduced from a photograph made November 10 at the establishment of the Charleston Cut Flower & Plant Co., Charleston, S. C.

CANNAS AT SPENCER, IND.



I saw in my Review for October 26 some views of the cannas at the nursery of Conard & Jones Co., and the thought came to me that the readers of The Review might like to see some cannas grown in the middle west, where things really grow.

Last spring I wrote Conard & Jones Co., asking them to send us a number of cannas suitable for our display garden. These were planted along with a lot we already had from them, and such cannas we have never before seen in any land. The stock was planted in the open ground—dry roots, not started plants—and you see the result. Although the season was extremely dry in the early part, they grew amazingly, some of the clumps reaching a diameter of two and one-half feet and the plants reaching, as you will see, far above the head of the man who had them in charge. At the end of the season, early October, some of the plants reached a height of more than twelve feet. The accompanying picture was made a month before frost, at which time many florists told us they had never seen such a sight in cannas, and it really was a sight worth going a trip to see a month later, when they were a great deal larger and finer.

PROPAGATING.

Curtaining the Bench.

Having selected your bench for propagating carnations, you will next begin getting it ready to receive the cuttings. Before doing this, however, there is one thing you must provide. You will need some curtains, to keep off not only the strong sunlight, but also strong air currents. A strong current of air blowing over the cuttings, on a bright, warm day, will destroy them as quickly as strong sunlight.

So, if your propagating bed is a side bench in a wide house, you will need two curtains, one just under the glass, to keep off the sun, and the other one to hang down in front of the bench, to ward off air currents. These are so much more satisfactory than the old method of laying on newspapers, that, in installing a propagating bench, they should be considered as essential as the bottom boards.

Selecting the Sand.

Now you are ready for the sand, and good propagating sand is a necessity. We have used both river and bank sand, and while some growers prefer the one or the other, we have no preference for either one. Bank sand is more apt to vary in coarseness, but, if you can select your sand, no trouble should be experienced along that line. Use a good, sharp sand, that will allow the water to drain off readily, but it should not be too coarse, either. There is really more danger of getting poor sand from the river beds than from the pits. Not only is river sand apt to run too fine, but it is also apt to come from near the mouth of sewers, etc. In such instances it is, of course, unfit to use for propagating. So be careful where your sand comes from.

Leveling the Sand.

When putting sand in your propagating bench, make it about three and one-half to four inches deep before it is watered and packed down. Three inches is deep enough after it has been firmed. See that it is leveled off nicely, so that the water will soak in uniformly when you water the cuttings. Speaking of firming sand reminds one of the many crude methods for doing this work that one sees in going around. A handy packing tool is made out of a piece of cypress plate, 2 x 6 x 10. On the middle of this is nailed a V-shaped handle, with the two ends against the large piece. This is sawed out of a 2 x 4 scantling and is made just large enough to fit the hand nicely.

We have used two inches of clean cinders and three inches of sand, instead of all sand, with excellent results, and when the sand is rather fine this is a good plan, as it helps the drainage. A. F. J. Baur.

WATERING CARNATIONS.

We should like to get some information in regard to watering our carnations during the cold weather. Our plants are in good condition now. They have not been watered at any time as heavily as some growers water, but we feel that we need advice in regard to watering during the cold weather. We are also planting a house with winter-blooming daisies and snapdragons. What would be the right temperature for these and the distance apart in the benches? L. B.

Without knowing anything about the texture of your soil, it would hardly be policy for me to try to tell you how to water it. There is a vast difference between the water required by a heavy, clay soil and a light, sandy soil. In fact, it is not safe to try to lay down hard and fast rules for watering any kind of soil. You must be governed by the condition of your plants and the weather.

As a general thing, however, if your plants are in good growing condition and your soil drains readily, there is not much danger of overwatering the plants. We aim to keep our soil in a fairly moist condition all the time. We never allow it to become really dry, as we think this causes more splitting than anything else, with the possible exception of extreme variations in temperature. Neither should the soil be kept in a soggy condition for any length of time. After each watering we allow it to get just a little on the dry side, when another good watering is given. Our soil is a medium loam and drains well. As already stated, a heavy soil will not bear watering as we water ours. Some soils need close watching. To flood them at any time will cause them to run together, and if allowed to dry out they will cake into a hard mass, in which no carnations will thrive. The only way to water such soil is to administer the water in small doses and in such a way as to avoid both extremes at all times.

Plant your snapdragons about fifteen inches each way and your daisies will stand about two feet each way. They will thrive in a carnation temperature. A. F. J. B.

USE OF CHICKEN MANURE.

I can get any quantity of chicken manure. Will you kindly tell me how best to use it for carnations? How much should be put in fifty gallons of water to make liquid manure? How much should be used as a mulch? My beds are 5 x 135 feet, with six inches of soil in them. D. E. P.

Chicken manure is not considered a good fertilizer to give your carnations as a steady diet. It is all right to give as a change two or three times in a season, as a dressing on the benches, but can be given oftener as a liquid. In using it as a top-dressing, it should be pulverized and mixed with soil in the proportion of about one part to three parts soil. Put two good handfuls between each row, halfway across a 5-foot bench.

To make a liquid, put a peck of the manure in a burlap bag and hang it in a 50-gallon barrel of water. In about three days you can use the water on your benches. The first lot should be diluted with water half and half, but after that it can be used without diluting. The same manure will be good for four barrels of water. Give such a dose not oftener than once in each month, using cattle manure between. A. F. J. B.

SPRAYING IN AFTERNOON.

Please state what is your opinion of watering carnations in the afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock. Is it proper to sprinkle them every afternoon between 4 and 5, when not watering the roots? Our grower insists upon this method, which I do not agree with. A word from a competent man would be greatly appreciated. J. A. & S.

The idea of spraying carnations overhead between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon is certainly not in accord with the most modern methods of growing these flowers. Nowadays we spray overhead perhaps on an average of once each week, and then it is done in the morning of a bright day, so that the plants will be sure to dry off before evening. Your grower is constantly inviting trouble and it would be wise to get him headed off as quickly as possible. Spray only to keep spider in check or to keep it away, and water only the soil between the plants. A. F. J. B.

STRONG PLANTS, BUT FEW BUDS.

My carnations were planted from the field in July and the early part of August. The soil was prepared in about the same way as in other years, when the plants did well. This season, however, they do not make roots well and they make no headway in growth. They look healthy and strong, but make few buds. I shall be pleased to hear from someone who has had experience of this kind. H. B.

Without seeing the plants, it would be difficult for anyone to form any idea of the cause of your trouble. We have seen individual plants act in this manner, and in at least one instance have seen fully seventy-five per cent of a house behave in a like manner. In these instances it was simply a case of wild growth, such as you have no doubt seen in your Lawson plants occasionally. Such plants will produce a rank growth without throwing any buds. I know of no remedy for this, but have heard it suggested that to cut the plants back hard would cause them to return to a normal growth.

Is it not just possible that your crop of buds is merely late, a condition produced, perhaps, by late topping on account of the smallness of the plants, which was general all over the country this year? Make sure of this point before you adopt any drastic measures. If the plants appear strong and healthy, it is not likely that there is anything wrong with your soil. A. F. J. B.

STEM-ROT.

Having read much of the stem-rot in The Review, I would like those who have the rot in their plants to examine the root of the plants, as I think it is caused by sour soil or manure too fresh. I have only had a few carnation plants affected, so that I have been unable to test it thoroughly, but I found when the plant was quite dead with the rot the root was dead, but when the plant was partly affected the root was only partly affected, so that I think the trouble is below the soil and not above. Would like others who find it so to give an answer in The Review. E. S.

Carnation Rainbow.

CARNATION RAINBOW.

Variegated carnations were much to the fore at the National Flower Show at Boston last spring and one of the features noted of them was that the originators had chosen, departing from the practice of giving names of persons, titles more in keeping with the character of the flowers. For instance, the Wanoka Greenhouses, Barneveld, N. Y., gave to its medal winner the name of Rainbow. The variety is the result of crossing a seedling with Lawson, the seedling having originated from a cross of Morning Glory with Lawson. The color is a delicate shading from deep to light pink, on the order of Prosperity. The character of bloom is shown in the accompanying illustration.

THAT CALYX SUPPORT.

In my trip south last month I came via Cincinnati, and as I had a short time to wait at that point I thought I would take a look at some of the flower stores, having never been there before. In conversation with several different persons I found to my astonishment that they are all still relying on what we consider a much out-of-date method, and that is sewing up or in some similar way fixing burst carnations. I voiced my astonishment and only met with incredulity in most cases when I told them that there is a neat little invention on the market that obviates having split blooms. This little invention we have used for several years to our great satisfaction and profit, as it is made of brass and lasts as long as you take care of it, making it really the cheapest as well as best way of overcoming the split flower difficulty. It makes a perfect natural bloom, without defect, and so salable at the top price. The statement was made that one could sew them quicker. This is supremely ridiculous, as the calyx, as it is called, is clasped about the stem and shoved up over the bud before it is fully developed, all in one motion, and they should be placed by the person disbudding a bench, in this way really taking no extra time to place. Anyone familiar with carnation growing knows how readily he can tell a bud that is going to burst, so that you know just which ones to place it on. At the same time they can mostly be removed from those that they are no longer needed on, as after the petals of the flower have stretched out of the calyx there is no further danger of splitting.

This little invention came from Rhode Island, I believe, at first, but as the inventor died, it now is owned by Morton F. Tank, of Chatham, N. Y. I have written at length about this, as I believe that when one runs across a really good device or labor saving invention it is but right to call our friends' attention to the same.

R. E. Shuphelt.

New Philadelphia, O.—T. B. Stroup reports Thanksgiving trade quite an advance over last year. Business has been active ever since autumn arrived, with many quite large wedding decorations.

Enid, Okla.—About five o'clock Thanksgiving morning, fire attacked the greenhouse establishment of J. R. Detwiler, consuming the boiler room and nearly one-quarter of the houses. The loss was about $1,500. Tarpaulins were used to protect the openings and oil stoves were set up, thus saving the remainder of the plant.

ERADICATING MILDEW.

I notice in the last issue of The Review, that for November 23, a reply by W. H. T. to W. G., in regard to "Sulphur on Pipes," in which W. H. T. states that this is an old-fashioned remedy for mildew. Now, I have a stubborn case of mildew on a good house of roses and I find it hard to handle it this "old-fashioned" way, so please have W. H. T. give us some up-to-date remedy or method for killing or getting rid of this mildew and I shall greatly appreciate it. J. E. M.

If the mildew does not seem to be overcome by the ordirary treatment with sulphur, I would suggest spraying with a solution of sulphide of potassium, commonly called liver of sulphur, the solution to consist of half an ounce of the sulphide to one gallon of water. The sulphide of potassium should not be exposed to the air for any length of time, as it is liable to deteriorate from exposure, and the solution should be used as soon as the chemical is thoroughly dissolved. Sulphur on the pipes will usually conquer the mildew, but is liable to spoil the color of the roses to a greater or less extent. W. H. T.

TROUBLE WITH BRIDE ROSES.

Enclosed please find a rosebud, Bride. Kindly state trouble and remedy.

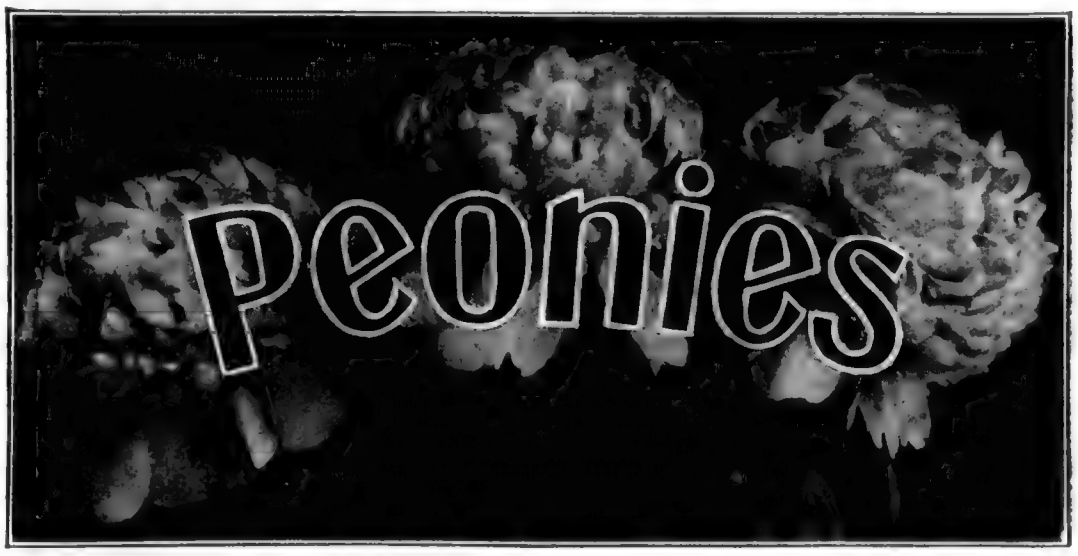
W. A. L.

The short, thick buds, not unlike the bull head flowers which were characteristic of the old Perle, are becoming more common on this good old variety, and your best remedy would be to drop this sort and grow White Killarney, which is a better rose in every way and succeeds in the same temperature and under the same conditions as Bride. Even under the best conditions, Bride will throw a proportion of these flowers. If growing the variety again, use care and do not propagate from plants which have this failing. Careful selection of cuttings will do much toward remedying the trouble. C. W.

RICHMOND AND RHEA REID.

I should like to ask the successful rose grower what he thinks of Rhea Reid as a money-getter alongside of Richmond. Does it compare favorably as to quantity, etc.? F. P. B.

Rhea Reid is not grown to anything like the same extent as Richmond. In the market quotations from the big cities Richmond is always mentioned, while only in Boston and Chicago do we find Rhea Reid named. Bassett & Washburn, Hinsdale, Ill., grow this rose well; so does William H. Elliott, of Brighton, Mass., at his Madbury, N. H., establishment. Mr. Elliott finds it pays him better than Richmond, perhaps because it succeeds better than Richmond in his particular soil. The color, while good, is less brilliant than that of Richmond. Still, there are many who like it. As a money-maker it is fully equal to Richmond, always provided that the flowers can be sold at the same prices as Richmond. Under good culture it produces some fancy flowers, which are worth more money than the best Richmonds. The color is the only drawback to its more extended culture.



HARDY ROSES.

Hardy roses should be protected before the ground freezes solidly. The simplest and best plan is to throw or draw earth up about the stems, and, provided the plants are annually cut back quite hard, there is sure to be some live wood left to prune back to in the spring. Mother Earth is a far better protecting material than manure, straw or leaves. This protection applies to the hybrid perpetual class. Hybrid teas are more delicate. They can sometimes be wintered successfully by laying them down and earthing them over, placing a mulch of straw over this. However, there are many places where this covering will not suffice, in which case it is much safer to lift the plants and store them close together in coldframes, being sure to wet the roots well when planting them. If frames are not at disposal, dig a trench on ground with a good slope and bury the plants, afterward covering with some mulching material.

HOT WATER HEAT FOR ROSES.

I should like to ask some of the principal rose growers whether any of them depend entirely on hot water for heat and have success in keeping clear of mildew. I should like to know how to do so. I should also like to ask whether those who have hot water do not have steam to help them out in this battle. F. P. B.

I am not acquainted with any rose growers who now use hot water for heating purposes, although there probably are many among the smaller growers. It is difficult, if not impossible, for the small growers now to compete with the big growers of roses. Those having steam have, of course, a great advantage over the hot water users in keeping mildew in check. I have seen tolerably clean roses grown with hot water heat, but it needs much care and forethought to do so. I would certainly say that you have a much harder road to hoe in controlling mildew with hot water than with steam. C. W.

THE PEONY "BOOM."

Bertrand H. Farr, of Reading, Pa., who is president of the American Peony Society, commenting on a recent item in The Review to the effect that "the peony boom is not 'busted,'" says:

"I certainly do not think that the 'peony boom' is 'busted' by any means. The best evidence of it from my standpoint is that I do not advertise in The Review, simply because so far I have had enough inquiries from my retail advertising, together with unsolicited inquiries from dealers, to keep my stock at a point where I have no worries about the surplus, especially since what little surplus I have has every year given me good returns in cut flowers alone. I believe it is true that the tendency of a large number of people to rush into the business has received a check to some extent, but the country is large and of the finer varieties there is nothing like an adequate supply for the demand, which at the present time has only slightly been aroused. The great mass of people do not know peonies. Comparatively few people have seen any but the varieties most commonly grown. Everywhere large country estates are being developed. The wealth of the country is rapidly increasing, and as people acquire the means and opportunity the appreciation of the garden develops with it, and in my opinion the demand, not only for peonies but for hardy plants of all kinds, is in its infancy in this country."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Genistas.

While genistas sell particularly well at Easter, it is a good idea to start a few plants from time to time. They will make a welcome addition to the list of flowering plants in midwinter. Do not attempt to force them. A night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees will bring them along nicely. In order to get a good stock of young plants for another season, place a good batch of cuttings, rubbed off with a heel, in a propagating bench. If carnations will root in it the genistas will do equally well. In addition to genistas, also put in some cuttings of such ericas as melanthera, caffra densa, gracilis and hyemalis. Rub these off with a heel. It takes them much longer to root than genistas, but if not allowed to get dry at the root or exposed to sunshine, a small percentage only should fail to root. They propagate more easily during the coldest months of the year.

Christmas Azaleas.

Coming, as they do, so close together this season, any unsold azaleas from Thanksgiving can easily be held until Christmas in a cool house. The call for the bright-colored dwarf varieties, Hexe and Mme. Petrick, is strong for the holidays, and even if these only have a few flowers open they will sell. Give these and any other Christmas azaleas a brisk heat and frequent syringings. While Deutsche Perle is always in some demand and can be flowered with little forcing, it is the colored varieties that take the lead at Christmas.

Lilies.

Harrisii lilies intended for Christmas should have a night temperature of 65 degrees and the plants are benefited by being sprayed over frequently in clear weather. The use of tepid water is generally advised for all plants being forced hard, but the writer's personal experience has been that it makes little difference whether the water has a temperature of 40 degrees or 80 degrees. The same holds good with regard to cutting benches. Some assert that for tropical plants warm water is necessary, but I have always had just as good results from the use of water direct from the faucet as when it has been stored in a barrel and warmed. Cold storage longiflorums are in fair demand at Christmas. This holiday runs largely on colored flowers, but there is always some call for lilies. Plenty of water, heat and atmospheric moisture are requisite for these winter flowering lilies.

Lilies for Easter all should have been potted before this time. If any longiflorums are still out of the soil, lose no time in getting them under way. This lily likes heat all the time. As it is now late for potting, any of these laggards should go into a shed or house with a temperature of 55 degrees or 60 degrees from the start. Remember that Easter comes early in 1912, and to have plants on time it should be possible to see and count the buds on or about February 25, which would be six weeks before Easter. This is none too much time to allow in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. Stand any of the longiflorums on the bench when they are first through the soil and grow them warm. It is much better to have the plants a little on the early side than to subject them to hard forcing near Easter.

Lilium speciosum and auratum are now to hand and should be potted at once. These do best in fair sized pots, the speciosums three to four bulbs in an 8-inch pot and the auratums in 10-inch pots. Cover the bulbs well and store in a cool cellar rather than under a greenhouse bench until they are well rooted, with the shoots pushing through. Any wanted for outside planting, which frost in the ground may prevent the setting out of now, can go singly in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, according to the size of the bulb, and be set out quite deeply when the ground has thawed out in spring. L. speciosum from cold storage bulbs are acceptable Christmas flowers, especially the varieties rubrum and Melpomene. These, if potted in July, will now be flowering. They are better grown fairly cool, at 50 degrees night temperature. The flowers are much firmer than when hard forced and come also of a better color.

Dutch Bulbous Stock.

The earliest lot of Golden Spurs and Trumpet Majors should now be in heat. Some of these may flower for Christmas, but it does not pay to force these hard in an effort to flower them. A temperature of 55 degrees at night is better than one 5 degrees to 10 degrees higher, as in it the flowers will be longer and of greater substance. The French bulbs of Golden Spur, Emperor and Trumpet Major are earlier than the Dutch and, while somewhat shorter stemmed, can be bloomed without trouble for Christmas. A batch of that excellent forcing tulip, La Reine, and a few of Yellow Prince, should be taken in at once. Keep them in a warm but dark place until the shoots are well drawn up. Treated similarly to lily of the valley they do well, only they are better without bottom heat.

Amaryllis.

As the amaryllises will now have lost most of their foliage, they can be laid on their sides in a temperature of 45 degrees to 50 degrees. A few will probably be already showing spikes. These should be repotted when necessary, using a compost of fibrous loam and dried cow manure, with a little sand and fine bone added. Many plants will not need an annual repotting, but if the drainage is seen to be all right and a good top-dressing is given they can, with the aid of liquid manures, be kept in good growing condition. In starting plants a little bottom heat is an advantage and water should be applied a little sparingly until spikes and leaves show. A temperature of 55 degrees to 60 degrees at night is suitable.

FORCING THE BEST LILACS

DIRECTIONS OF A SPECIALIST.

Preparing the Plants.

Before a lilac can be forced into bloom it wants a period of rest. The plants, when grown in pots, go into a dormant state about the latter part of October. A well grown lilac differs from a poorly grown one not always by its larger number or the thickness of its branches. Both plants may look almost alike. Sometimes the shape and appearance are in favor of the badly grown one. The chief value lies in the way they are treated during the summer. They should be grown in such a way that they go into the dormant state early and yet have stored sufficient nourishment to feed a full sized flower. It is easy to grow a nice looking lilac, but hard to grow an easy flowering one. If the roots are allowed to grow over the pots they make a strong growth and a field of lilacs grown in this way looks healthy and fine as a rule, but their value for forcing is doubtful.

When the lilac plant goes into a dormant state in October nature has not yet fulfilled its task. Although the superficial observer sees nothing uncommon on the buds, inside of them there goes on a number of chemical processes that make them ready for the coming spring. Not before the buds are fully prepared can a full sized flower be produced. Before the plants should be forced into flower it is necessary that the period of rest is sufficiently advanced. That is why a plant forced in January or February forces easier and gives better results than when forced in December.

Shortening the Rest Period.

To shorten this period of rest, freezing, hot water treatment or etherizing are applied with good results. Plants that have been exposed to frost have their period of rest shortened. For this reason it is advisable to heel the plants in outside so they are exposed to frost. Hot water treatment is best applied in a basin of water of 85 to 95 degrees Fahr. Only the buds and shoots need to be treated; the root balls are left out. This treatment takes about six to ten hours. If the temperature of the water is lower (70 to 80 degrees Fahr.) ten to twelve hours will be necessary. Plants that have been exposed to frost need shorter treatment. Etherizing is done in an airtight box in which ether is placed and vaporized. This treatment takes about twenty-four hours.

Although it is rather difficult to give definite rules for forcing lilacs, I shall try to explain in the following lines the most essential. It must, for the greatest part, be left to the forcer to understand the exact needs of the plant and his requirements as to watering, airing and heating. I shall also explain how to insure Charles X its delicate lilac color, which is something unknown to the majority of lilac forcers.

Lilacs can be had in bloom at Christmas, but the success with them is not sure when they are not previously exposed in one of the three ways to shorten the rest period. I would therefore advise not to bring more plants inside than is necessary, for the results are uncertain. The later the plants are brought inside, the better. They force easier and make better flowers and trusses.

High Temperature Needed.

Lilacs want a high temperature and the idea of letting them come slow, or as florists sometimes say, "almost natural," is entirely wrong. They should be forced. The meaning of that word clearly expresses itself.

When the lilacs are taken into the greenhouse they should at once be given at least 80 to 90 degrees Fahr. If it is not possible to give them so much heat from the greenhouse pipes, and if there are other plants in the same house that do not require so much heat, I would advise placing the lilacs in one end of the house and have this part separated from the other part with boards, glass or canvas. Then bring the division to the necessary temperature. The heat of a stove is favorable to lilac forcing. It makes the air dry, where the boilers make it damp.

One has to take care to spray abundantly three or four times a day, through the branches and buds, and also to have the root balls in the pots sufficiently wet. On account of this spraying the surface of the soil will look rather wet, but this is deceitful, for the lower parts of the balls are sometimes too dry. On the other hand, the balls should not be too wet. The plants do not consume much water in the first eight days and if too wet, the roots will rot. Here it is where the forcer should use his own judgment. The buds have to be constantly kept moist. Within ten to twelve days the buds break open and are about of a finger length. This is the time to lessen the heat until the trusses have attained their full size, which takes about two and one-half weeks. Also the spraying should methodically be lessened. When the flowers begin to expand, a thin spray once or twice a day will be sufficient. If the flowers are open, the spraying should be stopped. Spraying on the open trusses is ruinous to the blooms.

The last eight to ten days the lilacs can get sufficient heat from the greenhouse pipes and it is only with dark, wet weather that the stove needs to be used. During forcing it is well to give them once in a while a little airing.

The Best Varieties.

The variety Charles X has a fine lavender color, but if forced wrong turns into a dirty white. To insure this variety its beautiful color it is necessary to place the plants cooler after the second week of forcing and in a place where it is possible to give them fresh air from the outside through the ventilation. This should not be done when it freezes. Charles X, when flowering outdoors, always is blue. Even those plants which do not show good color in forcing get the right color outside. This gave us the conclusion that forced plants that were exposed to outside air the last week of forcing also should regain their natural color, and by doing so we were successful.

Marie Legraye, single white, is the easiest to force, consequently the earliest. After this variety comes Charles X, single lavender, and Souvenir de Louis Späth, single purple, Mme. Lemoine, double white, and President Grevy, double lavender. These are the varieties that give best satisfaction.

H. R. FISHER.

Before starting in business for himself at Marysville, Kan., a little less than a year ago, H. R. Fisher had worked in flower stores all over the country. He put in twenty years at the trade before starting for himself, but since getting the backing of a banker that permitted him to make his start he has made splendid progress, the trade at his place having increased over 150 per cent since he took it over—which shows the good judgment of the banker who staked him.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["What England Can Teach Us About Gardening," by Wilhelm Miller, Ph. D. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. Size, 7½x10¼ inches, 360 text pages, illustrated with 112 full-page photographic plates and eight plates in color. Price, net, $4; postage, 35 cents.]

"What England Can Teach Us About Gardening," by Wilhelm Miller, is the sort of book that may easily be praised, freely and emphatically praised, without danger of doing violence to the truth, anl the most maliciously disposed reviewer would have difficulty in finding fault with it.

In the first place, to begin with its mechanical make-up, it is a handsome volume, really a sumptuous one. In paper, type and illustrations, it would well bear comparison with many of the so-called editions de luxe. The 112 full-page halftones, as well as the eight colored plates, are real works of art.

In the second place, to pass from its mechanical style to its literary style, the author's manner of expression is as clear and attractive as could well be wished. Though affixed to Mr. Miller's name is the formidable degree of Ph. D., yet he prefers, he says, to write "like one business man to another, instead of following the classical models studied at college." He even confesses that he has used slang when it best suited his purpose. At any rate, his phraseology is terse, vigorous and graphic, with an occasional sparkle of humor. It is a pleasure, not a task, to read the book.

His knowledge of the subject, too, will be readily admitted, in view of what he has accomplished as associate editor of Bailey's Cyclopedia of Horticulture, editor of the Garden Magazine and horticultural editor of Country Life in America. And he completed his equipment for the writing of this book by visiting England and carefully studying its gardens.

But, after all, the most important fact about the book is the wisdom of its purpose. The best aid to an appreciation of the book is a thorough understanding of its aim. Though the author states unhesitatingly that this country is three centuries behind England in gardening, and that Americans must "get busy" if they would make their country "one great garden, as England is," yet he strongly condemns the close, undiscriminative following of English example. In writing the book his effort has been to gather from English gardens and landscapes such ideas as are really applicable, with more or less modification, to American conditions. The principles of his book have been partly imported, as it were, from England, but have been sufficiently Americanized before being introduced to the reader. He insists that the ambition of American gardeners should be, not to copy or reproduce English gardens, but to establish a distinctively American style of gardening, with English gardens as an inspiration, a guide, and sometimes a warning.

And, as this main idea of the book is elaborated throughout its pages, almost every possible form of gardening—wild, formal, rock, water gardening and all the rest—is fully described and discussed in the author's own entertaining way.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Immediately after Thanksgiving the market began to tighten, until now there is scarcely enough stock to fill early orders, much less take care of everything properly. The chrysanthemums are rapidly nearing the close of their season and their gradual exit, combined with the small supply in other lines, has made the quantity of stock available much less than could be easily used. Accompanying this movement on the part of the supply and the strong demand came an increase in prices.

The supply for Thanksgiving was large. The growers held everything until the last minute and sent it all in at one time. The inevitable in such a case followed; in order to move the accumulation prices had to be cut quite considerably. More or less of the mums plainly showed the effects of the holding over. The really good stock brought its usual good price. Friday was spent in disposing of the stock held over from Wednesday and Thursday. Since then not a large quantity of anything has been apparent.

From now on the roses will undoubtedly be the leaders in the market. Reports from the growers indicate that there will be a steady increase in the cut until the Christmas holidays. The quality of all is good. American Beauties of all sizes are again available and the quantity of them arriving each day seems adequate to take care of all normal demands. Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond are fine, while Bride and Maid are not far behind.

Right now the supply of carnations seems somewhat limited. The growers all say there are plenty of buds, with many of them showing color, but they are slow to open. Those that are offered, however, are good. The colored varieties seem scarcer than the white.

Bulbous stock is fast becoming a factor in the market. Narcissi have been finding little trouble in getting buyers and this week Roman hyacinths are added to the list. The same general shortage is apparent in most other lines. Lilies sell quickly. Violets, both doubles and singles, are running short of the call for them. Valley is good property. Poinsettias are coming in stronger, while the quality is of the best. Orchids and stevia are also included in the list of offerings. The demand for all kinds of green goods is excellent.

Various Notes.

Florists' Club meeting Monday, December 11, at the club rooms.

Albert McCullough has returned from the south the picture of health.

C. E. Critchell is the first local wholesaler to offer Roman hyacinths this fall.

Joe Beran, of the cut flower department of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., has been handing out cigars. A baby daughter arrived at his home December 2.

E. G. Gillett has been receiving some elegant Beauties from Heller Bros., of New Castle.

P. J. Olinger says that from the appearance of his stock at his greenhouses, he will have a banner month.

Visitor: W. I. Knoff, of the Weller Pottery, Zanesville, O.

Wm. Murphy's first cars of holly and laurel arrived on schedule time. If the early demand is any criterion for the sale of the whole, Mr. Murphy is bound to clean out in a hurry. C. H. H.

DAYTON, OHIO.

The Market.

When the first day of November put in an appearance it found the cut flower market dead and flowers of all varieties in abundant supply, many of which were consigned to the ash barrel on account of no business. Stock of all kinds, and especially roses, crowded the market. This condition lasted until the month was about twenty days old, and from then on business commenced to pick up and stock began to get scarcer. When November took its departure conditions were entirely reversed, and at the present time the demand for stock far exceeds the supply. Not only are carnations a scarce article, but roses likewise. Chrysanthemums have had their day. Lilies are in good supply, also narcissi, but owing to the scarcity of roses and carnations the florists find it easy to dispose of them. In fact, nothing in the cut flower line, at the present time, goes begging for a buyer.

Various Notes.

At the establishment of the Miami Floral Co., George Bartholomew says business is most satisfactory and the outlook is good. The only drawback at the present time is the scarcity, which makes it difficult to meet all demands. Thanksgiving trade was the best they had in years, this being all the more appreciated after the previous prolonged lull in trade.

Mrs. E. Young, who has been on the sick list for the last week or so, is able to be at the store again.

The Heiss Co. reports having every reason to be thankful, for the Thanksgiving business was all that could be wished for. The company also realized a big thing on chrysanthemums this year; practically none of them went to waste.

M. Anderson was in Cleveland last week on business.

On the evening of November 29 the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew was the scene of a pretty home wedding, when their daughter, Miss Ruby A., became the bride of Claude W. Leslie. The house was profusely decorated with palms and lilies. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley. Mrs. R. G. Bartholomew, matron of honor, carried a large bunch of Bride roses, while Miss Amy Ewing, the bridesmaid, carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. The groom was attended by his brother, Howard Leslie, as best man. After the ceremony a dainty supper was served.

Mrs. T. M. Waters, of Eaton, O., tells us that she had a big Thanksgiving trade and that her chrysanthemums this year were fine and brought good prices.

A. F. Longren, from E. H. Hunt's, Chicago, was in the city several days last week. His display of florists' supplies at the Phillips House was elaborate.

Miss Katheryne Young had a big wedding decoration at Franklin, O., last week.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson was as busy as a bee last week, getting out funeral orders.

Samuel Kurtz, Dayton's latest addition to the craft, tells us that everything looks very encouraging. R. L.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Thanksgiving business was excellent and growers, wholesalers and retailers were well satisfied. The clean-up was better than we have had for several years. Chrysanthemums, especially colored ones, sold well, in some cases making $3 to $4 per dozen, a few specials going to $6, but the heaviest sales were on flowers of medium size at $10 to $16 per hundred. Bonnaffon, Nonin, Maud Dean and Chadwick were leading varieties, with some of the Jerome Jones. Roses sold out extremely well; top grade Beauties made $6 per dozen. There was a good supply of Richmond and Rhea Reid and these were eagerly snapped up. Killarney sold well, but the white variety went more slowly. The yellows, such as Mrs. Ward, Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Waddell, were in good demand.

Carnations made a sharp advance in price, selling at $3 to $5 per hundred, with some fancies at $6. Fenn, Beacon, Scarlet Glow, Sangamo, Dorothy Gordon and Pink Delight were leaders.

Violets cleaned up in fine shape at $1 to $1.50 per hundred, some extra singles going as high as $2. Valley was abundant, with no change in price and moderate sales. Some good snapdragon came in, the pinks being in great demand. Some nice mignonette sold well. Marguerites were not plentiful and made $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Paper Whites and Romans were in good supply at $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Sweet peas, chiefly pink and pure white, made 75 cents and $1 and were abundant. There were some fine pansies, which were in demand. Cattleyas were in short supply at $6 to $8 per dozen. Gardenias were plentiful, with only moderate sales. There was an excellent sale for both Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus.

Plant trade was quite good. Azaleas were favorites, especially Hexe and Mme. Petrick, also Lorraines, cyclamens, primulas, ericas and nephrolepis.

Since Thanksgiving there has been an excellent market. December 2 everything was cleaned up, with Thanksgiving prices well maintained, and in the case of carnations even improved on, sales being at from $3 to $6 per hundred and some with specials as high as $8. Violets and roses were also still selling well. Chrysanthemums are much less abundant and the demand for them has fallen off considerably.

Various Notes.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is shipping splendid consignments of Pink Delight, White Wonder, White Enchantress, Beacon and other carnations to the Flower Growers' Sales Co. Mr. Pembroke grows sweet peas heavily, and his daily pick is over 3,000. He will largely increase his planting of carnations next season.

Geo. E. Buxton, of Nashua, is now sending large daily shipments of his high grade carnations to Thomas Pegler at the Boston Flower Exchange. Some of Mr. Buxton's leaders are Winsor, Fenn, Bon Ami, Sara Nicholson, Pink Delight, Enchantress and White Enchantress.

Beacon, White Enchantress, Enchantress and other leaders.

Frank Putnam, of Lowell, from his North Tewksbury establishment, in addition to his carnations, which have gained an enviable reputation for quality, has an excellent lot of antirrhinums, with extra long flowering stems for the season, which are in active demand at the stalls of the Flower Growers' Sales Co.

Welch Bros. are more than satisfied with their Thanksgiving business, which was away ahead of 1910. They had a heavy shipping trade and their growers sent them a grand lot of sweet peas, valley, carnations, Beauties, Killarneys and other seasonable flowers.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day at Framingham on Saturday, December 16, leaving Park Square on special Boston and Worcester electrics at 12 o'clock. The establishments of W. R. Nicholson, S. J. Goddard and J. T. Butterworth will be visited. The Framingham outings always attract a large attendance.

Richard D. Kimball, of Waban, is this season having extra success with carnations, White Wonder, Gloriosa, Pink Delight and Beacon.

William Sim lectured before a large meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society on sweet peas, December 1. Accompanied by Messrs. F. J. Dolansky, Geo. Gordon and A. A. Pembroke, he visited many of the private estates before the meeting.

J. Newman & Son had an exceptionally heavy November and their Thanksgiving trade was the best ever. Their Tremont street store windows are always tastefully arranged.

Waban Conservatories had a superb lot of roses for Thanksgiving. Pink and White Killarney, Lady Hillingdon and Richmond are their specialties. Mr. Montgomery's new seedling, Mme. Charles Russell, is a wonder and should be a star feature of the rose meeting in Detroit in January.

Thomas Roland is cutting bunches of the pretty yellow chrysanthemum, Golden Thread. This is an excellent late sort for sprays and makes a light and graceful centerpiece. It also makes an excellent pot plant.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have at their store a fine assortment of azaleas, Lorraines, cyclamens and other holiday plants. They are practically sold out of bulbs, only a few tulips being left over.

The W. W. Edgar Co. had an excellent Thanksgiving trade in azaleas, Lorraines and other flowering plants, and have the houses full of high grade Christmas plants.

S. J. Goddard is still cutting excellent yellow and white Jerome Jones and Nonin chrysanthemums.

A Leuthy & Co. have an unusually fine stock of Christmas plants, including azaleas, Lorraines, ardisias, cyclamens, gardenias and primulas in addition to their line of palms, ferns and other foliage plants.

December 19 is the date of the next club meeting, when officers are to be elected. There will be short practical talks while ballots are being counted. Many exhibits are promised.

The Arlington Gardens, of Arlington, Mass., and S. J. Reuter are shippers of extra grade valley to the Boston Flower Exchange.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is having wonderful success with his antirrhinums and is selling rooted cuttings as fast as he can propagate them. His carnations are among the finest coming to the Boston Coöperative Market.

Wm. H. Elliott can grow Rose Rhea Reid as few other growers can and he had a superb cut of them for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Aaron Ward is now in grand shape with him. He still finds a call for the old favorites, Bon Silene and Safrano.

Mann Bros. will have Golden Spur narcissi in flower in a few days. They have an abundance of French bulbous flowers, Lilium speciosum and longiflorum, late mums and stevia now.

W. N. Craig.

SCRANTON, PA.

Greeting a Florist-Mayor.

B. E. Cokely, senior member of the Scranton Florists' Supply Co., called on me the other day, and accompanying him was Frank Baker, a well known florist of Utica, N. Y. Mr. Baker was returning from a trip to New York city and stopped off to pay the Scranton people a visit. He and Mr. Cokely are close friends, having known each other for many years, on account of Mr. Cokely's frequent visits to Utica while traveling throughout the country. We were delighted to shake the hand of a fellow florist who has not only made good in the trade, but has made good in politics as well. It is a signal honor to be elected mayor of one's city, as Mr. Baker has been, after having doled out flowers for a number of years to its inhabitants. His political success proves that the flowers he handled must have been of excellent quality, and his manner of doing business must have been such as to command the respect of the people, since they saw fit to nominate and elect him to the highest office in the city government. We understand that Mr. Baker has held other offices in his city, taking a step higher each succeeding time.

A Trip to Moosic.

My two visitors asked me to take a trip with them down to Moosic, a little town six miles below Scranton, to visit William MacDonald, the florist of that town. The journey was made by railroad and occupied only about ten minutes. We found Mr. MacDonald in work right up to his neck, as he had begun in September the building of an office and designing room, and also a large cellar for the hardening of cut flowers. He has the reputation of sending out some of the best carnations and chrysanthemums in this section of the state. We also found in process of construction a house connecting the entire range with the new office. A new greenhouse, about 30x70, was nearing completion. Mr. MacDonald's men were just then in the agony of putting in the glass, which means cold fingers.

Mr. MacDonald has a fine place, and after the new buildings are finished his plant will be quite complete in its equipment. His four King Construction houses are each 30x120, and completely filled with carnations. It looks as though he could cut thousands of carnations from now until Christmas. His stock has that hardiness and thrift which bespeak the greatest success. We found also about 40,000 geraniums in 2½-inch pots, and the plants gave great promise for spring trade. In the other houses were cyclamens, azaleas and poinsettias for Christmas trade, and they were in a decidedly thrifty condition. Mr. MacDonald is one of the quiet sort of men, apparently never in a flurry or bustle, though his work moves steadily along and everything he touches seems to respond perfectly to his direction. In order to make his heating plant more complete and have a reserve in case of emergency, he is just now putting in an eighty horse-power return tubular boiler, which will give sufficient heat in a time of accident or in the most severe storm.

After spending a pleasant afternoon with Mr. MacDonald, we took the train back to Scranton, where an automobile was in waiting to take Mr. and Mrs. Baker to Mr. Cokely's home, to participate in a grouse dinner. Mr. Cokely had been on a hunting trip in Wayne county the day before, and either through accident or good marksmanship was enabled to bring home grouse enough for a fine spread. Mr. Baker called on our mayor and a number of our craft, and all wished him success in his new office.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business has improved considerably. Some few still complain, but generally optimism prevails. The return of Congress accounts in part for the improvement, although resolutions adopted by the house and senate a year or two ago prohibiting the display of flowers on the floors of the legislative halls on the opening day of the session does away with the continuous procession of florists' delivery wagons that formerly marched on the capitol.

Thanksgiving business was good and since that holiday things have been even better. Roses are of fine quality and plentiful, but moving as fast as received. Mums were at their best last week, but they are holding out well and the prospect is that they will be on the market for two or three weeks more. Dealers will try to clean them out before Christmas, however, as roses and other flowers have the call at the Yuletide.

Various Notes.

Poinsettias have appeared and are good. Small & Freeman are showing some fine ones and George C. Schaeffer, too, has good specimens.

Washington florists are interested in an apparently authoritative report from the Agricultural Department that a rule has been made that the department shall no longer distribute cut flowers and plants free. The department has made a practice of such distribution for twenty years, more or less, and the practice has worked harm to the local florists. The latter have protested to government officials in vain. Frequently the florists have been forced to cancel orders received for flowers and plants from members of families in official and society life for the reason, as given, that the florists' patrons have later obtained free flowers from the government. This sort of competition has made Washington florists sore, but they have heretofore accomplished nothing to prevent it. The announcement of the department's reported change of policy is received with skepticism by many florists, who predict that the new policy will not be strictly pursued and that certain people on certain occasions will always be able to obtain all the plants and flowers they need for nothing from Uncle Sam, through congressional and official influence.

A number of decoration orders have been received by local men. Small is excuting one or two. The Washington Florists Co. has been busy on coming-out teas and other social functions. At the Hobson wedding, W. Marche spread himself and had to borrow a lot of palms for the affair.

The Washington Bulb Co., of the suburb of Congress Heights, is sending out some of the finest Jeanne Nonin mums seen this year. Many of them are specimen blooms. The Washington Florists' Exchange is handling a lot of them. Paper White narcissi are another product of the Washington Bulb Co., 10,000 having been sold recently.

W. R. Gray, of Oakton, Va., has issued a new and attractive catalogue of his specialty "Fairfax roses."

J. Louis Loose, of the Washington Florists Co., has returned from an extensive trip through the northern cities. He reports prices high and stock scarce generally, and predicts a shortage of Beauties at Christmas.

Z. D. Blackistone is absent from the city on a short pleasure trip. At Mr. Blackistone's store it is said that their combination Thanksgiving baskets of fruit and flowers sold quite well.

H. C. H.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Thanksgiving business was good, everything considered. Stock was scarce anl shipping orders were of necessity cut almost in two. City trade would probably have been better had there been more stock available, but taken as a whole it was excellent. Prices were advanced only a little, carnations and Beauties being the only flowers that showed an increase. Carnations are still holding back their blooms and the daily cut in some instances amounts to only one-third of what it did at this time last year. This is discouraging and makes the growers feel badly when their returns are compared with last year.

Chrysanthemums are gone, Thanksgiving having cleaned up everything. It is somewhat of a relief to see the last of these, as they require more work for the money than anything else.

Beauties are off crop, with prospects for a good cut at Christmas. The short-stemmed stock is poor and is sold at a low figure. Tea roses are about equal to the demand, except once in a while, when there is a large funeral or wedding.

There is plenty of lily of the valley ready, but there is no special demand. Violets, too, are slow sale, although the quality is improving. Some of the California violets are arriving in excellent condition, and are entering into competition strongly with the home product.

The cold weather that prevailed last week caused some of the cut fern shipments to freeze, and for a few days there was a shortage of green in that line. Smilax is about cut out and shipments are being sent in from outside points.

Various Notes.

A flower show for the fall of 1912 is now assured. All of the required amount has been subscribed and the committee is working hard to make the show a grand success. The Auditorium has been secured for the week of November 11 to 16. This will give a floor space of about 15,000 square feet. The committee appointed at the first meeting, consisting of J. A. Valentine, N. A. Benson and A. H. Bush, has been made a permanent one, with power to select as many other committees as are necessary.

The announcement of the marriage, October 26, of Thurston H. U. Smith and Miss Eva May Thompson came as a complete surprise to Mr. Smith's many friends in the trade. Congratulations and best wishes are extended to them.

Harry J. Berry, having found his Fifteenth street location undesirable, has moved around the corner to the Orpheum Theater block, where he has a larger and better store. His address is 1519 to 1521 Welton street.

Emil Glauber has a fine lot of W. K. Harris ferns that he is placing on the market.

The Gross Floral Co. has moved from 131 Broadway to 136 Sixteenth street. This company has worked up a nice business on the south side, but no doubt most of it will follow it to its new location in the downtown business district.

Immediately after the removal of the Gross Floral Co., F. X. Goeschl concluded that the vicinity of Broadway and First avenue could not long be left without a flower store, so he rented a place at 245 Broadway and opened Wednesday, November 29.

Lena, the 6-year-old child of Milton Freeman, an employee of C. F. Maler, was killed last week by falling from a moving street car. Mrs. Freeman had put the child on the car, but before she could get on the car started, leaving her standing on the street. The little girl became frightened and jumped off the car.

Fred Hall is exhibiting some fine specimen plants of Adiantum Croweanum in 8-inch pots.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Cooper entertained The Coterie at dinner Wednesday evening, November 22, at their home, 649 Marion street. The table was beautifully decorated with oak foliage, yellow chrysanthemums, large clusters of Tokay grapes, and Farleyense fern. Those present, besides the host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Neiman, the Misses Gertrude Page, Lena Webb, Avery Edwards, Lenore Williams and Margaret Jennings, Messrs. B. E. Gillis, Chas. McCord and Hugo Neff.

S. R. Lundy, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was called to this city last week on account of the serious illness of his son. The boy's condition was improved, however, on the arrival of his father.

Visitors: John Berry, Ed Johnson, Colorado Springs; N. E. De Golier, Loveland; C. A. Espelin and T. J. Warren, Fort Collins.

M. R. J.

Hartford, Mich.—L. E. Davis, who recently opened for business here, reports a good trade, although his buildings are not yet completed.

OBITUARY.

William H. Murdock.

William H. Murdock, for many years a florist in Cambridge, Mass., died November 26, at the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where he had been since the preceding Tuesday. On that day he collapsed while at work in his garden, suffering from a slight shock. He was born in Cambridge in 1837 and retired from business about ten years ago. He served in the common council in 1888 and 1889. He was also prominent in the First Universalist church in Cambridge. He leaves a son, Harris H. Murdock, of New York, and two daughters, Miss Florence Murdock, a student at Mount Holyoke College, and Miss Dorothy Murdock, of Cambridge. Mr. Murdock's home was at 165 Putnam avenue.

B. Eldredge.

In the death of Bernard Eldredge, at the Great Northern hotel, Chicago, November 28, the trade loses one of its unique characters. He was president of the National Sewing Machine Co. and made his home at Belvidere, Ill., dividing his interests between that town and Chicago. Some years ago, as an amateur, he produced so much stock in his greenhouses at Belvidere that he began the sale of his surplus, from which start he built up a considerable range of commercial houses, consigning his output to Chicago commission men. He took no part in trade affairs, but was a frequent visitor to the Chicago wholesale center. He was a man of outspoken character and at various times had shipped his stock to pretty nearly every house in the market. Death was caused by heart disease. Interment was at Belvidere, December 1.

SHAWNEE, OKLA.

The Brenner Floral Co., of this city, has been declared bankrupt and the court has set the date for the disposal of the stock and fixtures to be sold and a receiver appointed December 14. The Franke Floral Co. has the property leased and will dispose of its interest with the Brenner stock.

Anderson, Ind.—Stuart & Haugh recently held their twentieth annual flower show, which was even a greater success than any of its predecessors. Since last season the firm has remodeled the greenhouses and installed two large new boilers.

Greenville, Ill.—D. H. Zbinden has purchased the greenhouse and everything belonging to Emile Corboz on the Fanny Martin place. Now, instead of one house 14 x 50, he has four houses. Thanksgiving trade was much better than last year.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Harry Miller, the Bella Vista florist who was burned out about a year ago and who has since rebuilt his greenhouses on the mountain near Marysville, was at the Verbeke market November 29 with his first lot of chrysanthemums.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—McDonald & Steel, now at 119 West Main street, have a much larger store and also a better location. Thanksgiving trade was better than last year. A. S. Pett has just completed a new store building, with two greenhouses connected.

The Review brings results.

THE country over the Thanksgiving turkey appears to have called for unusually large numbers of flowers.

WHILE some of the big cities may have, for the present, about all the cut flowers they need as a regular thing, it is not by any means true of the country at large. The use of flowers is increasing faster than ever.

IF all the growers succeed in their efforts to get a full crop of roses for Christmas, will there be the usual glutted market in the early days of the new year and a great scarcity in late January and February?

LYCOPODIUM, except in wreathing, certainly is scarce, but the demand has been considerably reduced by the high prices of the last two years and general recognition of the fact that green is not likely ever again to sell at old time low prices.

IT is worth while bearing in mind that in practically all the big wholesale cut flower centers, the great bulk of the carnations are this season either white or light pink. Dark pink and red are to be had in only a small fraction of the quantities of the light colors.

IF J. K., who dates his letter Newark, N. J., November 27, and N. Y. R., who dated his letter at New York, but posted it at Philadelphia, November 28, will send their full names and addresses, the inquiries will be answered promptly. Anonymous inquiries cannot receive attention. Full names never are published in replying to those who seek information, but must accompany the inquiry in every case.

BUSY TIME COMING.

The man who looks ahead and prepares for the future is the one who is ready for the rush when it comes:

We enclose our check for $2 for our subscription to The Review from January 1, 1912, to January 1, 1914. We are paying it now so that we will not forget it in the rush at the new year.—Poole & Purliant, Winchester, Ky., November 27, 1911.

DENVER TO HAVE SHOW IN 1912.

Denver is to have a flower show November 11 to 16, 1912, under the auspices of the Colorado Florists' Club.

A guarantee fund of $5,000 has already been subscribed by the florists alone.

I am sending you this communication so that all the growers of the country may know that the premium list will include a special open class for the largest chrysanthemum plant in the show, without restriction as to variety, and in this class the first prize will be $100; second, $75; third, $50.

So far as I know, these are the most liberal premiums of the sort ever offered in this country, and they ought to bring out a lot of entries from all over the country.

J. A. Valentine, Chairman.

THE use of boxwood for Christmas this year will be much more general than in any previous season. Boxwood and ruscus are two of the articles all the stores are ordering.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

HOW ABOUT YOUR SURPLUS?

There is hardly anything in the way of surplus stock that will not find a ready buyer if offered in the Classified department of The Review.

You may discontinue our advertisement of chrysanthemum stock plants, as we are sold out. We want to thank you for the prompt returns for our surplus stock.—Scharff Bros., Van Wert, O., December 1, 1911.

DOUBLE PAGE SPREADS.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Following the Thanksgiving holiday it was necessary for most of the wholesalers to do more or less cleaning up at sacrifice prices; those who did not have this work to do were the ones who had seen the early signs of what was going to happen in the carnation market and who had put the knife in prices before the holiday demand had entirely subsided. No great quantities of stock were left on hand except carnations, practically everyone being stuck on white, with many also overloaded on Enchantress. It was the old story of not being able to get enough stock for the demand two or three days in advance of the holiday and being engulfed after the shipping orders were out.

After the accumulated carnations had been cleaned up at low prices the market stiffened and the close of the week found things back at about the same point at which the week opened. The present week began with only moderate supplies and a fairly well maintained market. Bright weather is doing much for the crops, but the effect does not yet show in increased receipts. Carnations, while fairly plentiful, are bringing normal December values, and roses are not in excess of the demand. Some new crops coming on have increased the available quantity of short stems, but not enough to lower the price. A large part of the stock now being cut is the extra long grade and of exceptionally fine quality. Killarney, of course, holds the first place, but White Killarney also is selling well, the longer stems especially so in comparison with what they were doing last season. The season of demand for Richmond has arrived. Maryland is less plentiful and the novelties cut little figure, as the supply is not large enough to permit taking care of more than a few customers. Mrs. Ward is especially in demand.

Chrysanthemums have practically ended, though a few stragglers doubtless will be seen all through the month. The pompons have gone, all except the

Mrs. Beu, of which considerable quantities were still on hand at the opening of the week. Violets are making little stir. There are those who say the quantity reaching Chicago is greater than a year ago, but others do not agree. It is the general report, however, that the buyers are less anxious to secure violets, stating that the retail demand is not what it was. Cattleyas are scarce, the bulk of the stock being Percivaliana. Some good Trianæ are coming in and already are making Christmas prices. The miscellaneous orchids are equal to the demand. Sweet peas are seen in larger quantities and most of them are of quite fair quality, but not selling any too well. Valley continues in normal supply and demand. Eastern shipments prevent lilies from going above moderate prices. Paper Whites have come in so strongly that it may be said the annual glut has begun. Romans are in much the same condition. A few tulips have arrived. Bouvardia, if good, sells well.

A large business is being done in boxwood, but other greens are quiet.

November Business.

The general report is that the November business compares favorably with last year, the increase being at least as great as the year's increase in glass. Early in the month there was an excellent market, mums doing better than usual; the glut of these in the middle of the month was less prolonged than last year. The Thanksgiving business compared well with previous records. Carnations did not average so good prices as last year, but the quantity of stock handled, on the whole, in spite of the lateness of the date, was considerably greater than ever before. There were plenty of mums for everyone, in spite of the holiday coming the last day of the month.

November Weather.

November was much colder than usual and the sunshine much below the average. Not in twenty years has the mean temperature been so low as 35 degrees. The minimum was 12 degrees, and it followed the maximum, 74 degrees, by only a little more than twenty-four hours. The average number of hours of sun per day was only four, or only forty-one per cent of the possible. It is especially noteworthy that there was the least sun at the middle of the month, when buds should have been setting for Christmas crops. In the fifteen days of November 9 to 23, inclusive, there were only 38.9 hours of sun.

Various Notes.

About January 1 the Foley Mfg. Co. will discontinue the sash and door branch of the business and devote all its energies to the production of greenhouse building material. A New York branch office will also be opened at the same time, in charge of a man who has been identified for many years with the greenhouse building trade. It is interesting to note that originally the sash and door business was the mainstay of the Foley establishment, but greenhouse building has increased so rapidly in the last few years that the original line has been superseded by the former side line.

The holiday, with numerous coming-out parties, weddings, family gatherings and other social affairs, caused a marked stimulus to business. Mums held out well to the last, but only a few scattering ones will now be offered until the Christmas holidays. Two unusually elaborate coming-out parties, one of which called for several hundred Beauty roses, had a decided effect upon the conditions.

Prices stiffened somewhat a couple of days before the holiday and again on Wednesday. Chrysanthemums, of which several thousands were handled, were $3 to $7.50 per dozen; roses, $1 to $5 per dozen, with American Beauties at $8 to $12; carnations, 75 cents to $1.25 dozen; orchids and gardenias, $8 to $12 per dozen.

Various Notes.

William Hay, of Oaklawn, is shipping large consignments of fine roses to the Boston market daily.

Joseph Kopelman handled the largest stock of cut flowers at wholesale and retail of any year he has been in business.

The funeral of James B. Gay, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Rhode Island, gave several of the city firms lots of work. There was an abundance of floral tributes and nearly all of the dealers got a share. Mr. Gay was assistant treasurer of the Providence Journal Co., and Johnston Bros. furnished nearly all of the pieces from the various departments of that concern. J. Kopelman, M. Macnair and T. J. Johnston & Co. also had a number of pieces.

A number of good greenhouse men are wanted in this city and vicinity, as there are a number of vacancies.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, is bringing in some fine dark red cyclamens in 6-inch pots, which find ready call.

Johnston Bros. added two men to their force during the holidays.

James Hockey, superintendent of Moshassock cemetery, Pawtucket, where he has a greenhouse, is making an extended trip in Europe. During his absence his son attends to the business.

Proposals for the erection of a greenhouse near the pumping station in Fall River, Mass., are solicited by the Watuppa Water Board, Daniel J. Sullivan, president.

G. D. Fenner is beginning to plant three large houses to bulbs for the early spring and Easter trade, at his range in Oaklawn.

O. S. Hughes, who recently opened a retail store at 82 Westminster street, has given up the business, his place having been taken over by Henri Patri.

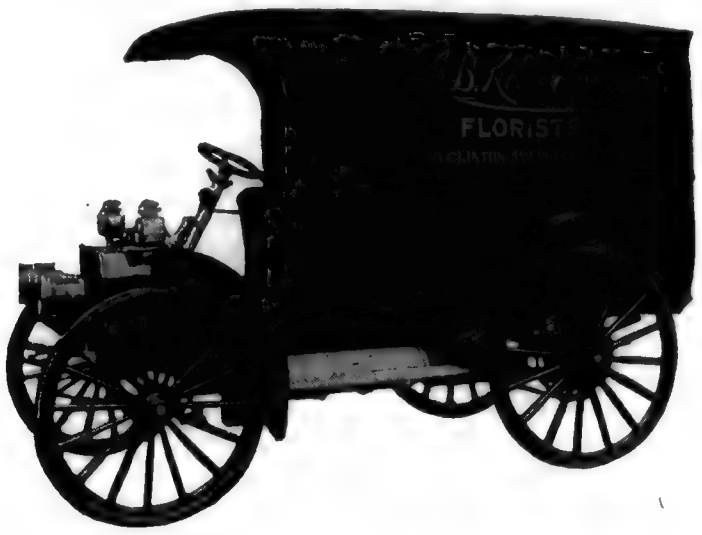
T. J. Johnston & Co., Ed Brooke, manager, have the contract for the table decorations at the Crown hotel for the season. They had several large private decorations last week.

M. Macnair kept four delivery wagons busy all day Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning in getting out his orders. With increased clerical and sales forces at both stores on Weybosset street, he had his hands full.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, reports the largest cut of orchids since she has been in business, and yet her supply did not equal the demand.

E. Court Bentley has been appointed deputy tree warden by Tree Warden Frederick C. Buffum, of Westerly.

W. S. Pino and Lawrence Hay are serving on jury duty in the Superior Court of Providence county for two weeks.



W. E. Barrett & Co. furnished turkeys and greenbacks to their employees for Thanksgiving.

Timothy O'Connor had the decorations for the Nightingale coming-out party, which was the most elaborate floral affair ever seen in this city.

Nils G. Pierson, of Norwood, gave a duck supper to a number of his acquaintances the other evening. The game was captured by Mr. Pierson while on a hunting trip.

Among the visitors in this city last week were the following: W. B. Curry, of J. Charles McCullough, Cincinnati; Mr. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn.; F. G. Fischer, of the National Folding Box Co., New Haven, Conn. W. H. M.

Newtonville, Mass. — H. A. Mansfield, 67 Walnut street, reports that he has retired from active business.

From Every Standpoint
The Perfect Delivery System for Florists

It means money and reputation to a Florist to get his plants and flowers delivered quickly—an hour or two of delay often means a loss of their first crisp freshness.

When decorating a house or church it is most necessary that the Florist and his plants should get there in a hurry and back in a hurry.

AN INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL CAR

will make deliveries in one-third the time required with a horse-drawn vehicle. It means better service—lower cost of delivery—a larger territory—and as a result, more business.

The International Commercial Car is the most practical car on the market. The motor is simple, well built, and economical in fuel consumption. The wheels have solid rubber tires—no delays due to punctures and blowouts. The International Commercial Car is sold at the lowest price consistent with high-grade materials and the best workmanship.

Write and tell us what conditions you have to meet and we will be glad to furnish you with figures showing the saving an International Commercial Car will make for you—figures based on the experience of other business men.

Trade all along the line has been excellent and away ahead of other years. The social season has been a particularly good one and is likely to hold out for some little time. An event that brought considerable business to the trade was the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, November 27 to 30. Quite a number of events were given in their honor and the demand for bouquets was large. November 27 the Royal Canadian Yacht Club gave a big ball in their honor. This took place in the Armories, which were profusely decorated with flowers and plants. Harry Dillemuth had charge of the work and the Robert Simpson Co. shared in some of the decorations.

Just now every one's thoughts are turning to Christmas. From present indications stock will be only fair. The weather this season has been poor for growing and stock has not come along as it should. The crop of azaleas, which flower is popular at this season of the year, is not satisfactory. There is a lot of poor stock. The bad season in Europe is given as the reason for this, the hot weather over there being responsible. In other years the plants in the greenhouses came along nicely without being forced, but this year extra heat has had to be used and the quality is not as good as usual.

Various Notes.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The cut flower market is buoyant. The week from Thursday, November 30, to December 6 was the best that the market has enjoyed this season. The opening day—Thanksgiving—was good. It has been improving ever since. Roses have advanced under an excellent demand and reduced receipts.

Chrysanthemums fairly jumped at Thanksgiving and have continued in brisk demand ever since. Buyers who formerly questioned values now take what they want on sight, if the price is anywhere near right. Nonin is the white of the day. There are probably more of this variety than all the others combined. Nagoya and Bonnaffon are the leading yellows. Rosette is the leading pink and, in fact, other yellows and pinks are rare.

Carnations have taken a jump. Much of the stock offered is exceedingly fine. Enchantress and Bassett and one or two more are bringing as much, when well grown, as the Wards and Gloriosa. Beauties are firm, with the fancies more plentiful than the medium grades. The smaller roses are in good supply, excepting the cheap grades used for design work. Anything over 5 cents is easy to obtain, but flowers at a lower figure are often difficult to find. This is particularly true of white. Richmond is not in heavy supply.

Violets seem to have reached the high water mark for the present. After a decided shortage, there are signs that the supply equals the demand. Prices are easier. There is no change in orchids except that the smaller and less expensive Cattleya Percivaliana is nearing the end of its season. Trianæ is rather scarce and in demand. Gardenias are active. Valley is the only lily that shares in the brisk business. Easters are dull and callas still unimportant. Mignonette has arrived. Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths are more abundant. The finer greens are more in favor.

The out-of-town demand has been excellent. A feature of the local business was the surprising demand for the incoming of the reform municipal administration, December 4. More flowers were used on this occasion than for many years past. Not baskets, but loose flowers chiefly.

Ontario Street.

Godfrey Aschmann was seated at his desk, busily engaged in doing the work that makes a place run smoothly. Just in front of him, in the shed beyond, his son and his assistants were packing advance Christmas orders. The houses, a new one having just been added, are full of flowering and foliage plants, with here and there a great gap where an order has lately been picked out and become a block of paper-covered plants waiting for removal to the packing shed, looking like a regiment of white coated soldiers on dress parade.

Mr. Aschmann has a large assortment of plants for Christmas that have been carefully selected and carefully grown. Azaleas are a feature of the flowering stock. Mme. Petrick has the place of honor. It has the Christmas color and is a fine early variety. Verveneana comes next, quite as good when pink is wanted. Then come Simon Mardner, a good, reliable sort, and Deutsche Perle, the best early white.

FOR THE CHRISTMAS TRADE

BOXWOOD SPRAYS

Exceptionally fine stock, dark, glossy green, no surplus wood. The choicest lot we've ever received. We are the introducers of and the headquarters for this valuable green. For Christmas there is nothing that makes a choicer or more beautiful wreath than Boxwood, with a little coloring of Bronze Mahonia. Boxwood, 50-lb. crates, $7.50. A few days' notice should be given to avoid any delays.

BRONZE MAHONIA: $1.50 per 100; $12.50 per 1000.

LYCOPODIUM: Splendid quality, full and green, not dried out on account of being gathered too long. Deliveries any time. Quotations on application.

LYCOPODIUM WREATHING: Quotations on application.

BRONZE GALAX: For immediate delivery, cold storage stock, $15.00 per case. New crop likely ready about December 10. Probable price, $7.50 per case.

LEUCOTHOE: Green and bronze. $1.00 per 100; $9.00 per 1000. Bronze ready about December 10.

CUT POINSETTIAS: Some especially well-grown stock. The large heads are beautiful specimens, deep, velvety red. Per 100, $25.00 and $30.00. A few of the very large ones, $40.00 per 100.

GREEN GALAX: New crop, $7.50 per case.

PLUMOSUS: Contracts made for the season on strings or bunches; very choice stock.

HOLLY WREATHS: Of the very best holly, made full, with plenty of berries $15.00 per 100; extra large, $20.00 and $25.00 per 100.

MAGNOLIA LEAVES: Green and bronze; per basket, $2.25.

The begonias are a sheet of bloom, Lorraine, Cincinnati, Erfordii and others. Mr. Aschmann believes in Erfordii; its freedom of bloom, varying color from pink to red, and robust vigor making it a general favorite. Cyclamens, poinsettias, primroses and Jerusalem cherries are all specialties with Godfrey Aschmann. The solanums, as the cherries are called, have glossy green foliage, contrasting prettily with the profusion of berries. Araucarias, a specialty here, lead in the foliage section. Then come the palms, including nice arecas and latanias. The ferns in every size and of many types are a big feature and fill many tables. Rubbers evidently are returning to favor, as they should. Last, but by no means least, there is a big stock of Asparagus plumosus, from the useful size for ferneries and edging baskets up to the large sizes for hampers and decorative work.

Various Notes.

Charles F. Edgar spent several days here this week. Mr. Edgar, formerly well known in retail and wholesale circles in this city, has been for over two years with Miss Rebstock, of Buffalo.

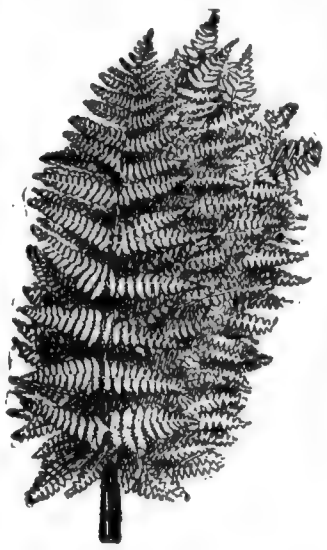
NEW YORK.



The Market.

Thanksgiving week was an agreeable surprise in the wholesale market. Values of everything improved and the outlook became brighter and more encouraging as the week came to a close. Saturday night, December 2, saw the market completely cleaned up for the first time in many moons. The new week opened with four inches of snow on the level and little stock arriving. The demand was sufficient to maintain values at last week's average quotations.

It is predicted there are enough chrysanthemums left to last until New Year's. Splendid stock of Chadwick, Nonin, Gold Mine, Eaton and Bonnaffon is still arriving in quantity and excellent prices are obtained. With the exception of a few specials or novelties, from $3 a dozen down to $1 covers the range in values. Bonnaffon led all others in abundance and popularity, but never before has the New York market been so completely dominated by the mum for so many weeks and no serious slump resulted.

Roses of every kind have advanced to nearer their rightful value. The supply at present is limited, but any increase in shipments will be met by the natural increase in demand, with a present prospect of considerable elevation in prices for the holidays. American Beauties have touched 50 cents, and even 60 cents for some selected stock. The quality being now superb, all grades of Beauties are absorbed at good prices except the No. 2. Hillingdon, Taft, Jardine, Bulgarie and all the new varieties have advanced and are quickly taken on arrival. The craze for novelties is marked. This does not lessen, however, the popularity of Richmond, Killarney, Maryland and Chatenay, and the old favorites, Maid and Bride, now arriving in such limited quantity, have shared in the general improvement.

The supply of carnations is quickly absorbed at the higher rates now asked. The Wards rose last week to midwinter rates. The general quality of the carnation shipments is now perfection. Beacon, Winsor, Enchantress and White Perfection seem to be the favorites of the medium grades. The supply of the newest varieties is not yet sufficient to justify the dignity of regular quotations.

Some fine cypripediums are coming in and sell steadily at $1.50 per dozen. Cattleyas command 75 cents each and are scarce. This applies also to gardenias, much of the stock being short-stemmed and unsalable to the leading retailers. The best sell at $4 to $5 per dozen. Violet specials sold at $1 per hundred for Thanksgiving and remain steady at that figure for the best, though in large quantities 75 cents is accepted. There is a great abundance of Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths are now arriving heavily. The latter are quoted at $2 per hundred. Pansies, antirrhinum, mignonette, bouvardia and daisies are here in abundance. The top for valley is 4 cents and lilies have not gone above 6 cents. The latter are again coming in thousands daily. Lilac is selling at $1 a bunch.

Flowering plants sold well for the Thanksgiving holiday and since, especially Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, azaleas, cyclamens and poinsettias. The growers of these around New York evidently are depending on a plant Christmas, if one may judge by the grand display of these specimens in their greenhouses, most of them already sold, they claim, for immediate local delivery.

HOLLY-HOLLY-HOLLY

I have just returned from a two weeks' trip through the Holly sections of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and have contracted for my supply for the season of 1911. I expect to have several cars of very fine, dark green, well-berried Swamp Holly. I will have it packed as usual in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and guaranteed as represented. My first car will arrive in Philadelphia about December 1st. I filled all orders received last year and gave entire satisfaction and I hope to do so again this season. My price this year on orders received up to December 1st is $3.00 per case. After that date, at market price, which I am quite sure will be higher on account of scarcity.

HOLLY WREATHS
My Holly Wreaths will be made of the very finest selected dark green Holly on 10 inch hoops, and will be well-berried $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to quality.

LAUREL WREATHING
My Laurel Wreathing will be made of the brightest Swamp Laurel that it is possible to secure, in 50-yard lengths. Price, 2½c and 3c per yard.

MISTLETOE
My Mistletoe, from North Carolina, will be extra selected and full of berries. Per case, $3.50 to $5.00, according to quality.
Lycopodium, in 10-yd. rolls, 5c to 8c per yd.

I make a specialty of the above and guarantee all goods as represented or money refunded. Cash must accompany all orders.

Good holly is selling at $5 a box and probably will not go below that figure here. The usual amount of trash, on consignment, is inevitable, but this goes to the grocer and the butcher; the retail florists will have none of it. Pine is scarce and holds firm at 10 cents a pound.

Various Notes.

Next Monday evening, December 11, the New York Florists' Club holds its final session of the year. Prof. John Craig, of Ithaca, will deliver an address and the new officers will be elected. Messrs. Hendrickson and Manda will compete for the presidency, Messrs. Einsman and Rossback for vice-regal honors, Messrs. Rickards, Scott and Siebrecht for the money bags and Messrs. Young and Badgley for the secretary's chair.

This week closes the plant auction business in New York for the year. MacNiff disposed of the large palms, ferns and rubbers of the Bliss Estate, Oceanic, N. J., December 1.

The Kessler brothers have dissolved partnership and William Kessler has acquired the business. There is no more popular young man in the wholesale plant business in the country. The store and conservatories at 113 West Twenty-eighth street are complete in every respect.

Paul Meconi is handling some splendid orchids and gardenias grown by Thomas Young, Jr.

Badgley, Riedel & Meyer were receivers of the earliest shipments of poinsettias.

Louis Hanfling, Jr., has been appointed city agent for Russin & Hanfling.

A new door of much increased width graces the entrance to Arthur T. Boddington's and about completes the conveniences.

Walter Mott, of Newburgh, traveler for W. Elliott & Sons, was in the city December 1, having completed a successful western trip. He is in New England this week.

Messrs. Dards, at 114 West Seventy-second street, and Grunewald, of Columbus avenue, suffered considerable loss because of a dynamite explosion in that vicinity last week, all the windows of their handsome stores being shattered.

Myer, the Madison avenue florist, had charge last week of the A. J. Mayer funeral, furnishing a handsome casket cover of oak foliage, violets and valley. November 26 he furnished for the Oppenheim funeral a casket cover of ROCHESTER.

The Market.

With the passing of Thanksgiving and football, chrysanthemums are also a thing of the past and the few that still remain are poor in quality. Maud Dean seems to wilt right down as soon as it is cut, and there are few yellows that are of any use at all. Eaton is the best mum now on the market. Pompon mums, which were so popular this fall, have been cleaned up entirely; nevertheless, patrons are still clamoring for them and there is nothing to take their place.

Cold, crisp but cloudy weather made Thanksgiving trade good in general and all the florists had their share of the business. Cut flowers seemed more in demand than flowering plants this year, although there were a great many begonias, Jerusalem cherries, primroses and cyclamens sold. Beauties were scarce and fortunately there was little demand for them because the cheapest sold for $8 per dozen. Richmonds were in excellent condition and brought a good price. The favorite Thanksgiving roses were Killarney and Taft and there were great quantities of them to be had. Ward roses are in great demand now, but they are not at all plentiful and are falling off in the supply each week. Maryland is good. White Killarney is still par excellence in quality and a great favorite. Kaiserin has dropped out of the list entirely. Enchantress, Perfection and reds are most in demand among carnations. Stevia is on the market, but not in any great quantity, and it seems much later this year than usual. Roman hyacinths are arriving in small quantities. Paper Whites do not meet with any great demand. Harrisii lilies are few nowadays and the price is up. Violets brought a good price for Thanksgiving. Cattleyas and cypripediums are in demand and sell at fancy prices. Valley and bouvardias are in fine shape and the demand is good.

Holly, winter berries, mahonia and boxwood sprays are used for decorations of all kinds. Christmas decorations are going up in the stores and holiday orders are being placed even now.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart did a big business for Thanksgiving and had little stock left over. He is receiving his holly and Christmas greens early this year.

H. E. Wilson has a handsome new sign.

At the west side store of Salter Bros. it is reported that they did more business this Thanksgiving than last, and with additional funeral work they were completely cleaned out of stock December 1.

W. A. Stearns, of the Sefton Mfg. Co., was in town recently stocking up the florists with corrugated paper boxes.

J. B. Keller Sons say trade for Thanksgiving was good, and they were pretty well sold out.

The Rochester Floral Co. announces an increase in trade for the close of November.

E. C. Campbell's store did a fairly good business for Thanksgiving. Manager Alberts says that chrysanthemums were poor this year.

A fine latticework in white forms the background for a begonia display in George Boucher's window. The pink and white effect is most pleasing and artistic. Thanksgiving trade here was about the same as last year.

Ransford Wilson is suffering with a carbuncle on his neck.

At Salter Bros.' East Main street store, trade last month was about the same as other years, they report.

The New York State Fruit Growers' Association will hold its convention here January 3 to 5. E. C. A.

Charles City, Ia.—M. H. Wetherbee recently completed two new houses and has planted one of them with carnations and the other with roses.

SLOW GROWTH OF PARSLEY.

Please note the enclosed parsley plants. The seed was sown June 20 and they were transplanted in July into flats. In September the plants in part of a house were benched out and some were potted into 2½-inch and 3-inch pots. The same soil was used for both. It was old carnation soil, which had been out in the field over two years. It produced good carnations and is producing good lettuce now, but the parsley plants do not seem to grow. Can you discover from the sample plants what the reason is?

C. O. H.

The samples arrived in good condition and I see no sign of disease or insects on them. In fact, I am unable to find anything wrong with the plants; they look like nice, healthy little plants. I have been wondering whether the plants in the pots acted differently from those planted out in the bed. If your soil was clean and fresh from the field and was growing good lettuce, it should grow parsley well, and, although parsley grows slowly, it should be larger than the samples.

I would advise keeping the soil well cultivated between the plants until they get to growing better. Water carefully, giving them plenty, but not too much. A watering with good liquid manure, or with a solution of nitrate of soda, would help them if the soil lacks sufficient plant food. In applying the nitrate, use only a teaspoonful to each gallon of water and do not wet the leaves. In using manure water, make it good and strong.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.

F. X. Dienst had a record breaker for the season in an order for funeral work which called for fifty-nine pieces and taxed his force heavily, but every piece was delivered on time. Some beautiful effects were made, especially a broken wheel on a base, the whole standing over seven feet high and composed of mums, valley and roses. The sum of $75 was willingly paid for this work of art. Another creation was a standing cross composed of Richmond roses and valley. The new fireproof office is quite an addition and is much admired.

E. A. Lorentz reports a highly satisfactory season. Not a mum went to waste and all were sold at retail. Vivi- and Morel was grown to a single bud, producing blooms that averaged fifteen inches across. Foreman John Doughty believes this is a good record and it is possible that, with such material, a show will be held next season. Vallis is another leader. Roses and carnations look fine, with promise of heavy crops for Christmas.

J. P. Louch is making good at the Taylor plant. Bulbous stock is his specialty and is disposed of in New York city.

NEW CASTLE, IND.

Peter Weiland has opened a wholesale store in Cincinnati.

Under the management of William Gardner, the large establishment of P. J. Olinger is in fine condition.

Beatty & Morris, confectioners and booksellers, have secured the uptown agency for F. J. Benthey & Co.

William Dittmann has a fine stock of American Beauties at present. The flowers are not only setting nicely, but the plants are free from spot.

William Berneche has taken charge of the packing and retail departments of the South Park Floral Co. He is a good salesman and an expert designer, and in his new venture he has the best wishes of his many friends.

J. McL.

Holyoke, Mass.—Mrs. A. S. Fraleigh had a heavy Thanksgiving trade and her stock of violets was not nearly sufficient to meet the demand. She is now getting them into fine condition for the Christmas holidays.

Livingston's Superior Strains of

are developed through careful selection by the best growers of France.

Seeds are grown from transplanted roots which are critically sorted by men who know types required for greenhouse growing. Uniform size and shape, brilliant color of skin, small tops and quick growth are the characteristics that make our forcing strains of radishes so profitable to the grower. Test the truth of our statements by sowing now sorts offered below:

Rosy Gem produces shapely roots of typical size and attractive appearance. It grows quickly to good size, is easily bunched and sells readily at fancy prices. Oz., 5c; ¼-lb., 15c; lb., 60c, postpaid.

Fireball or Non Plus Ultra is the earliest, rich scarlet forcing sort in cultivation. Earlier than Scarlet Globe, with very small foliage. (See illustration). Oz., 5c; ¼-lb., 15c; lb., 60c, postpaid.

SEFTON FLORISTS' BOXES

CORRUGATED DESIGN STYLE AND FOLDING CUT FLOWER BOXES

Florists' success in shipping flowers depends to the greatest extent upon the point where their interest ceases in the sale of flowers. The progressive, prosperous florist retains his interest in a customer's order until it reaches destination, and for that reason he is careful to select the proper style and grade of box to insure safe delivery of his flowers.

Particular Florists are users of Sefton Corrugated Fibreboard Boxes for the shipment of Floral Designs as well as our superior line of Folding Cut Flower Boxes. They know from experience that Sefton Boxes combine high quality with low price and make neat, attractive packages which carry the flowers safely to destination. Write for our Flower Box Price List.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Last month was the worst November in twenty years. There was rain almost every day till November 15, when it froze up tightly, and ever since we have had alternate rain, hard frost and snow flurries. There was a total, for the month, of three sunshiny days, which inspired hope that, after all, we might be blessed with Indian summer, but it did not arrive and last night the temperature dropped to 8 degrees above zero.

Considering the weather, business has been good, Thanksgiving especially so. All report a good trade, especially in chrysanthemums. This has been the best mum season in some years; particularly is this true of the wholesale market, which was never better. This condition can, in a measure, be explained as far as Grand Rapids is concerned, in this way: Last season almost every lettuce grower and truck gardener, with a bit of glass at his disposal, filled his houses with mums for an early fall crop, to be followed with lettuce and vegetables. In this manner hundreds of thousands of mums were dumped on the Chicago market, and while but few were really first-class, the bulk was of average quality and the rest what might be called "bum." This season the huge output is entirely lacking and this certainly lent its share towards producing a better condition of the market. What stock was grown was of a quality above the average and brought good prices. It is altogether likely that there will be much heavier plantings next year, simply because there was good money in mums this season. Pompons and single mums are becoming more plentiful, and, on account of their cheapness and their adaptability for pretty and inexpensive table centerpieces, are yearly growing in favor.

Potted plants sold well, while the queen of autumn, in plentiful supply, led the cut flower sales. Carnations and roses were scarce and everything was cleaned up well. It seems that many varieties of mums were a couple of weeks early this year. As a whole, the sales were about the same as last year and everybody is satisfied.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith states that he got his best money out of Jerome Jones. He has the three varieties, yellow, white and pink.

Eli Cross is enthusiastic over the way his crop paid him—better, he says, than anything he ever grew before.

Freyling & Mendels sent out a postal card to their patrons, in the form of a mum special, winding up with "None better in the city at twice the price." This unique ad brought them many sales.

The mums of the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. were mostly disposed of before Thanksgiving, and they had to buy to help out. G. F. C.

Channing, Mich.—It is reported that Edward J. Gardner will open a store here before Christmas.

WHAT!
No More Split Carnations?

Not if you use Tank's Artificial Calyx. A sure preventive. Prevention is better than cure! So simple that a boy can put them on and when the bud has reached a certain stage it is taken off and put on another. Does not retard the growth of flower at all. Nothing to wear out. Last forever. A trial will convince.

Seven Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Last week, which included an extra flower day (Thanksgiving), was good. The amount of business done was fully equal to that of a year previous, but as there was more available stock in nearly all lines, prices were not so stiff. This was especially true of carnations; there also seemed to be more mums, which helped to reduce the sales of other cut flowers. In fact, there were too many white cut flowers for the Thanksgiving trade. Local violets, which are of fine quality, sold well and the same could be said for Beauties, as there was only a sufficient supply.

The supply of green goods is equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

While everyone was enjoying a hearty meal and making the best of the Thanksgiving holiday, Fred W. Bliese, of Waukesha, stole a march on his friends and took unto himself Miss Ella Busse, of Brookfield, Wis., as his better half. Mr. Bliese now is sole proprietor of the former establishment of Schneck & Bliese, Waukesha, Wis.

Another one of our younger generation became a benedict December 3. Hans Schultz, secretary and treasurer of the Fox Point Floral Co., and Miss Grade are the happy couple. The bride is the sister of Otto Grade, who is also a member of the Fox Point Co.

In addition to a most satisfactory Thanksgiving trade, Walter M. Maas & Co. were kept busy the fore part of last week with reception work.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports the Thanksgiving trade better than last year. Fancy mums sold well right along with them.

The Gust. Rusch Co. experienced a strong demand for violets and fancy roses all last week.

The John Arnold family is now nicely domiciled in their new home, which has quite dull, without much coming in at any of the wholesale houses, and it is plain to see that mums have seen their best days.

Violets were surprisingly many for Thanksgiving day sales and were held up to $1 per hundred for fancy stock. Beauties are not so plentiful, but other roses, such as Killarney, Maryland and Richmond, are in good supply and selling well.

Carnations in all varieties and grades had a big call all last week, as also did valley, lilies and Paper Whites. There is plenty of good smilax and other greens on the market.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First VicePres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

For the next two weeks seeds will be a secondary consideration with a good many seed stores—Christmas greens are to the fore.

Alfred Emerich, representing Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, sailed from New York November 30, after a successful trip through the United States and Canada.

Henry Nungesser announces his withdrawal from the corporation of Henry Nungesser & Co., of which he has been president. The business was established in 1874 and incorporated in 1899.

Arthur B. Clark, of Everett B. Clark Seed Co., is extending the operations of his firm to the Montana pea growing district. He was reported from points in both Park and Gallatin counties as being on the ground in the last week of November.

The market for bouquet green at Chicago at the opening of this week was $7.50 to $8 bid, offered at $9; little business being done. Some owners of small lots are talking of a $12.50 market, but actions of buyers indicate little green will be needed at a higher figure than the present. There is considerable variation in the quality of the different lots.

THOSE FINE FREE SEEDS.

In his annual report as Secretary of Agriculture, made public today, James Wilson says:

"Seeds and plants were distributed upon congressional order as in former years. Between 600 and 700 tons of vegetable and flower seeds, put up in approximately 60,000,000 packets, were distributed the past season. Of this quantity about ten per cent was flower seed and ninety per cent vegetable seed. Approximately one-third of the total quantity was procured from surplus stocks, and the remainder was grown under contract for the department during the current season. In every case seed was secured on competitive bids, and no seed was accepted for distribution unless it was found after repeated tests to be of satisfactory purity and vitality. Every lot of seed is tested for germination two or more times before and after shipment, and a sample of each lot is grown on the trial grounds of the department under the direct supervision of expert horticulturists, to determine its trueness to type. Many thousand pounds of vegetable and flower seeds which do not meet the requirements of the department are rejected every year and returned to the seedsmen by whom they were shipped. Where seeds are contracted to be grown for the department the fields are inspected at the proper season by specialists, who see that the plants are uniformly true to type and that a proper system of roguing out variations and mixtures is followed. This system has resulted in steady improvement in the quality of seeds distributed by the department, as shown by the results obtained on the trial grounds and by hundreds of reports from all sections of the country.

"The work of packeting, assembling and mailing the vegetable and flower seeds was done under a contract at a cost of $1.10½ per thousand packets, which included delivery of the packeted seed in mail sacks direct to the Union station. A new contract has been entered into for putting up and mailing the seeds for the coming distribution at a saving over the former contract of 1 cent per thousand packets.

"Approximately 12,000 pecks of four improved varieties of upland cotton developed by the department were distributed in the cotton-growing states last season. The continued distribution of these improved cottons, with the accompanying circulars which contain detailed instructions for the home selection and improvement of seed, has resulted in widespread interest in seed selection in the south..

"The propagation of Dutch bulbs in the Puget sound region in connection with the congressional distribution is progressing favorably. Trial sets of narcissus and tulip bulbs propagated near Bellingham, Wash., were planted at Washington, D. C., with sets of bulbs of the same varieties imported from Holland, and the Bellingham bulbs produced better blossoms ten days earlier than the imported bulbs. The early blooming period of American-grown bulbs is of importance to all professional florists, because of the saving in time and fuel where bulbs are forced for market."

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 335 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants	2.50 each

Competition bothers us about as much as a fly does a rhinoceros—we don't even say shoo-fly. We are too busy attending to our own business. We don't care what competitors' prices are; we know what our prices should be and what our goods are worth. If we can't make a profit we don't do business, because we are not philanthropists yet; and the sooner you follow the same rule the better for you. Americans have an inward dislike for the cut-priced fellow, because 90% of the time he is a business degenerate, who must cut prices to get business and then scale the goods to make a profit. If the other fellow tries to shave himself with a bed-slat, let him do it, for he can't cut himself, that's sure; whereas, if he had a razor, no telling what would happen. The world has use for all kinds, for someone must handle the slop and make a living some way in the process.

For the very best in bulbs, buy Horseshoe Brand—there are none better. Write us.

PACIFIC COAST.

The Toppenish Nursery Co., of Yakima, Wash., has received an order from Milo Russell, manager of the Okanagen Fruit & Land Co., at Kelowna, B. C., for $8,000 worth of nursery stock, to be delivered next spring.

It is reported that D. R. and C. S. Shafer have purchased all of the interest of Cesar Hogin in the Shafer-Hogin Orchard & Nursery Co., at Denair, Cal., and will continue the business, with sales-yards at Denair and Turlock.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Speakman Bros., the owners of large greenhouses near Lawndale, have been so successful that they will erect another house, to cost $7,500, to be devoted exclusively to American Beauty roses.

White Bluffs, Wash.—H. E. Harrison says that business is not as brisk as he might wish, on account of difficulties that must be encountered in most newly irrigated regions. Mrs. Harrison was recently in North Yakima, where she was being treated for a serious ear trouble, with good hopes of a cure.

VICTORIA, B. C.

The Market.

Trade is progressing favorably. Flowers of all kinds are sufficient for the demand, but there does not seem to be any surplus. Roses are showing the effects of the dull days and long nights. Carnations are more than usually plentiful. Chrysanthemums are sufficient for all demands and the range of quality and color is all that can be desired. Nothing new in this line is apparent. There are no violets grown locally, the market relying wholly on the Californian product. Plants, especially flowering plants, seem to be scarce. There are one or two nice lots around, but they seem to be held back for the holidays.

As to the outlook for Christmas, roses will be scarce. Carnations will be plentiful, red excepted. Chrysanthemums will be fine and in full supply. Paper Whites will also be in full supply. The valley will all be imported. In holly, the locally grown English, the finest known, will be extremely scarce. It is quoted at 50 to 65 cents per pound on the trees; retail, $1 per pound. Little of it, indeed, will be exported in bulk. The usual run of plants will be enough for the demand.

The weather at present is good. A severe cold spell, with heavy winds, visited us at the same time as the rest of the country suffered, but no damage was done locally.

Various Notes.

The Fairview Esquimault Greenhouses, one of the largest commercial plants here, changed hands last week. Brown Bros., Ltd., of Vancouver, have bought the whole establishment as a running concern, taking over the store as well as the greenhouses. It is said that the present store will only be kept until a fine new location, already secured by the new owners, is ready. We are all glad to welcome Brown Bros. among us. Mr. Bornhoft, the new manager of the Fairview, is to be congratulated on having such practical employ-

Messrs. Peacock have opened a store on Yates street. F. B.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Thanksgiving business was beyond expectations. There was plenty of stock, which moved well at good prices. Mums were the best selling commodity, on account of the annual football game. Only the lesser grades were left. Carnations sold out clean early in the day. Violets also moved well, but the market was deluged with California stock, which is unsatisfactory to the public. Begonias, cyclamens and mum plants moved well, the prices being within reach of all. Greens are scarce, especially asparagus. Huckleberry and grape are used extensively for decorative purposes. The supply of mistletoe exceeded the demand. It is considered a nuisance, as the sales are usually small and the salesman's time is valuable.

E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Although the Thanksgiving business has not been entirely canvassed in this city among all the growers, we have a fair knowledge of conditions in general. As compared with last season, the storekeepers seemed quite as busy, but the sales were for smaller amounts. This shows that the public was content to purchase cheaper articles in most instances. Red berries and violets represented a large part of the sales. Carnations were in large supply and sold at low prices, but they moved well under these conditions. Fancy roses were scarce and were held at good figures, but second quality stock was overplentiful and cheap. Mums were in better quality and in larger quantity than one year ago; the prices throughout, except in the case of the white sorts, were also about twenty-five per cent lower. Valley was plentiful and moved only fairly well. Poinsettias from the south were in good shape, but the public took to them only tolerably. Small plants in flower, such as cyclamens and primulas, were bought out. Larger ferns and palms did not do so well. All sorts of green stuff had heavy sale, even heavier than last season.

Owing to the continued warm weather, the supply of flowers was the greatest ever seen here. Funeral trade, however, continues brisk and uses up almost all the light colored stock, so that, even with only the suitable flowers in great demand, the excess of showy colored stock is not noticed.

ROSES IN CALIFORNIA.

[A paper by John Gill, of West Berkeley, Cal., read at the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, at Los Angeles, Cal., November 23, 1911.]

The cultivation of field-grown roses in California has assumed large proportions within the last few years. This refers not only to plants grown on their own roots, but to budded stock as well, and it is only within a comparatively short time that the latter sort has become so popular that many hundreds of acres are devoted to it. Many roses are of highly satisfactory growth when raised on their own roots. By this statement is meant that they root easily, grow strongly and transplant readily. These are ideal conditions when they exist and are the only things to be considered if we would make a success in handling stock after this method. Unfortunately, a majority of our best sorts only possess one or two of these essentials, and, unless all these qualities are present, the effort with that particular variety can not be deemed a good risk.

Some roses root readily, but the quality of the roots is not such that they are to be recommended for transplanting purposes. This is a serious point and one that has caused great annoyance, but it might be well to state here that this characteristic is controlled largely by the quality of the soil, the plan of irrigation pursued and the amount of cultivation given. Each contention mentioned here has a direct bearing on all the others, and even under the best possible conditions many kinds will not make sufficient growth of either top or root to make salable plants in a reasonable time. Many pages might be written on any of the phases mentioned here, and as one thought leads to another we will now turn our attention to budded stock.

Planting the Wild Stocks.

First of all, let us consider the proper time for planting the wild stocks. This is so dependent on climatic conditions for the ripening, heeling in when necessary, and lining out, that every location is a law unto itself, and local conditions can not be handled in a general way. Presuming, then, that the stock is made into cuttings of usual length and caliber, of well ripened wood and free from borers or other pests, we will next note the soil. Roses, as we all know, prefer stiff, heavy loam, with good drainage. An excess of sand means that an excess of water must be used, followed always by an excess of young growth which is not prone to ripen, and an excess of dead roses after transplanting. This is the reason why so many growers have not been successful in the warm, dry parts of California, where good stock can not be grown without lots of water, always followed by the train of unavoidable disasters just mentioned.

Cultivation first, last and all the time, during the spring and summer, is the key to successful rose growing in this state, and by no other method has any grower achieved anything except pecuniary loss. When the cuttings, climate and soil are right, we may next devote our attention to the planting. Always place the stocks deeply in the ground and see that the soil is packed around them firmly. Commence cultivating thoroughly as soon as the weather permits.

As to the choice of stocks, there is quite a diversity of opinion as to what should be used for the various sorts to be worked on them. Many varieties absolutely refuse to make a union with certain wild roses. Others make a half-hearted connection, and wait patiently for a good wind storm, when they may sever their irksome bonds. Some are quite discriminating in one locality and not in another. Others work well on several sorts and some, apparently, will not grow on anything. So on down the line—a constant study, with the end always in view of finding out what is best for your particular purpose. From this it will be seen that, to make a success in this division of rose growing, many particulars must be kept constantly in mind and eternal vigilance must be your watchword.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—Fires, resulting from heating pipes, called the department twice on the night of November 28 to the Wilcox greenhouses on East Pierce street. The first call came at 6:20 and the blaze was soon extinguished by the firemen. Three hours later, another blaze was discovered in the same place and was again subdued with little trouble. The damage to the building was nominal.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston June 1912.

THE shipping season with the firms at the Illinois nursery center at Bloomington has been a prosperous one in spite of the early arrival of winter weather. The prospects for spring are said to be excellent.

THE eighth annual meeting of the American Breeders' Association will be held at the Masonic Temple, Washington, D. C., December 28 to 30. Dr. H. J. Webber, Ithaca, N. Y., is secretary of the plant section.

THE ninth annual meeting of the Alabama State Horticultural Society will be held in Jasper, Ala., January 25 to 27, 1912. This meeting will be of great interest to the fruit and vegetable growers of the state, as several new features have been arranged. Several large spray pump machinery companies have signified their intention of demonstrating their outfits. There will be demonstrations in pruning and setting of fruit trees. Jasper is in the center of a rapidly growing fruit section and a large attendance is expected from that vicinity. F. P. Williams, Audubon, is secretary.

WHEN the will of the late John Siebenthaler, the nurseryman of Dayton, O., was probated, it was found that he had made unusually careful arrangements for the preservation of the home life of the family till 1919, when the youngest child shall reach his majority. In the will the nurseryman asks that the home life of his family be continued unbroken for ten years from the date of the instrument; that his 18-acre farm be cultivated and held in trust for his children by his sister Margaret, who is named guardian, and that the nursery business be continued in the interest of the children for that length of time. The estate is valued at something over $15,000.

THE PRIVET SOLD.

Great are the classified advertisements:

I have had excellent results from my classified advertisement of privet in The Review.—Charles L. Smith, Penn's Grove, N. J., November 27, 1911.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The closing week of November was a satisfactory one and ended a month which, taken as a whole, was highly successful. The retailers have all had their busy days, as well as times when there was little to do, but the result has been as good as in other years, and in a few cases some better. The wholesalers report a satisfactory month, with more chrysanthemums handled than ever before, and although there were no fancy prices, the general average was fair.

Thanksgiving business was all that was expected of it. There was no scarcity of flowers of any kind and everything cleaned up nicely. Stock never was better for Thanksgiving; in fact, there was practically no rubbish of any kind. Beauties were rather on the scarce side, but fine Killarney, both pink and white, and Richmond were plentiful enough to supply all demands. Prices were quite reasonable and by Thursday morning everything was cleaned up.

Various Notes.

The retail shops all had their usual fine window displays last week. The A. W. Smith Co. had one large window devoted to a display of orchids in great variety and as used in various corsage bouquets. The arrangement of the window was deserving of credit.

Mrs. E. A. Williams, as usual, made her display of but one thing last week. It consisted of begonias arranged in a most attractive manner.

H. L. Blind & Bros. reported a splendid trade in their city store, where they had an attractive showing of plants and flowers.

Randolph & McClements made most elaborate decorations in both their stores, using some choice plants and flowers, arranged chiefly for general effect for the whole store instead of as a window display.

The Ziegler Co. was not behind in any way. Some fine bunches of mums in large vases found ready purchasers.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. were well pleased with their Thanksgiving trade.

There is one thing that our retailers are "wise to," and that is that their goods must be displayed so as to attract purchasers and that there must be at least a few arrangements of some kind always in sight, so that new people may be able to make selections without having to describe things with which they are not familiar.

One of our largest retailers says that he thinks the street men are a means of educating people who could not be coaxed into the larger stores, but will buy a few flowers from time to time until they finally regard them as necessities.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has been making some large shipments of boxwood sprays since Thanksgiving and reports an unusual demand for this attractive evergreen.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club, through President Jones, is making an effort to boost Pittsburgh as a city of flowers and plants, by having it written up for the Sunday papers.

E. D. Smith, Adrian, Mich., was a visitor Tuesday, December 5, and gave a talk at the Florists' Club meeting.

Ray Dashbach has his new store open and had a better Thanksgiving business than he expected. He has Wm. Murray as assistant. Hoo-Hoo.

Erie, Ill.—Clarence Peckham, who has been in business here only a short time, finds trade so good that he is planning to build another greenhouse.

Edmond A. Harvey extended a cordial invitation to visit him at his place in Delaware county, where those famous carnations, sweet peas and mignonette are grown for the Leo Niessen Co. It was a splendid November day, not dull and dreary, as the melodramatic story writers love to say, but one of those days when the crisp air and bright sunshine make the two-mile walk end all too soon. It was just before the close of the popular lunch hour, giving a few minutes to enjoy the landscape and a new tile house that Mr. Harvey is building; silent testimony to the success of his business enterprise. While Mr. Harvey's father and brother take a deep and active interest in the greenhouses, this enterprise is more particularly his own. The large farm is the special pride of his brother, Evans Harvey. Alban Harvey lends the weight of his name and council to both enterprises, giving each of the young men the advantages of a father's help.

The place is devoted to carnations, sweet peas and mignonette. The carnations occupy all but one house; there are 40,000 plants on the benches, divided among a few of the best varieties. Winsor, planted in the tables in May, may be described as the standard pink. Enchantress still has a limited space at its command. Mrs. C. W. Ward appears to be the coming pink; foliage, flower and stem were all fine. White Perfection stands almost alone among the whites; Alma Ward is its sole competitor. Mr. Harvey doubts whether Alma Ward is free flowering with them. The scarlets and reds are an important class; Beacon, Victory and an undisseminated seedling of C. W. Ward occupy considerable space, especially the first two. The plan followed with these reds is interesting, for here tomatoes will be grown early next year. Mr. Harvey says that the price of tomatoes, though higher now than in the spring, does not warrant a fall or a winter crop.
